BRITISH FLIERS WINGING WEST OVER ATLANTIC

Kingsford-Smith Soars From Irish Coast in Southern Cross.

NEWFOUNDLAND, MAIN NEW YORK COURSE SE

ARRIVAL TOMORROW MORNING PLANNED

Port Marnock, Irish Free State (Tuesday), June 24 (A.P.).—Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith and his three comrades in the famous airplane Southern Cross took off from the beach here on a transatlantic flight to America at 4:27 a. m. (10:27 p. m., E. S. T., Monday).

The Australian ace sent his big plane whirling down a three-and-a-half-mile runway. He had on board 1,298 gallons of gasoline, which he estimated would be enough for 38 hours of flying. With good weather he hoped to reach American in from 34 to 35 hours.

Capt. Kingsford-Smith and his three comrades were awakened at 2:30 a. m. for the start of the transatlantic flight. They had a light breakfast with friends, chatted and smoked cigarettes until it was time to go out to the Southern Cross, on the beach.

10,000 Witness Take-off.

Before 3 a. m. about 10,000 persons had gathered to watch the start of the Southern Cross. Gen. O'Duffy, commander of the Irish Civic Guards, arrived in person to control the traffic, which grew heavier from minute to minute.

Roads for miles around were jammed with every kind of conveyance, from Dublin and elsewhere.

The old-fashioned Irish jaunting cars resurrected from Limbo, did a roaring trade in conveying people from the railway station to the beach.

The "Jarvies" charged high prices and earned as much tonight as ordinarily in a whole summer.

The only saloon on the beach went dry under the thirst of the crowd before midnight. Food supplies also were exhausted and urgent messages were sent to Dublin for fresh supplies. Extra civic guards were called out.

Weather Greatly Improved.

The weather was greatly improved by 2:50 a. m. (8:50 p. m. Eastern standard time, Monday). The sky was much clearer and rain, which had been falling heavily in the evening, had ceased for an hour.

Capt. Kingsford-Smith's companions are J. W. Stannage, radio operator; M. E. Van Dyk, assistant pilot, and Capt. J. P. Saul, navigator.

The Southern Cross was closely guarded by Free State troops, to restrain aspiring stowaways and souvenir hunters. The long runway for the take-off was lined with armed soldiers.

The runway is nearly 3½ miles long. Its great extent enabled the heavily loaded Southern Cross to rise with ease.

Departure Point Changed.

Most flights starting from Ireland are made from Baldonnel Airdrome, but Capt. Kingsford-Smith first chose the Curragh Camp, 20 miles further inland, considering that the great weight of his plane needed all the room obtainable for the take-off.

Later he discovered Port Marnock and estimated that the added distance would enable him to carry 50 more gallons of gasoline—which American coast if he has to buck hear winds over the ocean.

Capt. Kingsford-Smith and his companions have been here since June 4 awaiting favorable weather for the flight. He insisted he would never take off in the face of bad reports from any spot along the route.

Hourly Radios Are Planned.

As provisions for safety, if the plane is forced down, the Australian has provided for quick emptying of the gasoline tanks and believes that the Southern Cross would float like a buoy if minus its fuel.

The plane will send hourly radio messages on a 30-meter wave length. The call letters will be WMZAB.

Capt. Kingsford-Smith intends to fly the Great Circle route to Newfoundland, down the coast to Maine and then to New York. He estimates the flight will require between 34 and 35 hours. The Southern Cross has a cruising radius of about 38 hours.

Eugenia Bankhead Butt Suffers Fractured Leg

Reno, Nev., June 23 (A.P.).—Plans of Eugenia Bankhead Butt, daughter of Representative Bankhead, of Alabama, to obtain an annulment here today of her marriage to Wilfred Lawson Butt, former University of Nevada student and once a movie extra at Hollywood, were spoiled today when her attorney received a telephone message at Hollywood that she had suffered a broken leg and would not be able to return to Reno for some time.

New Lindbergh Baby To Be Named Charles

Augustus or Dwight May Be Added, Friend of Family Reveals.

New York, June 23 (A.P.).—A member of the household of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh said today that it had been definitely decided that the Lindbergh heir's first name would be Charles. As to a middle name, it was said the family had not decided whether to call the child Charles Dwight or Charles Augustus, jr.

Despite the scenes of excited interest enacted by the residents of Englewood and the country at large, no further statements concerning the "first baby of the land" were forthcoming from the Morrow home, where the customary reserve attending events in the family was preserved.

Col. Lindbergh came to New York this morning to call on Admiral Byrd, an appointment scheduled last week. America's hero of the air, who had realized his latest dream in the birth of a son, and the man who had flown across both poles, gripped hands and cried "Congratulations!" Beyond that,

NEW YORK CHAMBER PLAYS HOST TO BYRD

TRIP DESCRIBED ON AIR

New York, June 23 (A.P.).—A luncheon talk, a dinner talk, a radio talk and a personal talk—that was the program today for Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd.

A hard program for one who is a doer rather than a talker, but it has been his daily fare since returning last week from his flight over the South Pole, and it will continue to be the order of his days until he definitely retires to private life on July 13.

The day began with the personal talk, a private chat with Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who came from Englewood, N. J., where his young wife and less-than-a-day-old baby were "both doing nicely," to renew a friendship begun when both the Byrd and the Lindbergh flights were in preparation.

It was a meeting of mutual congratulations, Col. Lindbergh receiving congratulations on the birth of his son with a pleased grin and the rear admiral receiving congratulations of the flying colonel on his Antarctic exploits.

So crowded was the Byrd program that he and Col. Lindbergh had only 12 minutes together, but they made an appointment to meet again, after the admiral's round of welcome celebrations is over, for a more lengthy discussion of many phases of aviation in which they are mutually interested.

Then Admiral Byrd hurried downtown to a luncheon of the Chamber

COMMITTEE REPORT FAVORS NAVAL PACT

VOTE OF GROUP IS 16-4

By ALBERT W. FOX.

The London Naval Treaty has at last weathered the storm in the Senate foreign relations committee and is now ready to be taken up by the Senate. The pact was reported out of committee by a vote of 16 to 4 yesterday.

Senators Johnson, Moses, Shipstead and Robinson, of Indiana, voted against it. Senator Borah's majority report will consist of the resolution of ratification. Three minority reports against the treaty are to be submitted to the Senate. Senator Shipstead's minority report was made public yesterday.

The secret documents issue, dealt with by Mr. Shipstead, was made the subject of a resolution by Senator La Follette yesterday. The Senator from Wisconsin wants the committee to make public the secret documents so far submitted by the State Department despite admonition of Secretary Stimson against it. There was discussion of this resolution yesterday, and it will be decided by vote later this week.

Senator Borah still expects the treaty to be handled by the special session and not by the present session prior to adjournment. There has been pressure to get the treaty before the Senate before the present regular session ends in the hope of forcing a vote during the waning hours of the session and thereby Cleric's Failure to Deny Charges Cited in New Statement.

The contention of Bishop James Cannon, jr., that Representative Tinkham (Republican), Massachusetts, had failed to discard Congressional immunity on his allegations regarding the Mehodist leader's account of funds received in the 1928 anti-Smith campaign brought a statement yesterday from Mr. Tinkham that the bishop had not denied his charges.

Mr. Tinkham charged last Tuesday in the House that Bishop Cannon had violated the Federal corrupt practices act in failing to account for $48,300 of a sum contributed toward the campaign fund by E. C. Jameson, a New York capitalist. When Bishop Cannon challenged him to divest himself of congressional immunity, the Massachusetts member issued a statement in which

ALL-INDIA UNION GAINS FAVOR IN BRITISH REPORT

WOULD BE BIG STEP TOWARD AUTONOMY

London Acceptance Seen but Scheme Falls Short of Gandhi Demands.

PROPOSAL FRUIT OF THREE-YEAR STUDY

London, June 24 (Tuesday) (A.P.). An all-India federation, which would travel a long road toward eventual self-government under the British crown, was recommmended to the British and Indian peoples today by the parliamentary commission headed by Sir John Simon as the most effective solution of Indian empire problems.

The recommendation is contained in the second half of the commission's report, covering nearly three years of investigation and labor, and containing deductions derived from the first half of the report published a fortnight ago. It is commented that the commissioners—six in number besides Sir John—had already reached an unanimous decision on the recommendations when the present disorders began three months ago.

"While we are prepared to recommend a considerable advance toward self-government, and while we believe responsibility can only be taught by making men responsible for the effects of their own actions, we desire to secure that experience is not bought too dearly," the report says.

Falls Short of Demands.

"There must be in India a power which can step in and save the situation before it is too late. There must be provided, as far as may be, safeguards to insure the maintenance of vital services. * * * The governor general or the governor, as the case may be, must be armed with full and ample powers. We desire to give the fullest scope for self-government, but, if there is a breakdown, then an alternative authority must cooperate unhampered."

The report will be the basis of conversations at the round table conference on India matters to be held in London in October, at which the future of India will be discussed. The Nationalist Indian elements have already given notice of their intention to boycott the conference.

Observers commented that the general recommendation falls short of demands of the Indian Nationalist group of which the Mahatma Gandhi has been leader; these Nationalists, or Swarajists, as they call themselves, have pronounced for complete and immediate independence. While some have believed they would accept immediate dominion status as a compromise it was not expected that the eventual dominion status to which they might aspire under the Simon recommendations would be satisfactory to them.

Union With Princely States.

Unanimity of the commissions—who represent the three major British parties—in the report was interpreted as signifiying a general acceptance of its provisions at home. Little disagreement in Great Britain was forecast, except from that small group who have advocated granting Indian Nationalist demands practically in their entirety and rapid removal of the British governmental agencies from India.

Foremost in the commissioners' scheme for a federate India is the plan to join both the states of the

FLIER ESCAPES HARM AS SHIP FALLS ON AUTO

Soloing Student Aviator Strikes Congressional Airport Wires.

LARGE CROWD LEADS TO TIEUP OF TRAFFIC

PLANE TURNS OVER; PROPELLER CUTS CAR

Pilot Prevents Possibility of Explosion by Cutting Off Motor.

An almost miraculous escape from death was the lot of a Washington student flier early last night when a plane he was flying so low in training from the Congressional Airport snagged wires at the edge of the field bordering the Rockville pike, toppled over and crashed upside down to the roadway into a parked, unoccupied automobile.

The man is Thomas O'Zier Hutson, 29 years old, of the Boulevard Apartments, 2121 New York avenue northwest, an employe of the Washington Gas Light Co. Aside from a general shakeup, he escaped any ill effects.

A large crowd was attracted to the scene, and the sight of the wrecked plane, its wings mangled and tattered, its three-place cabin demolished and its propeller cut deep into the automobile at the roadside, led to a geenral tieup of traffic along the heavily traveled pike, the main artery from Washington Rockville and beyond.

Had Landed Safely Before.

The accident occurred shortly after 6 o'clock while Hutson, flying solo in training for the second time after a successful flight alone last Thursday, was preparing to make his final landing of the afternoon after having brought the plane down in approved style several times earlier.

The ship, returning from a flight over Rockville, swooped down to the field and proceeded slightly beyond the mark usually chosen for a landing. Hutson, believing that he might not be able to check the craft from taxiing onto the road and endangering both himself and motorists, suddenly gave the plane "the gun" and began soaring. He miscalculated and the plane failed to climb as rapidly as he had anticipated.

The wheels and lower portion struck one of the roadside wires, tilted over and came tumbling down the propeller crashing into an automobile owned by Henry Lenovitz, operator of a grocery store opposite the field, while the tail of the fuselage cracked as it struck. The fact that the cockpit itself did not strike the ground accounted for the escape.

Blast Menace Averted.

Lieut. A. S. Reynolds, U. S. Marine Corps, Reserves, manager of the Congressional Airport, under whose direction Hutson was receiving instruction, rushed to the scene. Hutson extricated himself and came out smiling, declining any medical attention.

Lieut. Reynolds explained that Hutson averted the menace of an explosion and a burned plane by cutting off the motor at the moment he hit the wires. He explained also that Hutson shoved aside his goggles and braced himself securely for the fall.

The propeller, in cleaving into the wires, snapped the high tension power lines of the Potomac Electric Power Co., and halted power service in Rockville, Gaithersburg, and a number of smaller surrounding towns, which remained in darkness for approximately 45 minutes until repairs were made. A three-minute interruption in power service also was noted at Chevy Chase. All lines of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., except one along the stretch, also were severed, but repairs were made in less than an hour.

Without Record, Reed, Bingham Substitutes Are Shouted Down.

APPROVED BY HOUSE LOOKED FOR AT ONCE

Hoover Veto Expected; Course May Result in Compromise.

MOVE IS INTIMATED BY REPRESENTATIVES

(Associated Press.)

Disregarding again the wishes of President Hoover and in the face of an almost certain veto, the Senate late yesterday passed by the overwhelming vote of 66 to 6 the modified House bill liberalizing provisions of the World War veterans act of 1924.

The avalanche of votes for the measure was roared out by the Senate in answer to the last minute protest voiced by Mr. Hoover, who quoted Secretary Mellon as saying the legislation would necessitate a certain increase in taxation next year.

Through seven long hours of debate both Republicans and Democrats deplored the President's stand. A substitute by Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, which he brought from a White House conference, was shouted down without a record vote. Another substitute by Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, embodying the original program of the American Legion for veterans' relief met a similar fate after Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, had pleaded for it.

House Approval Predicted.

The bill which extends compensation up to a maximum of $100 a month to disabled veterans now goes back to the House, where quick approval of the Senate amendments is predicted.

An immediate veto by President Hoover is expected at the Capitol in view of his announcement Sunday. Only nine Republicans were recorded in opposition to the measure in the Senate yesterday and leaders have little hope of sustaining a veto.

The six who voted against the measure were Senators Bingham and Walcott, Connecticut; Gillett, Massachusetts; Hastings, Delaware; Reed, Pennsylvania, and Watson, Indiana. In addition, Senators Moses, New Hampshire, and Grundy, Pennsylvania, were paired against it, while Senator Smoot (Republican), Utah, also was opposed to the bill, although he was unable to vote.

Thirty-three Republicans, including many administration regulars; the lone Farmer-Labor senator from Minnesota, Shipstead, and 32 Democrats, voted for the bill.

Senators Shortridge (Republican), California, and George (Democrat), Georgia, led the fight for the bill reported by the finance committee and as finally passed.

Fears Hoover Mislead.

Senator Shortridge said he feared "the man I supported in the White House has been misled" regarding the bill and contested the President's statement that the measure would cost $102,000,000 the first year. He contended it would cost only $74,000,000.

Leading an assault on Mr. Mellon, Senator La Follette (Republican), Wisconsin, belittled claims that a Treasury deficit would result unless taxes were increased following enactment of the veterans' measure.

"I venture the assertion," La Follette said as loud applause broke out in the galleries, "that Andrew W. Mellon has never been right regarding any prediction of a deficit made at a time when a measure was pending he did not like."

"He opposed the soldiers' bonus because he said it would create a deficit

SENATE TO EXPRESS DISTRICT BILL STAND

Ballot Expected Today on Resolution Asking More Than $9,000,000.

CONFEREES WILL MEET

A showdown on the way the Senate feels about the $44,000,000 District appropriation bill will come today when Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut, asks for a roll call of votes on a resolution which he introduced late yesterday.

The Senate and House conferees on the bill will resume negotiations at 3 o'clock this afternoon, arrangements for the meeting having been completed late yesterday.

The resolution introduced by Senator Bingham declares that it is the sense of the Senate that $9,000,000 is not a sufficient sum for the Federal Government to contribute toward the support of the District government.

The Senate, in passing the 1931 District appropriation bill, provided for a Federal contribution of $12,000,000, whereas the House had voted for a contribution of $9,000,000. This divergence of views between the two houses has resulted in a deadlock on the bill.

The resolution introduced yesterday by Senator Bingham was an answer to a challenge that had been made earlier in the day by Representative Louis Cramton (Republican), of Michigan, author of the $9,000,000 lump-sum provision.

When the question of sending the bill back to conference came up in

SUITCASE, $10 STOLEN

Beverly Lee Smith, 22 years old, a football and baseball star at Washington and Lee University, reported to the police last night that he was held up by a man and woman in an automobile in L street near Fourteenth street and robbed of $10 and his suitcase containing wearing apparel.

Because of alleged discrepencies in his story police questioned the young man for more than two hours. Smith, who is a member of a socially prominent family at Lynchburg, Va., maintained, however, that at 7:45 he was walking in L street when he was hailed by a man and woman in a roadster.

"Hey, buddy, come here!" the driver called, Smith said. Smith asserted he walked over to the car and that the man behind the wheel thrust revolver over the woman's lap and demanded that he hand over his billfold containing $10, which was in his coat pocket. He said that the man also told him to place his suit case in the machine and that the couple then drove away.

Smith took down the license number of the machine and turned it over to the police. A check-up showed that the license number jotted down by Smith had never been issued.

Smith made his first report of the Girl Fatally Shoots Young Brother in Gun Struggle

According to the story related hysterically later by Hilda, the boy went upstairs to his father's room, where he found the pistol in a bureau drawer. He brought the gun downstairs, Hilda said, and she, realizing the danger, endeavored to take the weapon away from him, when it was discharged.

of $600,000,000, yet within 90 days we had a surplus of $300,000,000," the Wisconsin senator asserted. "So that the greatest Secretary of the Treasury since Hamilton' was off to the tune of $900,000,000 in 90 days."

Reed Senses Enmity.

Reed was alone in opposing the committee bill on the floor, but, sensing the sentiment of the Senate, he did not press for a record vote on his substitute.

He contended the bill would take care of only 100,000, or about one-third of the total veterans who could not trace their disabilities to service origin. His substitute would have provided a disability allowance or pension of from $12 to $40 a month, depending on the degree of disability.

Opponents of the Reed plan contended it was inadequate and expressed surprise that it should have been brought in just before the final vote after the finance committee had first tentatively approved and then rejected a Democratic plan based on the same principle, after Republican leaders had consulted Mr. Hoover.

Reed also lost in an attempt to eliminate from the bill a provision to compensate as well as hospitalize veterans who contracted veneral diseases while serving in the war.

Voting for Bill.

Those voting for the bill were:

Republicans—Allen, Blaine, Borah, Capper, Couzens, Cutting, Dale, Deneen, Glenn, Goldsborough, Hale Hatfield, Herbert, Howell, Johnson, Jones, LaFollette, McCullough, McMaster, McNary, Metcalf, Norris, Oddie, Patterson, Phipps, Pine, Robinson (Indiana), Robison (Kentucky), Shortridge, Steiwer, Thomas (Idaho), Townsend, and Vendenberg—33.

Farmer-Labor—Shipstead.

Total, 66.

The measure as passed liberalizes existing law by providing a presumption of service incurrence or aggravation for disabilities becoming manifest to a 10 per cent degree before January 1, 1930. The present presumptive date is January 1, 1925.

Compensation for Family.

It also adds a long list of diseases to the presumptive clause and provides compensation of $8 a month to veterans while being hospitalized for diseases and injuries not incurred in line of duty; $30 a month for wives of these veterans without children; $40 for wives having one child, and $6 additional for those having more than one child.

Any compensation granted under the bill would be paid for not more than three years after its enactment. Meanwhile Congress would make a further study of veterans' relief.

In a statement John Thomas Taylor, chairman of the national legislative committee of the American Legion, called upon the House "to accept the disabled veterans' bill just as it was passed by the Senate."

Taylor said Director Hines, of the Veterans' Bureau, "repeatedly testified before the House and Senate committees that one provision in the bill would save the Government $42,000,000, and that if enacted into law the bill would run for three years."

"Under these circumstances," he said "the bill as passed by the Senate will only cost $32,000,000 and will bring relief to more than 100,000 distressed veterans and their families not now covered by law."

Denying he spoke for the administration, Senator Reed estimated his substitute would have cost about $35,000,000 the first year, as against the latest Hines estimate of $102,000,000, and would reach about $80,000,000 by 1935.

Walsh Answers Attack.

Passage of the committee bill, he argued, would mean this year's 1 per cent reduction in income taxes could not be carried through next year. On the other hand, he added, the tax burden would have to be increased in the December session.

Reed vigorously opposed the provision to compensate veterans who contracted social disease prior to their discharge from service during the war. He characterized this as a "poisonous policy," and said the country would not accept legislation of this nature, "written in such squalid hysteria."

Replying to this argument, Senator Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts, said the Government took men and boys away from home influences and "threw them into an unusual and false condition of living." The Government should not turn its back on these veterans until they are paralyzed, he asserted.

Senator Shortridge also thought this provision "just and merciful," predicting it would save the Government money in the long run.

Senator Norris (Republican), said the President and Mr. Mellon had "failed to give one sentence" of sound argument against the principle embodied in the measure.

"All they say is that we have not enough money," the Nebraskan added.

The legion plan advanced by Senator Bingham would have provided an additional cost of from $25,000,000 to $30,000,000, according to estimates of the Connecticut senator. It would have retained the existing presumptive date of 1925, but added about twenty chronic diseases within the compensation clauses.

Sees Unfair Advantage.

By making the presumptive date 1930, Senator Bingham said, an unfair advantage would accrue to a man with a chronic disease acquired between 1925 and 1930 as he could receive as high as $100 a month, while a man who lost a leg on the battlefield could get only $49.

Senator Watson said the committee made a mistake when it did not approve the legion plan. He added the legion was "only advocating this bill now because they fear if they don't they won't get anything."

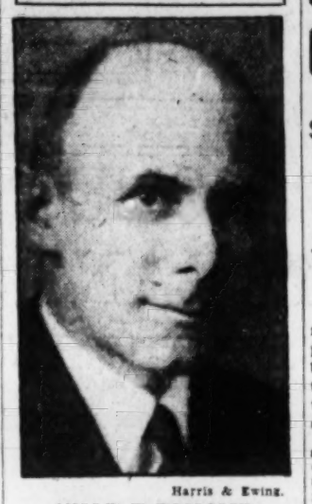
"They are wrong in that," the Indianan asserted, "because this Senate will never adjourn until it passes a veterans' bill."

Senator Barkley (Democrat), Kentucky, argued this year's tax cut of $160,000,000 was for the benefit of wealthy taxpayers and to help stimulate the stock market.

"It was only temporary," he said, adding, "suppose it is necessary to increase taxes. If veterans are dying on the average of 75 a day, why haggle over the possibility of discontinuing the tax cut next year?"

House Republicans will caucus tonight and there were indications last night that an attempt might be made to work out a compromise more suitable to President Hoover, in event the pending bill is vetoed.

NEW DRY CZAR



Harris & Ewing.

AMOS W. W. WOODCOCK, who was named director of the Bureau of Prohibition in the Department of Justice yesterday.

WOODCOCK CHOSEN DRY BUREAU'S HEAD

FIRST STEP IN NEW PLAN

Col. Amos W. Woodcock, United States district attorney at Baltimore and special assistant to President Hoover's crime commission, has accepted the position of director of the Prohibition Bureau, Attorney General Mitchell announced yesterday. Mr. Woodcock will assume the duties of dry czar July 1, when the Prohibition Bureau's transfer from the Treasury to the Justice Department becomes effective.

Mr. Woodcock's appointment was hailed as the first step in a reorganization plan that the administration hopes will appreciably improve enforcement of the dry laws.

It was intimated that the next move in the reorganization scheme will lie in the reduction of the 26 existing prohibition districts to 11, in conformance with the territory of the judicial districts. Closer cooperation between enforcement and prosecution agencies is expected to result.

Under tentative plans, New York City would become headquarters for the entire State and Southern New England, while Philadelphia would be made another headquarters. Similar consolidations will be effected in other districts.

In announcing Mr. Woodcock's acceptance late yesterday afternoon, Attorney General Mitchell said that his record as district attorney at Baltimore had been the determining factor in his selection for the post. "Mr. Woodcock has gained the respect of his State for the fair, fearless and efficient manner in which he has performed his duties," the Attorney General said.

Mr. Woodcock was born in Salisbury, Md., 47 years ago. He was graduated from St. John's College at Annapolis, and later from the law school of the University of Maryland. He obtained his master's degree at Harvard.

After serving as assistant attorney general of Maryland from 1920 to 1922, he was appointed to the position that he will resign to become chief of the dry forces.

He served with distinction with the 115th Infantry in France, and was cited for gallantry in action.

Dr. James M. Doran, present Commissioner of Prohibition, will be placed in charge of industrial alcohol distribution.

Mr. Woodcock was in Washington yesterday conferring with Justice Department heads.

COMMITTEE VOTES CRIME GROUP CURB

Senators Hold It to Dry Law Study and Allow Only $50,000 for Work.

JONES LONE DISSENTER

(Associated Press.)

Restriction of the Hoover Law Enforcement commission to a study of prohibition alone was voted yesterday by the Senate appropriation committee in limiting its fund for next year to $50,000, instead of the $250,000 asked by the administration.

The committee overwhelmingly adopted the amendment of Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, adding $50,000 to the second deficiency bill for the commission. The House eliminated the $250,000 fund on a point of order.

Chairman Jones was the sole member of the appropriations committee to vote against the Glass amendment and gave notice after the bill was reported to the Senate that he would offer an amendment to increase the fund to $250,000 with authority to inquire generally into law enforcement, as it has undertaken to do in the first year of its life.

Senator Glass was determined last night to hold the commission to the $50,000 appropriation.

"Some members of the committee suggested not giving them any appropriation," he said. "I want the Senate to know that the commission has spent more money for furniture for its office than it has for investigating prohibition."

The committee agreed also to give the commission the $80,000 unexpended from its $250,000 fund of this year.

Another dispute faced the bill in the announcement of Senator Hayden (Democrat), Arizona, that he would try to eliminate the $16,660,000 for starting work on building Canyon Dam. Hayden submitted a minority report.

Alarmed over a possible filibuster over the Boulder Dam appropriation, Senate leaders were prepared to submit a cloture resolution to limit debate.

Senator Jones submitted the measure to the Senate yesterday and planned to take it up today. It carries $70,000,000 to meet emergency needs in various sections of the country.

Mad Slayer Sends New Death Threat

Queens Maniac Blamed for Letter to Dealer Demanding Data.

New York, June 23 (A.P.).—Examining further suspects and puzzling over a new "death" note, the police tonight were still without a definite clew to the identity of the mad assassin of Queens, although almost two weeks have elapsed since the second of his two victims was killed.

A ninth letter purporting to come from the slayer, who signs himself "3-X," was received by Meyer Newmark, newsdealer, of Brooklyn. The letter threatens dire consequences unless Newmark returns certain documents, designated by the symbols, "U. J. 4-3-44."

A new theory—that the maniac may be posing as a woman—was advanced after police heard the story of a group of picnickers in Queens, who said some one dressed as a woman accosted them and asked for a ride to Manhattan. When the ride was refused, the stranger left and one of the picnickers noticed trousers beneath the "woman's" skirts.

COLLEGE ATHLETE REPORTS HOLDUP

old-up to John Hinkel, a graduate of Notre Dame and Columbia School of Journalism, with whom he had been living for the last fourt days at 1624 Varnum street northwest. Hinkel advised his friend to make a report to a policeman on the beat, which he did.

Detectives James Springman and James F. Collins, who rushed to the scene believing the Service Pharmacy at Fourteenth and L streets had been held up, took Smith to the Second Precinct, where they questioned him concerning the affair.

Tried to Cash Check.

They learned that Smith had visited a cousin in the afternoon in an attempt to cash a check to make a trip to his fiancee at Bowling Green, Ky. He had been turned down, the detectives say, and at 6:30 he went into the Service Drug Store and called for his suitcase and topcoat, which he had left two hours earlier.

He asked permission to use a private telephone and was refused. A clerk said that he then gave Smith a coin to use a public telephone and that Smith told him that he had just been held up in Winchester, Va., and had been robbed of money and his automobile.

Smith later denied the the incident, despite the fact that the clerk picked him out of a group in the captain's office in the precinct station.

Smith, after being questioned, was released. Before entering Washington and Lee, he was a star athlete for three years at Augusta Military Academy, Fort Defiance, Va. He was half back this last season at W. and L., in his first year in varsity football.

Fliers Near 300 Hours In Endurance Attempt

Chicago, Ill., June 23 (A.P.).—With the two-thirds mark passed and the 300-hour mark within reach, John and Kenneth Hunter sailed around the Sky-Harbor Airport in a broiling sun today in high hopes of beating with their plane, the "City of Chicago," the 420-hour world's endurance flight record.

At 4:40 p. m., the twelfth day in the air was ended, but the brothers said in notes that thirteen was not a "hoo-doo" to them, and that they expeced to be still in the air at the end of the week. The two-thirds mark, 280 hours, was passed at 8:40 a. m. today.

Representative Taylor Has Tonsil Operation

Dr. Davies said that his 71-year-old patient experienced no undue effects, and would probably leave the hospital within the next few days. The operation was Mr. Tayler's second within two weeks, Dr. Davies having removed one of his tonsils on June 11.

IMMIGRATION SLASH OF ONE-HALF ASKED

QUICK ACTION UNLIKELY

(Associated Press.)

A 50 per cent cut in immigration was proposed yesterday to relieve unemployment.

Chairman Johnson, of the House immigration committee, made the proposition in a resolution to make the reduction effective during the fiscal year 1931.

In an informal statement, however, he conceded that there is little likelihood that his measure will be adopted at this session, but expressed belief that it will be passed next winter, and if it proved effective, will be made a permanent law.

European and other countries included in the quota system would be allowed to send in but half the number of their respective quotas, while Mexico, Canada, Cuba and Newfoundland, not included in the quota system, would be limited to half the number of their nationals who entered during the year ending last April 30. Other countries of the Western Hemisphere would be allowed a minimum of 500 for the year.

To insure that the reduction would cut down the influx of alient labor, the resolution proposes that in no case would an immigration visa be issued unless the consular official receiving an application was convinced tha tthe applicant's admission "would be not detrimental to employment conditions in this country."

Canada's allotment under the terms of the resolution would be 24,207, Mexico's 9,470, Cuba's 1,778 and New foundland's 1,501.

No agriculturists would be admitted from Europe, and their places in the quotas would be taken by relatives of American citizens. No change would be made in the present regulations which permit the entry of skilled labor where a legitimate need for it was shown.

Engineer Explains Ohio Dam Expense

$95,000,000 Would Provide $60,000,000 in Benefit, Brown Asserts.

(Associated Press.)

Testimony that it would require $95,000,000 of dams to give the upper Ohio region $60,000,000 of benefits was given to the House flood control committee yesterday by Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of Army engineers. Gen. Brown based the figures upon a preliminary study by engineers and said they were conservative estimates.

Questioned by Representative Dunbar (Republican), Indiana, the general said that it would be possible, from an engineering standpoint, to lower the flood stage at Pittsburgh by the construction of eleven dams on the upper Ohio and the Monongahela Rivers. He suggested, however, that it would be unwise to formulate a definite policy for flood control on the Ohio until Army engineers complete their survey of the stream and its tributaries. He advanced the opinion that the dam project on the upper Ohio would not have a great effect on the flood stage at Cairo, Ill.

N. A. ROCKEFELLER WEDS MARY CLARK

DEPART ON WORLD TOUR

Cynwyd, Pa., June 23 (A.P.).—Miss Mary Todhunter Clark, of Cynwyd, and Nelson Aldrich Rockefeller, second son of John D. Rockefeller, jr., of New York, were married this afternoon in the Protestant Episcopal Church of St. Asaph's, of Cynwyd.

The marriage linked one of the most prominent of the old families of Philadelphia to one of the richest in the world.

The wedding took place amid a rich setting of flowers and in the presence of a company of guests that comfortably filled the beautiful church in the Philadelphia suburb.

A wedding reception to which about 700 persons were invited, also was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Perry H. Clark, the bride's parents, in Cynwyd, and later the newly wedded pair left on a honeymoon around the world. Upon their return they will go to the estate of Mr. Rockefeller's father, Pocantico Hills, at Tarrytown, N. Y., where they will occupy a new home built for them by the bridegroom's father.

One Ring in Ceremony.

The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. Benjamin N. Bird, rector of the church. The ceremony of the new Episcopal Prayer Book was used, in which the word "obey" does not appear. One ring was used.

Mrs. Robert Page, jr., and Mrs. Philip Wallis, sister of the bride, were matrons of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Gwendolyn Roberts and Miss Eleanor Clark, cousins of the bride; Mrs. David Milton, of New York, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Laura Wayne, Miss Catherine Clothier and Miss Alice Lippincott, of Philadelphia; Miss Genevieve Bell, of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Beverly Coleman, of Washington.

John D. Rockefeller 3d was best man, and the ushers were Lawrence and Winthrop Rockefeller, brothers of the bridegroom; John French, jr., Thacher Brown, jr., William Alton, and Lawrence Dickey, all of New York; Stacey B. Lloyd, jr., and William Cochran, Baltimore, and Percy H. Clark, jr., and George Clark, brothers of the bride.

Throng Outside Church.

Mr. Rockefeller, who was recently graduated from Dartmouth College, will be 22 years old on July 8, while the bride was 23 last Tuesday. She is a graduate of Foxcroft School, Leesburg, Va., and after her graduation she took a degree at the Sorbonne, Paris.

A throng of people was about the grounds of St. Asaph's Church when the wedding party and guests arrived. The curious were kept well away from the church by a detail of police.

The bride was attired in a gown of ivory duchess satin made with the new high waistline, the skirt falling from a small yoke to the floor. The formal court train was inserted with a broad panel of rare old lace extending from the shoulders. The waist also had a yoke of the same lace and long satin sleeves. The veil was of ivory tulle trimmed with orange blossoms and calla lilies. The bride carried madonna lilies and white spray orchids.

A list of the wedding presents was not given out, but it is known the bride received from her husband a pin set with a number of beautifully cut diamonds. Mr. Rockefeller's parents gave their daughter-in-law a necklace of matched pearls.

DAY IN CONGRESS

SENATE.

Met at noon and recessed at 7:30 p. m. to noon today.

By a vote of 66 to 6 passed the modified House bill liberalizing provisions of the World War veterans' act of 1924.

Foreign relations committee approved the London naval treaty.

Appropriations committee adopted the Glass amendment to the deficiency bill to provide $50,000 for the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission and restricting the commission's activity to the investigation of prohibition.

Judiciary committee ordered favorably reported a House bill to provide an additional Federal judge for Florida.

Received the nominations of Oscar R. Luhring, of Indiana, and Joseph W. Cox, of Washington, D. C., to be Associate Justices of the District of Columbia Supreme Court.

Sent the District of Columbia appropriation bill back to conference.

Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, introduced a resolution declaring that it is the sense of the Senate that $9,000,000 is not a sufficient Federal contribution toward the support of the District of Columbia government.

HOUSE.

Met at noon and adjourned at 4:45 p. m. to noon today.

Chairman Johnson, of the immigration committee, introduced a resolution proposing a 50 per cent reduction in the immigration quotas for the fiscal year 1931.

Passed and sent to the Senate the Bachman bill to create an additional Federal district court in West Virginia.

Passed and sent to the Senate bills authorizing the appointment of one additional Federal district judge for Louisiana, one for the Western district of Oklahoma, and one for the Eastern district of Michigan.

Interstate commerce committee decided to report favorably on its redraft of the Senate resolution proposing to prohibit railroad consolidations through holding companies unless approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Rear Admiral George Rock, chief of the Bureau of Construction, appeared before the naval committee and declared that the United States would not have naval parity with Great Britain until all American ships of the line are modernized.

Representative Bachmann (Republican), West Virginia, asserted that he believed the Communist committee should look into reports from Berlin that American Communists plan "extensive propaganda in this country next September.

Representative Howard (Democrat), Nebraska, introduced a resolution requesting Speaker Longworth to ask President Hoover and Secretary Mellon "to refrain from uttering any more prophetic warnings that the bejeweled goddess of prosperity in her ship with silken sails is in the offing."

CHICAGO CHURCHES JOIN IN CRIME DRIVE

Protestant Congregations to Aid in War Prompted by Lingle Slaying.

M'GURN GOES ON TRIAL

Chicago, June 23 (A.P.).—With a former city hall employe named as the slayer of Jacke Lingle, Tribune crime reporter, and formal declaration of Protestant churches to aid the war to eradicate organized crime and snap the bond between it and politics, the campaign to free Chicago of gang domination proceeded today, but without tangible results.

James (Red) Forsythe was the man indicated by the police as the actual slayer of Lingle, who was shot down from behind two weeks ago today in the pedestrian subway that leads from the Public Library under Michigan avenue to the Illinois Central Station at Randolph street. It was said that persons who saw the assassin drop his pistol near Lingle and escape in the crowd had declared Forsythe's description tallied with the man they saw in the subway.

If any reason was known for the slaying of Lingle by Forsythe, it was not announced, and regret was expressed by State's attorney's assistants pursuing the investigation that his name had been published as the one who committed the murder.

Simon Gorman, who also was formerly employed by the city; Frank Noonan, alleged labor racketeer, and Frank Foster, former George (Bugs) Moran henchman, but more recently aligned with the Scarface Al Capone mob, also were sought.

Forsythe, Gorman and Noonan, police believe, formed Lingle's execution squad, Forsythe firing the fatal shot from a pistol formerly owned by Foster.

Another of gangland's notorious members, "Machine Gun Jack," McGurn went to trial today on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. He was once indicted in connection with the St. Valentine's Day massacre of seven Moran gangsters in 1929, but was later freed. Three of his friends, George "Red" Barker, Bernard O'Donnell and "Three-Fingered Jack" White, will be tried on concealed weapon charges after McGurn's trial.

The churches acted through the political action committee of the Chicago Federation of Churches, which represents every Protestant denomination in the city. It was announced that Catholic and Jewish churches would be invited to join the clean-up drive.

"The churches have access to 90 per cent of Chicago's population," said Dr. Philip Yarrow, militant reformer and chairman of the commission. "They represent the law-abiding element. We propose to swing this 90 per cent of the population against the 1 per cent which composes the actual criminal element. This is the 'cause' of which the churches long have felt the need into which to throw their strength."

E. O. Zabel, a neighbor living at 916 Irving street, said he had been working in the rear of his room when he heard a shot and an instant later Hilda appeared in an upstairs window of her home, screaming hysterically.

"Oh, Mr. Zabel," he said she shrieked, "come quick. I've shot my little brother."

Mr. Zabel ran to the front door of the Berman home, where he was admitted by Hilda. In the front room he found little David lying on the floor in a pool of blood, an ugly wound at the base of his skull and a gaping hole in his forehead where the bullet had emerged after passing completely through the child's brain.

He called police of the Twelfth Precinct, who hurried the lad to Sibley Hospital where, despite every effort of Dr. Howard Parker to save him, he died an hour later.

Parents Are Notified.

After questioning Hilda, the police notified her parents of the accident and then went to the upper floor of the house where they found the weapon in a bureau drawer where the girl had hidden it after firing the shot. The gun was said to have been one of two which Mr. Berman kept in his home.

Hilda was taken to the Receiving Home for Children at the House of Detention, where she will be held pending action of the coroner's jury. The shooting was entered upon the police records as accidental.

Mr. and Mrs. Berman and another daughter, Lillian, 17 years old, were prostrated by the tragedy last night, as were also other close relatives, who were called. Mr. Berman, however, was the only one who knew that his son was dead; his wife still believed that the lad would recover.

News of Death Is Withheld.

The parents and Lillian had been taken to the hospital by Mr. Zabel, and were in the anteroom eagerly awaiting news of the boy's condition at 4:40 o'clock when he died, just an hour and a half after receiving his wound.

Hospital attendants notified Mr. Zabel of the death, but because of the nervous state of the mother and daughter, he withheld the news from them and drove them home where they were given medical treatment to quiet their hysteria.

David Berman was a pupil in the seventh grade at Langley School, where he was considered unusually bright and had skipped two grades. Hilda is in the fifth grade at the Brookland School.

of Commerce of the State of New York, where he followed his usual custom of announcing that he appeared merely as the spokesmen for his men, who deserved as much credit as he, and took up most of the time introducing officers of his expedition and calling on each one for a few words.

During the afternoon he attended to duties incident to demobilization of his little army and in early evening went to Brooklyn to attend a dinner given in honor of Bernt Balchen, chief pilot of the expedition, by the Norsemen Lodge, No. 878 Free and Accepted Masons. The dinner was scheduled for 6 o'clock so that the admiral would have time to return to Manhattan to deliver a broadcast talk between 9 and 10 over the network of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Antarctic Described on Air.

Describing the Antarctic as the world's last frontier, Admiral Byrd pictured that frozen territory in his radio speech and stressed his belief that much more Antarctic exploration will be required to solve its mysteries.

Icy wastes where penguins and seals are the only native life were described by the admiral, who illustrated the vast extent of the territory by pointing out that its 4,500,000 square miles are about equal to the areas of the United States and Mexico combined. He said that the Antarctic might one day develop unsuspected power.

Mysterious Floating Mass.

The great Ross barrier, a mysterious floating mass which has defied the inquiries of science, was described in some detail.

"The mysterious Ross barrier is 500 miles long," said Admiral Byrd. "It is afloat, and despite our investigations, it is still somewhat of a mystery. Entirely of snow to the water line, it becomes solid ice beneath the surface."

On this floating mass the expedition camped part of the time. Admiral Byrd said huge icebergs kept breaking from the barrier. He told of one 30 miles long. To escape being flung into the sea, the expedition chose a camp well back from the edge.

Dog and Penguins Fight.

Admiral Byrd devoted a part of his speech to his dog, Igloo. The animal began his association with the explorer on his North Pole expedition. Although able to stand considerable cold, Igloo could not endure 32 degrees below zero in little America, consequently the explorer made an "Esquimau suit for Igloo, with boots, which enabled him to venture out when the thermometer was 60 below."

The explorer told an amusing incident regarding Igloo's first meeting with the penguins, who "were almost human in their droll dignity." Igloo, he said, attacked the birds, but could not "lick them." Afterward he treated them with much more respect.

Tomorrow the admiral goes to Albany to be received by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt. He leaves a North River pier at 6 o'clock in the morning on the destroyer Bainbridge and will return in the afternoon by train.

Escaping Prisoner Recaptured.

Escaping from the patrol wagon carrying prisoners to court yesterday morning, Isadore Wagner, colored, 24 years old, of Pierce street northwest, fled four blocks before he was captured by Private William Lucas, of the Fourth Precinct. Wagner was arrested on a charge of attempt at larceny and concealed weapons and was facing a hearing on these charges.

CHICAGO HEAT KILLS SEVEN; WEST SEARS

RAIN TO BRING RELIEF

Chicago, June 23 (A.P.).—Hot blasts from the Southwest today drove the thermometer in Chicago to a record height for this day of the year and caused seven persons to die.

Relief from the wave, which started its scorching march over the Middle West yesterday, was promised for tonight with the forecast of showers.

Chicago's temperature late this afternon stood at 97, bettering by 2 degrees the record for June 23 set in 1923, and coming within 2 degrees of equaling the record for any month of June. It also was the hottest day thus far this year.

Early reports from many other points in the central portion of the country indicated the fall of heat records may be more or less general. Centralia, Ill., which yesterday registered a temperature of 105, started today sweltering at 96.

The lake shore in Chicago from Evanston to beyond the Indiana line, was crowded with bathers seeking relief in the still cool water of Lake Michigan.

Two of the dead in the city were unidentified. One, a laborer, was found suffering a heat stroke in the courtyard of a West Side apartment building. He died on the way to the hospital. Another walked into a dentist's office, asked to have an aching tooth treated and collapsed in the dentist's chair.

Mrs. Fannie Rosenthal, 48, died at her home, and Herman Putsch, 58, succumbed while sitting in his automobile. Both died of heart failure superinduced by the heat.

Slashed Girl Tells Of Extortion Plot

Informs Police Trio Injured Her After Failure to Get $30,000.

Fergus Falls, Minn., June 23 (A.P.).—Found bound and with her face and body slashed, Viola Holt, 18, daughter of a wealthy Ottertail County farmer, today told a story of an attempt by three men to extort $30,000 on threats of death to members of her family.

The girl, who is in a Pelican Rapids hospital today, told authorities she met three men near a slough last night, after she had received a series of notes threatening death to her father, her mother and a younger brother unless she paid the writers $30,000.

She said she went to the slough, as directed, met the three men and told them she could not get the money. Angered, her story goes, the men seized her, threatened death, and bound her. Afterward one of them, she said, slashed her across the face and body with a knife.

SENATE COMMITTEE FILES PACT REPORT

16 TO 4 VOTE IS CAST

After an exhaustive review of precedents concerning the treaty power since the adoption of the Constitution, Senator Shipstead makes the following summary:

"1. Both in its origin and in American treaty-making practice for over 100 years, the Senate, under the Constitution, is a component part of the treaty-making power, and as such, has complete power over the subject matter of negotiation both antecedent thereto and attendant thereupon.

Lodge Term Quoted.

"2. The so-called treaty drafted by negotiators is, in fact, as well stated by Senator Lodge, 'inchoate, a mere treaty form' unless it becomes a treaty by advice and consent of two-thirds of the Senate.

"3. The treaty power residing in the people is conferred for treaty-making purposes by the Constitution upon the executive and the Senate, who are coequals working by coordination—and both the Executive and the Senate are sworn to maintain and uphold the Constitution.

"4. The treaty-making powers of the Senate, as of the Executive, extend to every stage of the negotiation—prior there to and during negotiation, and culminate advice and consent for purposes of ratification.

Interpretation of Phrase.

"5. Power over the subject matter included full and free access to all pertinent and relevant papers—note exchanges, diplomatic understandings, letters, telegrams, memoranda, all collateral evidence defining the meaning, the concrete application and ultimate purpose of the negotiation.

"6. These principles have been crystallized in the practice of the Executive and Senate from the day of Washington and Monroe down to the present time. No precedent can be cited wherein the Executive hitherto, as a member of the coordinate treaty-making power, has refused his coequal in treaty making, the Senate of the United States, a request for papers pertinent to the consideration of a proposed treaty.

"The Supreme Court, in the language of Justice Brewer, finds there is 'something which shocks the conscience' in withholding a proviso from 'one of the contracting parties,' even though an Indian."

Conclusion by Shipstead.

In his conclusion, Senator Shipstead says:

"I do not attempt to define the scope of the Secretary of State in having 'confidences abroad.' I respect the chivalry which can not 'in honor' divulge the secrets of his relations with the 'mistress of the sea.'

"In my judgment, the great issue before us is not whether we shall be limited to build 8-inch cruisers, or 6-inch cruisers, but whether or not the Constitution, as understood by those who framed it, shall be maintained as a living force, and shall exist in works as in words—whether or not the Americanism of Washington and Monroe, of Jackson and Cleveland, of Lincoln and Grant, shall abide from this day on, as it has for nearly five generations of the Republic."

Senator Johnson's minority report may be ready today. The chief object of Senator La Follette's resolution concerning secret documents so far submitted to the committee is to enable senators to use contents of these documents in their speeches on the floor.

Senators in Air Speeches.

Opposition to the London naval treaty will be voiced this week by Senator Kenneth McKeller (Democrat), of Tennessee, and Senator Arthur R. Robinson (Republican), of Indiana, in addresses over National Broadcasting Co. networks.

Senator McKeller will speak from 7 to 7:30 p. m., Eastern standard time, tomorrow. His subject will be "A Reply to Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, on the London Naval Treaty." Senator Reed spoke over the N. B. C. last Thursday.

Senator Arthur Robinson will speak Friday afternoon from 12:45 to 1 o'clock Eastern standard time. His speech is a reply to Senator Joseph T. Robinson (Democrat), of Arkansas, who spoke last Saturday over the N. B. C. under the auspices of the National Grange. The speech Friday will be under the National Grange's auspices.

Fairfax's Owners Sue Tanker Firm for Crash

New York, June 23 (A.P.).—Suit for $50,000 was begun today by the Merchants & Miners Transportation Co., owners of the steamship Fairfax, against the Lake Tankers Corporation, owners of the sunken tanker Pinthis. The action was an outgrowth of a collision off the Massachusetts coast in which 48 lives were lost. The Pinthis owners already have filed a $350,000 suit against the Fairfax owners.

Papers in today's suit, brought in Federal district court, claimed that the Fairfax was in every way a seaworthy vessel and was being navigated properly when the Pinthis loomed out of the fog. The Fairfax could not avoid the collision, the papers averred.

Woman Leaves $40,000 For Burial Plot Care

Georgia A. Wentworth, who died June 19, left the bulk of her estate to individuals, but provided that $40,000 be held in trust to care for family burial plots and other family property in New Hampshire and for the benefit of the library and school at Jackson, N. H. Edward E. Sastings and Hugh W. Hastings, both of Fryeburg, Me., are designated as executors and trustees of the estate. The woman's will was filed yesterday for probate in District of Columbia Supreme Court. No estimate of the value of the estate was disclosed.

After making specific bequests of more than $50,000 to residents of New England and Washington and providing for the trust funds, the woman left the residuary estate to J. Brackett Hurlin, Alice T. Hurlin, Henry M. Wiggin and Georgiana Wiggin.. Attorney E. H. McLachlen appears for the estate.

U. S. NAVY REPAIRS NEEDED FOR PARITY

BRITISH STILL FASTER

(Associated Press.)

The contention that the United States will have battleship parity with Great Britain only when all the Navy's ships of the line have been modernized was advanced yesterday before the House naval affairs committee by Rear Admiral George H. Rock, chief of the Naval Bureau of Construction and Repairs.

Even with all of them modernized, he said, the battleships of the British fleet would have greater speed.

Admiral Rock urged enactment of bills to authorize $30,000,000 to modernize three capital ships and complete the present Navy modernization program. He said the need for such legislation was "urgent."

Admiral Rock said the modernization would in no way conflict with the terms of the London treaty.

Seven of the fifteen battleships which the United States would retain under the London pact have been modernized or are in the process of modernization.

The work on the three additional ships contemplates increasing their speed by the substitution of new boilers and more powerful engines, and increasing the range of their guns by alterations to permit their greater elevation.

Secretary Adams will appear Thursday.

Second Torch Murder Attempted by Burglar

New York, June 23 (A.P.).—The second "torch murder" in a month was attempted in Brooklyn today, when Mrs. Rebecca Hirsh, 35, was attacked in her home by a young man who demanded her jewels, bound and gagged her and set fire to her clothes.

Mrs. Hirsh worked her gag loose, kicked the telephone over and screamed. The telephone operator called police. The assailant escaped. About a month ago Mrs. Rose Black was attacked in her apartment, slashed and burned to death by an unidentified assailant.

War Department Buys 876 Airplane Engines

The War Department yesterday approved contracts for 876 new airplane engines, costing $5,336,559. The expenditure will cover a contract for $3,802,763, awarded to the Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Co. of Hartford, Conn., for 684 "Wasp" 450-horsepower engines, and one for $1,533,796 to the Curtiss Airplane & Motor Co. of New York for 40 engines of 420 horsepower and 152 engines of 600 horsepower.

The 876 engines will be installed in 402 new airplanes, for which contracts were recently awarded, involving an expenditure of $5,963,419.

Police-Fire Pay Bill Report Wins in House

The Capper-Zihlman bill, raising the pay of policemen and firemen, cleared its next-to-the-last legislative hurdle late yesterday, when the House approved the conference report on the measure.

The Senate is expected to do likewise, as soon as the veterans' relief bill is out of the way. Once the Senate has acted, congressional action will be completed and the bill then will be ready to go to the President.

AMERICAN DOCTORS CONVENE IN DETROIT

President M. K. Harris Mak Plea Against Tendency to Socialize Profession.

12,000 ATTEND SESSION

Detroit, Mich., June 23 (A.P.).—The responsibility of the doctor to society and the problem of the growing socialization of the medical profession formed the principal topics of discussion at the initial sesion of the eighty-first convention of the American Medical Association here today.

Two high officers of the association, President M. K. Harris, M. D., and President-elect William Gerry Morgan, M. D., appeared before the delegates.

Dr. Harris made a plea for medical centers owned and controlled by the profession as a means of counteracting the growing tendency of State direction of doctors.

"Medicine," said he, "is being besieged on every side by forces that are constantly growing stronger and stronger, and unless some defensive effort is made to break the seige, the profession must eventually capitulate and become socialized and physicians become employes of the State.

Dr. Harris advocated the incorporation of county medical societies for business purposes, with the establishment of centers for persons unable to pay the regular fees.

Such centers should be controlled by the profession itself, he said.

Dr. Morgan warned members of the profession to protect themselves against exploitation by hospitals and argued that as the doctor contributes his bit to charity both as a citizen and as a taxpayer he should not be required to make a double contribution through hospitals. Physicians, he contended, are no more obligated to provide for the care of the indigent sick than their fellow citizens.

Approximately 12,000 physicians and scientists and their families are attending the five-day convention. A number of papers, dealing with discoveries in the healing art made during the past year, were presented at sectional meetings.

Wet Plank Fight Faced by Morrow

Both Jersey Parties Meet Today, With Tendencies Aainst Dries.

Trenton, N. J., June 23 (N.Y.W. N.S.).—The sentiment of the two major political parties toward the liquor question, as reflected in their platforms in New Jersey, will be extremely liberal for the first time in any State since prohibition was enacted, it was forecast tonight as Republican and Democratic delegates gathered for their respective State conventions here tomorrow.

Democratic wetness is a foregone conclusion. In the G. O. P. ranks, however, indications were that dry leaders would fight for redemption of their principles in the platform.

Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, nominee for the United States Senate, as the result of his outstanding victory in the primary, is regarded as the one man who can smooth the differences between the wets and drys in his party. Republican leaders who met here today to outline plans for tomorrow's session agreed they would follow the Ambassador's views on repeal of the eighteenth amendment and return of liquor control to the States as closely as possible in drawing the platform.

Cotton Man Killed By Enraged Cook

American Slain in Mexico Restaurant When Employe Runs Amuck.

Mexico City, June 23 (A.P.).—Anton E. Westendorff, an American cotton buyer formerly of Houston, Tex., was shot and killed in Torreon Saturday night by a Negro cook who ran amuck in a restaurant. Messages received today from Westerndorff's friends in Torreon announced the shooting. H. W. Garrow, his partner, also formerly of Houston, was wounded.

Westerndorff and Garrow were dining in the restaurant of the Hotel Salvador when Matt Garrett, Negro cook, said to be an American, got into a shooting affray with a Mexican. Garrow intervened, and the Negro shot him. The bullet missed Garrow but pierced the heart of Westerndorff, who had remained seated at the table.

On a second shot Garrow fell to the floor wounded in the chest. He was taken to the hospital and is expected to recover. Westerndorff's body has been sent to Houston. The Negro was jailed.

CONFEREES TO MEET TODAY ON CITY BILL

WISEACRES HAVE HOPE

the House yesterday, Representative Cramton declared that as yet the Senate had had no record vote on the question of how much the Federal Government should contribute toward the city government.

"I hope," he said, "that the House conferees will not be in any hurry to compromise on this Senate amendment until the membership has been given an opportunity to express its sentiment by a record vote."

Senator Bingham was led to introduce his resolution yesterday not only by the statement of Mr. Cramton but by previous statements in the House that he was waging a one-man fight for the $12,000,000 Federal contribution.

Today he hopes to show that the entire Senate, or at least a good majority of it, feels just as he does. He would have liked to have got a roll-call vote yesterday on sending the bill back to conference, but the parliamentary situation was such that this was impossible. At the time the veterans' relief bill had the right of way.

On the surface, the bill appears to be in a hopeless deadlock. The senators say that they will not agree to the bill unless the Federal contribution is increased beyond $9,000,000, and the House conferees say they see no reason why it should be increased beyond that figure.

And yet the wiseacres at the Capitol, those men who have been down there for years and who know the temper of Congress, insist that the bill will pass in the end.

Failure of the bill, they say, would carry consequences that would do the administration no good. Among these would be widespread unemployment among those who would work on the streets and school buildings here.

Unless some agreement is reached early today, the Senate and House conferees will go into the conference this afternoon in the same mood in which they broke up more than a week ago.

The situation at that time was this: Although the Senate conferees had originally insisted on a $12,000,000 contribution, they offered to compromise and place the figure at a point between $12,000,000 and $9,000,000. The House conferees, however, refused to give in, saying that the Senate conferees had produced no facts to show that $9,000,000 was not enough.

There has been nothing since then to indicate that either side has weakened, and yet, as has been said, those who should know insist that the bill eventually will be passed.

There has been some talk that the Senate might agree to the bill if the House agreed to the creation of a commission to settle the controversy over the Federal contribution, but it can be said authoritatively that the Senate conferees are unanimously opposed to such a compromise.

As a matter of fact, it looks as though the only way in which the bill can be passed is for the House to provide a little more money and, according to the aforementioned Capitol wiseacres, that is what probably will happen.

CANNON AGAIN HIT IN TINKHAM CLAIM

he repeated that portion of his speech.

Bishop Cannon replied in a statement that Mr. Tinkham had failed to reiterate all the charges made in his speech.

Mr. Tinkham said in his statement yesterday that Bishop Cannon "has made no denial of this charge nor has he taken any action against me," and added that "his silence on this point can be construed by intelligent people everywhere as an admission of guilt."

The text of Mr. Tinkham's statement read:

"Divested of my congressional immunity, I have over my signature publicly charged Bishop Cannon with being a shameless violator of a criminal statute in not accounting under the Federal corrupt practices act for $48,300 contributed to him by E. C. Jameson. This is the charge I made against him in the House of Representatives, June 17.

"He has made no denial of this charge, nor has he taken any action against me. His silence on this point can be construed by intelligent people everywhere only as an admission of guilt. To save himself the condemnation his act merits, he is now attempting to becloud the true issue, which is his shameless violation of a criminal statute, of which charge and its implications he had an opportunity to clear himself before the Senate lobby investigating committee. I do not propose at this time to assist him in his attempt to becloud the issue."

MELVILLE D. POST, WRITER, SUCCUMBS

Noted Author of Mystery Tales Dies in Hospital at Clarksburg.

STARTED AS ATTORNEY

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 23 (A.P.).—Melville Davisson Post, 59, well-known short-story writer, died today in a hospital here.

While riding a horse on June 10 at his country estate near here, Post was stricken suddenly and was brought to a hospital here. Blood transfusions improved his condition, but he suffered a relapse last Thursday. Varicose veins of the esophagus with complications was the cause of death.

Post was a prolific contributor to American literature. The scenes of many of his works were laid in his native hills of West Virginia. He was especially noted for his mystery stories, among them his "Uncle Abner" series, and "Walker of the Secret Service."

His wife died in 1919. Their only child died in infancy.

Post was trained for the legal profession, but early in life turned to writing. He published his first book, "Strange Schemes of Randolph Mason," in 1896.

Post, a descendant of pioneers of West Virginia, was born April 19, 1871, at Romine's Mill, Harrison County, near the place where later in life he made his home. He was a great-great-grandson of Daniel Davisson, a major in the Revolutionary Army and frontier fighter.

The novelist was graduated from West Virginia University in 1891 when he was but 20 years old. A year later he was awarded the degree of bachelor of laws. After leaving the university, he formed a law partnership and practiced for a few years.

Despite success in the legal profession, the urge to write possessed Post to such an extent that he finally devoted his entire attention to it until his illness.

He married Miss Ann Bloomfield Gamble, of Roanoke, Va., on June 29, 1903.

Admiral Harris Funeral Will Take Place Today

The body of Rear Admiral Uriah R. Harris, who died Friday at the age of 81 at the Naval Hospital, will be buried in Arlington National Cemetery today.

Funeral services will be held at the Brighton Hotel, where he lived, this morning at 11 o'clock. Admiral Harris was a widower and childless.

CAPT. OFFLEY FUNERAL.

Rites for Naval Officer Held Yesterday in California.

Capt. Cleland Nelson Offley, 61 years old, a native of Washington, was buried yesterday in the Presidio of San Francisco. He died last Thursday in the Mare Island Naval Hospital, Mare Island, Calif.

Capt. Offley was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Holmes E. Offley, of Georgetown. He graduated from the Naval Academy in 1889. During the Spanish-American War he served as engineer officer of the Oregon in her famous trip around Cape Horn, and in the battle of Santiago. He was promoted for his services in maintaining a greater speed than the vessel was supposed to be able to make.

He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Margaret Greenleaf, of Georgetown; a daughter, Miss Margaret Offley, and a son, Lieut. Comdr. Archibald Nelson Offley, and also by two brothers and a sister.

HOWARD GREENE RITES.

Funeral Will Be Held from Late Home Today.

Funeral services for Howard Greene will be held this morning at 10:30 o'clock at his late residence, 1519 Thirty-first street northwest. He will be buried in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Greene, an official of the Motion Picture Laboratory of the United States Department of Agriculture, was well known in Washington as an inventor and sportsman. He died at his home Sunday after a short illness. He was 55 years old.

Beauty Queen Dethroned; Crown Given Florida Girl

Officials Find Texas and California Entries Are Ineligible.

Miami, June 23 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The crown of "America's Sweetheart," placed last March 11 on the head of Miss Janet Eastment, "Miss Texas," by the judges of the Miami International Beauty Pageant Association, bounced off that young lady's blonde tresses today at an open meeting here of the officials of the association.

It lightly brushed the head of Miss Alberta McKellop, the "Miss California" of the recent beauty contest, who was awarded second prize in March, and finally came to rest on the head of Miss Margaret Ekdahl, 18-year-old blonde from Tampa, who had previously won third place as "Miss Florida."

Miss Ekdahl's automatic elevation to first place followed disqualification of "Miss Texas" and "Miss California." The former, Miss Eastment, was adjudged ineligible to have competed when evidence was offered that she had been married at Fort Worth in 1924 and divorced last year.

The disqualification of Miss McKellop was based on the fact that she has not been selected as "Miss California" by the people of that State, and that she had been defeated in the Oklahoma contest before entering the beauty pageant here as a competitor.

The charges against the two young women originally adjudged first and second prize winners were brought by R. B. Brossier, Orlando, Fla., publisher. He claimed that Miss Ekdahl was entitled to recognition as "America's Sweetheart" and seeks to obtain for her a trip to Rio de Janeiro offered to the winner of the pageant.

In the course of the meeting at which Miss Ekdahl was formally recognized as the winner of first prize it became known that the silver trophy and $2,500 in cash given Miss Eastment when she was adjudged winner are in her hands. She is "somewhere in the motion picture studios of California." G. A. Trice, president of the Pageant Association, told its officials today that a written demand had been sent to her to return the awards she received. He added that no answer had been received to this communication.

Officials of the association did not discuss at today's meeting the $10,000 suit filed by the Seaboard Air Line against the City of Miami Saturday. The basis of the suit is the allegation that $6,274 in railroad fares had been advanced to various entrants in the beauty contest on a guarantee that the City of Miami would pay the bill. The balance sued for is to cover attorneys' fees.

MISS JANET EASTMENT.

The railroads' suit disclosed that six of the contestants, representing different States and the District of Columbia, came to Miami from Shamokin, Pa. Trice explained that this was a meeting place for the sextet en route here. He also said he knew that several of the contestants did not come from the States they represented in the contest.

Mrs. Campbell Dies Once Nancy Leiter

Widow of British Major Expires at Home in Kent, England.

Nancy Lathrop Carver Campbell, better known to Washington is Nancy Leiter, died Sunday at Broadstairs, Kent, it was learned here yesterday. She had passed little time in Washington since she married Maj. Colin Campbell here in 1904.

She visited occasionally her brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leiter, who occupy the Leiter house on Dupont circle during the winter. Since the death of Maj. Campbell, in 1923, she has lived much of the time in Santa Barbara, Calif., regaining her American citizenship. Mrs. Campbell leaves two daughters and a son, all of whom were with her when she died.

Mrs. Campbell sided with her brother, Joseph, when his trusteeship of their father's estate was attacked by another sister, Lady Marguerite Hyde, countess of Suffolk and Berks, in 1926.

Services for Capital Resident to Be Held Today.

Funeral service for Joseph C. Burger, who died at his home at 658 G street northeast on Sunday, will be held today at 2:30 at the G street address. He will be buried in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Mr. Burger was a native of Germany, but early in life came to this country, where he engaged in the tobacco business until he retired six years ago. He was 84 years old, and had lived in this city for 55 years. Mr. Burger, a widower, is survived by a son and a daughter, Miss Josephine Burger and Clarence W. Burger. He was a member of the Mount Horeb Masonic Chapter, Lebanon Lodge, and the Association of Oldest Inhabitants of the District of Columbia.

W. W. VOELTER FUNERAL.

Drowning Victim to Be Buried in Cedar Hill Today.

William W. Voelter, 45-year-old painter, who was drowned Friday while swimming in the river near Chain Bridge, will be buried this morning at 11 o'clock in Cedar Hill Cemetery. Services will be held at the grave.

The body of Voelter, who lived at 363 K street northwest, was not recovered for nearly two days after the man was drowned. It was identified by F. L. Kidwell, business agent of the Painters Union, which has charge of the funeral.

Bandits Kill Jugoslav Peasant.

Home Products

Southern Dairies sells to the people of the South things which are produced in the South. Those who regularly buy Southern Dairies products will at once agree they are among the very best things produced in the South.

Simply as a distributing agency, and by insisting that these home products invariably shall be of the highest standard of quality, this huge organization has more than earned the modest returns which it has collected.

It has maintained a standard of purity and quality unsurpassed in any section of the world.

But the work of Southern Dairies has gone far beyond this. Because it consistently furnishes the consumer with the best products, at reasonable prices, it has steadily increased the market for these home products.

To keep the supply equal to the demand, it has invested millions in modern, scientific plants in various sections of the Southeastern states—has established modern, sanitary delivery service—and has manned every plant with efficient local executives and workers, making them all local institutions.

These home products are handled by home forces.

The Velvet Kind Ice Cream, one of these wholesome products, is cited by competent authorities as an example of maintained purity and delicious taste. The cream and milk from which it is made come from the finest dairy farms, and the fruits and flavors are the best obtainable.

Conferees Again Get Rivers-Harbors Bill

(Associated Press.)

The decision of House Republican leaders to send the $138,141,902 rivers and harbors omnibus bill to conference indicated last night that the measure that was in the process of formulation for three years would undergo still further revision before final congressional action.

While Chairman Dempsey, of the House rivers and harbors committee, was conferring with President Hoover at the White House on the measure, Chairman Snell, of the House rules committee, and Representative McDuffie, of Alabama, ranking minority leader on the rivers and harbors committee, engaged in debate in the House over the possibility of enactment of the measure.

Madison, Wis., June 23 (A.P.).—Degrees were conferred on 1,587 University of Wisconsin graduates at the seventy-seventh commencement today. Honorary degrees of LL. D. were conferred on Alanson B. Houghton, former Ambassador to Germany, and also William Ripley, Harvard University economist.

Mountain Searchers Scale Crags for Lost Boy Scout

California Lad, Missing Since Friday, Known to Be Suffering From Foot Ailment; Lack of Food Increases Worry of Youth's Parents.

Riverside, Calif., June 23 (A.P.).—Over the rugged, snow-draped crags of Mount San Jacinto, 10,800 feet above the southern California desert, despairing but determined searchers led by veteran Alpinists, hunted tonight for 12-year-old Harold Johnson, Boy Scout son of R. J. Johnson, postmaster at Corona.

Harold strayed from a company of scouts on a hiking expedition last Friday. He had bedding and was versed in mountain and timber lore and known to be resourceful. But the fact that he has a foot ailment and virtually no food caused friends to doubt he might survive until found.

An Army aviator yesterday spied a boy he thought might be Harold, but no trace of him was found by the searching party. The chief fear was that he may have fallen over a cliff and be lying injured and helpless in some canyon or crevasse. Search was to continue into the night despite the growing feeling of its futility.

C. L. Emerson, real estate man, who has lived 30 years at a mountain resort on the mountain, this afternoon led a new party into unexplored ravines. Emerson took up a little known trail—a last hope, he said.

One searcher, an experienced mountaineer, staggered into Banning, having descended the 8,000-foot cliffs of the peak's northern face. Exhausted from his 15-mile struggle down the mountainside, the mountaineer found no trace of the boy. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson waited frantically for reports.

Sprayed Disinfectant Breaks Up Nude Parade

Nelson, B. C., June 23 (A.P.).—Argument and force having failed to dissuade the "Sons of Freedom," a Doukhobor religious sect, from parading without clothing, chemical warfare was used successfully yesterday at Brilliant, B. C.

Police sprayed a disinfectant on the bodies of 26 men and women after they had disrobed during a demonstration. Clothing was hastily redonned and the demonstrators were transported to a camp. The "Sons of Freedom" are a radical wing of an otherwise peaceful and orderly Russian organization.

Byrns Tennessee Senate Candidate

Veteran of House Plans to Give Up Seat as He Enters Race.

Nashville, Tenn., June 23 (A.P.).—Representative Joseph W. Byrns, of the Sixth District, announced this afternoon that he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate.

Mr. Byrns said in his formal statement that he will relinquish his seat in the House, which he has held for eleven terms. He has no opposition from either party for reelection to the House. The ranking Democrat on the House appropriations committee said that in reaching his decision to run for the Senate "I have yielded to an ambition which I have cherished for a number of years and in response to assurances of support from friends in every section of the State."

Mr. Byrns will seek only the long term, beginning in March, and will oppose Representative Cordell Hull, Andrew L. Todd, Dr. John R. Neil and D. W. Dodson for the nomination. Senator William E. Brock, incumbent, is a candidate for only the short term, from November to March. Mr. Brock is opposed for the nomination by Dr. Neil and former Gov. Benton McMillin.

Doctors Declare Typhus Cases Mild

District Health Officer Sees No Reason for Alarm in Existing Cases.

Eight cases of typhus fever reported from nearby Virginia and Maryland offer no cause for public uneasiness, as the disease is of a mild type and shows no indication of reaching an epidemic stage, Dr. C. C. Pierce, of the Public Health Service announced yesterday.

The malady resulted fatally in the case of Harry Gasson, a War Department employe living near Alexandria, but the other seven cases are not regarded as serious. Dr. Pierce said that the Public Health Service's interest in the cases was scientific, rather than an effort to check a health hazard.

Dr. William C. Fowler, District health officer, said there was no reason for public alarm.

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

TRIED AND TRUE!

When tempted to over-indulge

"REACH FOR A LUCKY INSTEAD"

Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Avoid that future shadow* by avoiding over-indulgence, if you would maintain that modern, ever-youthful figure. "Reach for a Lucky instead."

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Lucky Strike has an extra, secret heating process. Everyone knows that heat purifies and so 20,679 physicians say that Luckies are less irritating to your throat.

Your Throat Protection—against irritation—against cough

*"I have come to the conclusion," writes Sir Henry Thompson, M.D., F.R.S., "that more than half the disease that embitters human life is due to avoidable errors in diet." We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky instead," you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight, and by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

THE LINDBERGH BABY.

The Lindbergh baby is born to an illustrious tradition. On his mother's side he is the grandson of a famous diplomat; on his father's side he is the grandson of an immigrant who developed splendid qualities as an American citizen and who served with distinction in Congress. The babe's father won undying fame for achieving one of the most daring feats in the history of man, and who then kept his fame pure by resisting all temptations to exploit it. The mother of this babe is a lovely young woman, possessed of a fine literary gift, and notable for a quiet courage that has made her a fit companion of her skyfaring mate.

This infant has a heritage to which few babes are born, and which is both an asset and a liability. Through his life he will have to fight against being known merely as his father's son. He must dare much if he is to become distinguished in his own right.

The American people congratulate Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh on the birth of their son. The event is of national interest and importance, both because of the high regard in which the parents are held by the people, and because of the confident expectation that a man-child with such antecedents is born to accomplish great things.

NO AUTOMOBILE TRAINS.

There will be general approval of the action of the Federal Court for the Northern District of Ohio in upholding the validity of the statute of that State which limits the length of vehicles on the highways to 30 feet. It is difficult to see wherein that statute works a hardship upon the manufacturers of motor cars, which can be moved from factory to sales office under their own power. Such vehicles as have recently traversed the streets of Washington are ungainly, cumbersome contrivances which seriously interfere with traffic. They are the automotive equivalent of airplane carriers.

Up to the present time these carriers do not appear to have been developed to a size big enough to carry more than five passenger cars, but without legislation to stop their lengthwise growth there is no way of guessing to what extent the automobile builders might go.

The District Court in its decision sustaining the Ohio statute said: "To sustain the legislative purpose, and we agree with the contention, it is urged that the Legislature made the requirement of units not in excess of 30 feet in order to prevent excessive obstruction of the highways on curves and at road and street intersections. It seems to need no extended argument to demonstrate that shorter units will cause less obstruction on curves in roads and at road and street intersections."

It was brought out during the arguments that a police officer in Cleveland, stationed at one of the busy corners, had to halt traffic 20 feet back from the intersection to permit one of these overgrown auto carriers, a semitrailer 50 feet long drawn by a motor truck, to make the turn.

The court in upholding the Ohio law also held that the statute is not contrary to the commerce clause of the Federal Constitution when applied to interstate commerce. This ruling will doubtless inspire the Legislatures of other States to follow the example of Ohio and will also prohibit the use of the streets for the transportation of five or more motor cars upon one trailer, so long as to seriously interfere with traffic.

THE OLFACTOMETER.

Scientists of the Department of Agriculture realize that the effect of scents, perfumes and aromas upon the olfactory nerves of noxious insects must be ascertained if the pests are to be exterminated. Thus for several years past the bug division of the department, having ascertained that the scent of the geranium intrigues the Japanese beetle, has spread through the parks of the Capital a great number of containers holding enough oil of geranium to lure the beetles into the jars. The beetles inveigled into the trap are at once dispatched.

But the particular smell which is most enticing to the European corn-borer has not yet been ascertained, and to supply this deficiency the department has secured a machine known as an "olfactometer," for the purpose of learning just which of the 900 odors, scents, perfumes and smells with which a stalk of maize, or Indian corn, is known to be loaded, is preferred by the borer. Thus far only five of the 900 odors are found to have any attraction for Mr. Borer, but it is hoped before the summer is ended to find one that will prove irresistible in its charm.

Once this has been found, it is probable that the few millions remaining from the original appropriation for the extermination and suppression of the insect will be used in the purchase of traps, which will be baited with the scent. These enticers will be erected in the vicinity of corn patches which are the most affected by the European invader.

While no official estimate has been published as to the number of glass containers that will be required to catch even 1 per cent of the borer population, it is probable that the demand for glass traps will be so great as to materially affect the glass jar market, and perhaps have a decided effect in reducing the number of the unemployed in the glass-blowing industry.

The olfactometer, by the way, might be mistaken by the uninitiated for a huge still, but assurances have been received that in spite of its enormous bulk and its complicated system of pipes, tubes and valves, it is absolutely useless for purposes of distillation and is in no way connected with the still which "Tama Jim" Wilson installed in the department for the purpose of producing alcohol from watermelons, which he did at a cost of $250 a gallon.

When the bugologists finish their experiments with the olfactometer it might be turned over to Senator Brookhart for use in any further investigation he may desire to make as to the convivial habits of his unsuspecting associates.

THE NATIONAL ARBORETUM.

Secretary Hyde's favorable report on the bill authorizing an appropriation of $200,000 for the projected national arboretum should stimulate Congress to early action. Three hundred thousand dollars already has been expended for the purchase of land for the arboretum and an additional $200,000 is needed. The value of land is increasing almost from day to day. It would be good economy to acquire all the tract while the parcels remaining in private hands can still be obtained reasonably.

The national arboretum, in which will be cultivated and exhibited all trees adaptable to America, will enjoy great popularity and will promote the cultivation of timber. Some of the States and a few lesser political subdivisions have created small arboretums, but there is no collection of trees embracing all species and types suitable for growth in the United States. The national arboretum has been planned on such a scale.

Congress should authorize the appropriation required to complete the project and, as soon as circumstances permit, make the funds actually available.

TOO MANY PRISONERS.

The program of the recently formed National Prison Emergency Committee is outlined as follows: To relieve prison idleness by developing modern industrial plants and farms and coordinating public works; to bring about the segregation of the dangerous group of prisoners from the less dangerous and the feeble-minded, and to bring about a change-over of prison workshops so that States will manufacture standardized products to meet the needs of all charitable and eleemosynary institutions.

To make such an ambitious program effective will be a difficult task. Dr. E. Stagg Whitin, who will direct the work of the committee, says: "Where an institution is built for a certain number of prisoners and the population increases so that it is necessary to put two or three inmates in a cell, in the corridors and even the chapels, it causes a congestion of personalities, old and hardened and young, sick and well, rebellious and docile and creates a situation which is intolerable and even explosive. Idleness and failure to provide suitable productive occupations for prisoners are causes of deep unrest."

But in view of the ever-increasing number of criminals that are committed to penal institutions by the courts, what are the States to do? Prison building can not keep pace with the need for prisons. The cost of modern industrial plants and farms for prisoners would run into staggering sums. Who will be willing to foot the bill?

The prison problem can not be solved while the criminal population increases beyond all bounds. The emergency committee can do good work in improving American prisons and in bringing about the segregation of prisoners, but the great problem of overpopulation will remain. The United States is not able to build prisons fast enough to take care of the prisoners it is making.

THE WORLD'S LONGEST HIGHWAY.

A trip by automobile from South America to the United States today is such an adventurous accomplishment that it commands general attention. Long stretches of undeveloped country must be negotiated on such a journey. An ax with which to carve a pathway through the jungle is an indispensable adjunct of the adventurer's equipment. But the day is coming when the nations of this hemisphere will be linked with broad smooth highways. The United States is now setting in motion a force that will speed the dawn of that day.

Seven years ago, at the fifth international conference of American states at Santiago, Chile, a resolution was adopted suggesting the desirability of a Pan-American highway conference "to study measures best adapted to developing an efficient program for construction of automobile highways within the different countries of America and between these different countries." In 1924, 38 leading government engineers, economists and other officials representing 20 Latin-American countries visited the United States, made an inspection tour of American highways and, subsequently, organized the Pan-American conference for highway education. They also resolved themselves into a committee on program for the first Pan-American highway congress, which met at Buenos Aires in 1925.

From these beginnings there developed in Latin America a strong sentiment for road improvement and for the construction of an international highway linking the capitals of the nations of the Americas. Finally, in 1929, the Pan-American Highway Congress adopted a program calling on all the South American countries to prepare complete studies of their highway system plans in order to meet the needs of intercommunication of their political subdivisions and to provide convenient connections with the highway systems of neighboring countries. The program suggested was given impetus by a resolution adopted by the United States Congress a few months prior to the 1929 meeting, authorizing an appropriation of $50,000 to enable the Secretary of State to cooperate with the several governments, upon their requests, in the reconnaissance surveys to develop the facts as to the feasibility of possible routes, the probable cost, the economic service, and such other information as would permit a visualization of the whole undertaking of financing and building an inter-American highway.

In accordance with the resolution, engineers of the Bureau of Public Roads are now en route to Panama, where they will open a field office to cooperate with South American governments in the work preliminary to construction of a highway link between the capitals of the American nations. Guatemala, Costa Rica and Panama have bespoken their assistance, and South American nations are expected to follow suit. The projected highway, when completed, will be the longest, most picturesque, and potentially the most important thoroughfare in the world.

AIRCRAFT CARRIERS

By Commander HOLLOWAY H. FROST, U. S. Navy.

Aircraft carriers were one of the two types of ships limited at the Washington conference. The 10-10-6 ratio was the guiding principle of that conference. So the tonnage limitations for carriers were set at 135,000 for United States and Great Britain and 81,000 for Japan.

The British delegation showed some desire early in the London conference to reduce these totals—maintaining, of course, the same ratio. While on the surface this might have seemed a fair enough proposal, its adoption would have been disadvantageous to the United States. There were three reasons. By the Washington treaty we were permitted to convert two of our battle cruisers under construction into carriers. While at first this idea seemed both economical and effective, it did not work out that way. Though it is true that the Lexington and Saratoga are good ships, it has since developed that four or five ships of the same aggregate tonnage could have carried a much larger total of planes. In other words, we did not get the maximum advantage out of the 66,000 tons which these two great ships total. Therefore, it was highly desirable for us to retain right to build all the 69,000 tons remaining under the Washington treaty allotment, so as to remedy, in part at least, our mistake in converting the Saratoga and Lexington into carriers. Incidentally, this mistake was repeated by the Japanese, and to a lesser extent by the British.

The second reason why a reduction in carrier tonnage would have been disadvantageous to us is closely allied to the first. The age limit of the Saratoga and Lexington was set at twenty years. This meant that they could not be replaced until 1947. Even with the tonnage limit unchanged at 135,000, our building program for the next seventeen years is only 69,000 tons. If this figure were cut in half—as was proposed—it is obvious that any sort of a continuous building program would be out of the question. Unless at least one ship is kept under construction at all times progress in the design and construction of the carrier type would cease. Should a motor car manufacturer fail to bring out a new model for five years, he would find himself far behind his competitors.

The third reason is of a different character. The value of naval aircraft in war has long been recognized. Its importance is increasing. More and more uses are being found for our naval planes. The powers and limitations of surface craft and submarines are quite accurately known. But aircraft are the unknown quantity of future naval campaigns. While their value has yet to be demonstrated in war, their possibilities are very great. We had taken the lead in developing these possibilities of naval aircraft. We have brought them into the fleet in numbers greater than any other navy. We have obtained remarkable success in their operations from carriers, battleships and cruisers. It is probable that we have today the largest and best fleet air force in the world. It therefore seemed reasonable that our air development should not be unduly restricted by a decrease in the carrier tonnage. Fortunately this was not done. That is the important decision of the London conference as regards aircraft carriers.

As a result of our operations with the 10,200-ton carrier Langley, and the two large ships, it has been decided that the best size for this type is 13,800 tons—the exact figure being found by dividing 69,000 tons by 5. One ship of this type has been authorized by Congress, but unfortunately the funds have not yet been made available for its construction. It is highly important that this ship be commenced now. Then it can be built without undue haste, carefully tested out in service, its value determined and the remedies for minor errors in design found. When that is done, we can build the remaining four ships as necessary to accommodate our increasing fleet air force.

The London treaty gives us parity in carriers with Great Britain, the 10-6 ratio with Japan, and an excellent opportunity for the full development of our fleet air force.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE CROW AND THE KINGBIRD.

The crow looks large enough to me
To tackle any bird that flies,
But merely living proof is he
That courage isn't based on size.

And monarch that he seems to be,
Black, bulky, ominous and grim,
I always laugh whene'er I see
A tiny kingbird chasing him.

That there is comedy in air
All natural observers know,
The birds must laugh themselves, I swear,
To see a kingbird bluff a crow.

In terror swoops that hulking chap
To dodge the little foe he fears,
In agony his great wings flap,
And awkwardly he dips and veers.

With all his size, the inky crow
Before the tiny kingbird flees,
Proving what mortals ought to know,
Size gives no moral guarantees.

The Mule Wouldn't Balk If He Had Brains Enough to Be a Good Sport.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

The appeal is vain; the bright child merely sucks a finger and looks dumb.

Mother resorts to strategy.

"Very well, then; don't speak it. Nobody cares to hear it, anyway. Just keep quiet."

The trick works and the company suffers.

You will say the child is spoiled, and that is true; but the child is human, and humans have inherited from their ancient ancestors an instinctive antagonism to anything and anybody that attempts to thwart them, surpass them or coerce them.

Perhaps the ancient who permitted himself to be driven or coaxed soon found himself in a trap; certainly hard experience taught him to resist with all his might when any force attempted to hold or subdue him.

That spirit of antagonism—that instinctive resentment of all opposition—is the heritage of the race, useful still in the cause of liberty.

But it survives in many instances as the triumph of instinct over intelligence—as a stupid reaction without benefit of reason.

Driving on the public highway, you overtake a slower car and attempt to pass it.

It is necessary to pass quickly, if at all, for a third car is approaching to threaten a head-on collision.

You are not being reckless, however, for there is ample time for your maneuver if the car you are passing will hold its present pace.

But it doesn't hold its pace—not 1 time in 40.

The driver doesn't wish to go faster; he knows he endangers you by speeding up; there is no reason under heaven why he should step on it.

But step on it he does—instinctively, almost helplessly, as he would raise his arm to ward off a blow.

You have antagonized him, made yourself a competitor, attempted to get ahead of him in a race.

Perhaps he slows up again, with a feeling of shame, after his first atavistic reaction; but he has revealed his weakness: caught off-guard, he is guided by instinct rather than reason.

And that instinctive resentment—that inborn antagonism to another's will, explains the success of the demagogue.

"Don't be a slave!" he cries. "Don't let the bosses rule you!" And his stupid hearers, determined to be free, become his slaves to grind his ax.

The ordinary man, jealously guarding his rights and suspicious of those who would move him, will hate the teacher who offers him mental freedom and love the trickster who chains him fast in the name of liberty.

The only man truly free is guided only by his reason—deliberately assuming chains and burdens suggested by wisdom, declining liberties offered by folly.

It isn't freedom that refuses to cooperate; it is the childish suspicion of the ignorant.

(Or nearly so).

Elmer Twitchell, the public will be interested to know, is the man, who almost single-handed, kept the duty on dandelion roots from being tampered with. At times this required the greatest patience and determination, as Messrs. Hawley and Smoot would get it into their heads every few minutes that something should be done about dandelions.

* * * *

They were forever rushing in and exclaiming, as they rubbed their hands, "Now for the dandelion roots!" This kept Mr. Twitchell, head of the Dandelion Lobby, pretty busy. He was generally able to sidetrack the gentlemen by shifting the subject to buttercup petals or ox-eyed daisy stems, but there were many times when it seemed certain Mr. Smoot would break through and run amuck among the dandelions.

* * * *

"I am very satisfied with the results," said Mr. Twitchell today. "The lobby I represented was, curiously enough, against any higher tariff, as it feels that the more dandelion roots there are in America the better.

* * * *

"You see," explained Lobbyist Twitchell, "my constituents are not interested in dandelion roots as such. The interests represented by me are in the liniment, electric pad and massage industries. The more dandelion roots we have in America the more these industries will profit.

"The reason will be clear to anybody who has a front lawn. Dandelion roots are about the worst scourge a good lawn can have. Each spring and summer millions of Americans make a desperate attempt to pull up all the dandelion roots and give the grass a chance. What is the result? Backache, strained muscles, pains in the shoulders and kidneys, with a resultant demand for liniments, pads, etc.

"The Association of American Liniment Manufacturers, one of my clients, figures that from April 1 to July 4 alone, sales of liniment jumped 450,000,000 bottles, due to dandelion roots.

* * * *

"Well, with so many people pulling up so many roots, the drain on the native dandelion supply is pretty severe. We have to have additional roots from other countries. Any increase in the duty would check the flow of European dandelion roots. This would mean that ultimately the average home owner would be able to get the better of his dandelions.

* * * *

"I feel that I did a great work and I am very happy," concluded Mr. Twitchell.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Parked Cars Are Equivalent to Narrowing the Streets—New Traffic Rules Must Consider Human Element.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A very important proposal in respect to traffic congestion will be discussed at the meeting of the American Electric Railway Association in San Francisco this week. The street-railway experts insist that the streets must no longer be blocked by parked automobiles. They fortify their contention with the statement that three out of every four passengers in city traffic are carried by street cars and buses.

Surely it does seem ridiculous that new public thoroughfares should be built and old ones widened and repaired and then anywhere from one-fourth to one-half of their surface be wasted in the parking of private cars.

As stated in a traffic editorial of The Post not long since; "In the final analysis, safe highways depend upon awakening in the public a consciousness of personal responsibility. The engineer can do a good deal to reduce highway accidents, but it would seem that the psychologist can do more." So that, until at least three-fourths of those driving automobiles are competent and disposed to give strict attention to regulations, traffic congestion will continue under conditions as they now exist. That time is a long way off; as cities grow the jam increases; and new rules, unless they can effectively be brought to bear on the human element, will only fail in their practical application.

South Yearns Toward Protective Tariff—A Tradition From Old Whig Days.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There is a latent protariff tradition in the South which needs only to be vitalized to make it effective in politics.

The antebellum Whigs were protectionists. They stood for what Clay called the American system. Henry Clay, William Henry Harrison, John Tyler, Zachary Taylor, and Winfield Scott were all born in Virginia. The significant fact is that every person nominated for the Presidency by the Whigs was a native of Virginia. It was a common thing in those days for the Whigs to carry North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky, Louisiana and Florida. The senators of Louisiana and Florida who voted for the Smoot-Hawley bill voted as Southern Whigs would have voted in their day.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I can think of no feature in journalism that could compare in interest and value with a daily article by former President Coolidge.

I feel a great sense of gratitude to your paper. It will make every day a red letter day for me.

There will be something enjoyable sure to be added to all the many other delights of living.

A BENEFICIARY.

Filthy Condition of Center Market Garden.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I just finished reading a letter signed "Washingtonian" regarding the unkept condition of the public reservation at Center Market, and while I am not a Washingtonian I agree with what the writer has to say.

Sometime ago I wrote a letter to the Office of the Director of Public Buildings and Public Parks regarding the filthy condition of this park. The walks are used as a dumping ground for all kinds of animals, and some people seem to take delight in dumping all kinds of "rotten" fruit and vegetables on the walks. It so happens that I very often come through this park, and it is a positive disgrace for the City of Washington to have this filthy condition. The weeds are at least 6 feet high, the hedge hasn't been cut this summer, and the walk in littered with filth and rocks which makes walking very unpleasant.

Will you be kind enough through your very valuable paper to bring this to the attention of the proper District or Federal authorities, and, at least, have the walks cleaned up and the filth removed from the park. I certainly will thank you and if the job is done, I will write and let you know about it.

LIBERALS OF SPAIN APPROVE KING'S ACT

Parley With Santiago Alba Is Hailed as Important Political Advance.

DUKE PRAISES DECISION

Madrid, June 23 (A.P.).—Spanish politics reached a new and promising stage today with the approval by Liberals generally and many others of the meeting in Paris yesterday between King Alfonso and Santiago Alba, Liberal exponent, exiled since early in the Primo de Rivero dictatorship.

The Duke of Alba, minister of foreign affairs, no kinsman of Santiago Alba, pronounced the meeting an "important advance toward untangling some of Spain's political perplexities." The duke said:

"I am much pleased with the results of the king's conversation with Santiago Alba. It is a long step toward consolidation of important political factions for the good of Spain and the monarchy.

"The king exercised his legitimate rights in conferring with Santiago Alba on political questions. Everybody knows that Santiago Alba inclines more to the left than right, but the present government of Spain encourages free and liberal thinking by all persons. By securing enough viewpoints the correct solution of any problem can be reached.

"While some minor differences exist between Santiago Alba and the present government we can not help but feel that these can be adjusted quickly. The poignant fact is that Santiago, like practically all other political leaders, has come forward to aid the government in restoring political normality."

The Duke o. Alba will leave tomorrow for London, where he will see King Alfonso frequently but, he said, not on state business.

"When I take a vacation it is for rest," he said. "The king has the same idea."

Polo, golf, racing and other sporting events on the English calendar will be included in the enjoyments of the Spanish visitors.

LINDBERGH BABY'S NAME TO BE CHARLES

however, the colonel met all references to his latest happiness with a laconic smile.

All day messages of congratulation have poured in upon the Morrow home, the influx growing heavier hourly. From the White House President Hoover dispatched a message and from Mexico President Ortiz Rubio telegraphed his good wishes. Gifts, flowers and letters were added to the hundreds of messages.

Englewood, proud of its latest addition, buzzed with excitment. Housewives chatted across the fences, groups talked on street corners and a procession of well-wishers passed back and forth in front of the guarded gates of the Morrow estate all day.

Three youngsters in pinafores pulled daisies by the roadside, saying they meant to take them to the baby, "If the man would let them in." "The man" did not relent. All day strict guard was maintained at the gate, even the delivery trucks being carefully inspected to see that no intruder smuggled himself inside the estate.

Educators Adjourn; Draft Policy Later

(Associated Press.)

Failing to agree on recommendations for a future policy of the Federal Government toward education, the national advisory committee on education has adjourned its executive session here without making a final report to Secretary Wilbur. Dr. Charles R. Mann, chairman, said yesterday the steering committee would meet September 14 to consider the conflicting proposals, after which the general committee would again be called into session.

The proposed recommendations were not made public. Drastic changes in the relationship of the Federal Government to education are being advocated, with the general sentiment of the committee for less governmental control over various educational agencies and for an increase in State and local administration. The committee is composed of 51 outstanding educators from all parts of the country.

INDIA FEDERATION INDORSED IN REPORT OF BRITISH BODY

Indian princes—always with their consent—and the provinces of British India in the union scheme. Each would be autonomous according to capacity of self-government. Their relations with each other in the central government would be always only on certain previously specified "matters of common concern." Both princely states and provinces would increase in autonomy gradually as their capacity for self-government increased.

The recommendations provide for an increase in the number of those entitled to vote, by about three times the present 2½ per cent; increased representation in the ministerial bodies is recommended; and most important of all the commissioners would sound the death knell of diarchy, that system under which native and British participations in the government is sharply defined, native collaboration strictly limited, and bars raised to advancement.

A strong central government under a viceroy or governor general, but with its powers strictly circumscribed, is sought by the commissioners. They are not quite sure what its eventual form will be, but Indians immediately would obtain a greater share in the central government than they have had heretofore.

Army's Retention Wanted.

Safeguarding of the northwest frontier is recognized as an imperial problem rather than an Indian problem solely, and therefore the London government expects to retain control of the army in India. British and Indian troops will be available to quell disturbances within the provinces, but in such cases the provinces must bear their expense, and a decreasing use of them in this wise is envisaged.

Burma's union with India is termed a "political accident," and their separation advocated, with both governments under the India home office, but with their relationships regulated in London rather than in Delhi.

Besides Sir John Simon, the commission contained Viscount Burnham, Lord Strathcona, E. C. G. Cadogan, Vernon Hartshorn, Col. Lane Fox, and Maj. C. R. Atlee. They were appointed under the government of

150 HURT IN SEVILLE DURING STRIKE RIOTS

WOMAN'S DEATH CAUSE

Seville, Spain, June 23 (A.P.).—A general strike attended by violent rioting gripped this carefree city of sunny Andalusia today.

About 150 persons were injured in two clashes between workers and police, the latter hammering the rioters with the flats of their sabers and the butts of their rifles and firing many shots.

Fourteen labor leaders, heads of different unions, were arrested when the rioting began to get out of hand this evening. A dozen policemen had to be treated for injuries.

The situation was under control tonight, but the city was tense and waiting developments. Few people were in the streets, which were patrolled by heavy detachments of police and civil guards. Strong reinforcements were mobilized.

The strike, which affected more than a dozen unions, was precipitated by reports about the death of a woman worker in the olive trade. It broke suddenly and virtually paralyzed the city.

The union of olive workers had certified that the death of the woman, Antonia Vargas Bravo, had been caused by wounds inflicted by the police, who were alleged to have brutally maltreated her.

Madrid, June 23 (A.P.).—Minister of the Interior Marzo tonight lamented the disorders growing out of the general strike in Seville today, but said the government had taken adequate precautions to deal with any new situations.

He denied that Antonia Vargas Bravo, woman olive worker, whose death precipitated the strike, had died from the effects of police brutality in suppression of an olive workers strike on Saturday. He said he was confident the strike would be settled shortly.

Akron, Ohio, June 23 (A.P.).—One man was reported killed in an explosion which demolished three small frame buildings at the Hudson Fireworks Co., at Hudson, near here this afternoon.

So quickly were the three buildings destroyed, with their contents of high explosives, that it is not known if other employes of the company perished. Hudson firemen responded to the alarm and held the fire from spreading to the other buildings.

Land in Wisconsin Supports School

$7,476,000 Derived by Cornell University From Timber Sales.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cornell, Wis., June 23.—Income from a fund resulting from the sale of thousands of acres of what are now prosperous farms in Eau Claire, Chippewa and Dunn Counties today supports one of New York State's greatest educational institutions, Cornell University.

Both that famous college and this growing village of 1,500 population owe their existence to Ezra Cornell, who in 1866 purchased nearly 500,000 acres of timber land along the Chippewa and Red Cedar Rivers and provided that the proceeds from the sale of these lands to be held in trust for the university that bears his name.

Ezra Cornell has been dead many years. At Ithaca, N. Y., the students of Cornell praise his name in their songs and reunion addresses. Here in Cornell, Wis., the residents praise his foresight, for he provided that the power from any dam to be erected across the Chippewa at this site should be consumed locally. This has brought about the establishment of the Cornell Wood Products Co., a nationally known concern, which is the only industry here.

It is estimated that Cornell University received from lands in Wisconsin $7,476,971.

Carter Broadside Ignored by Police

With Complaint Lacking, Pratt Is Unruffled by Gaming Charges.

Not having received a formal complaint, police authorities yesterday expressed unconcern regarding Public Printer George H. Carter's latest criticism of gambling activities in the Capital.

Mr. Carter delivered a verbal broadside against Maj. Henry G. Pratt's law enforcement policies last Saturday, after suspending two members of the printing office for alleged participation in gambling. Several days previous Mr. Carter had posted a notice warning members of his staff that they would be summarily discharged and prosecuted if caught engaging in any form of gambling. Mr. Carter's allegations of widespread gambling in Washington brought a senatorial investigation several months ago.

Maj. Pratt said yesterday that he had received no complaint from Mr. Carter since the investigation, and that he would take no action in the matter as police of the Sixth Precinct, in which the Government Printing Office is located, were fully competent to maintain law and order.

G. O. P. Split May Defeat Mrs. Pratt

Representative to Feel Effects of Party Disruption.

By JEAN ELIOT.

THE split which has developed among Republicans of the Fifteenth Assembly District in New York has reverberations in Washington because of the fact that it may cause the defeat of Representative Ruth Baker Pratt in the November elections.

According to some of the New York papers, a fight is on against the leadership of Keyes Winter in the home district of a majority of New York's "high-brow" and "silk stocking" Republicans. It hinges on Mr. Winter's selection of Jehial Roeder as nominee for the municipal court bench, cutting out Hermann Hoffman, who, many Republican stalwarts feel, has a much better claim upon the party for such preferment.

The names of all involved being unfamiliar here and the situation of purely local interest, the whole affair seems rather remote. But, while the supporters of Mr. Hoffman do not expect to block the nomination of Mr. Roeder, they propose to carry the fight into the primaries and even into the general election. And it is in this connection that Representative Pratt comes into the picture. For they threaten to name Mr. Hoffman as an independent candidate and to make nominations against Mrs. Pratt and others on the regular ticket.

The Hoffman group claims the support of several veteran district captains, who are said to control a minimum of 1,400 votes. If this claim can be substantiated, wiseacres say that Mrs. Pratt would probably be defeated in view of the fact that Tammany plans a hard fight against her and that she could not hope to overcome the handicap of so many lost Republican votes.

Mrs. Pratt's congressional district takes in the Seventh, Tenth and Fifteenth Assembly Districts. The Fifteenth has always given a Republican majority, but the Seventh is Democratic and the Tenth is said to be as likely to go one way as another.

With a wide acquaintance in Washington before she came here to make her home, Mrs. Pratt soon made a definite place for herself in the social life of the Capital. She has entertained occasionally and very delightfully at Evermay, the charming old Georgetown residence in which she lives. And there would be considerable lamentation should she not be returned.

Representative Pearl Pedan Oldfield, of Arkansas, has announced that she is not a candidate for reelection in the autumn, but with this one exception, the hats of members of the feminine bloc in the House are in the ring, with most of them reasonably confident that their constituents are back of them. Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick, to be sure, is running for the Senate. There is scant doubt that she would be returned with a substantial majority were she a candidate for her present post, representative at large, and her friends are confident that with the Statewide organization which she has built up, she will come to the Senate with flying colors.

Capt. Calhoun Host To Week-end Group.

Capt. and Mrs. C. C. Calhoun entertained, over the week-end, a family house party including five cousins of Mrs. Calhoun, two of them namesakes of her mother. The group included Mrs. Josephine Marr Witherspoon, Mrs. Josephine Marr Baldwin, Mrs. Urban Niblo, daughter of Col. James Marr and the wife of Capt. Niblo, U. S. A.; Miss Martha Marr Gregg, daughter of John Irving Gregg, and the granddaughter of Gen. Irwin Gregg, and Mr. Russell Baldwin, Mrs. Baldwin's son.

The guests went on their separate ways yesterday, Mrs. Witherspoon to take a cruise to the North Cape and through Europe with another party of relatives; Miss Martha Marr Gregg to take her examinations for Bryn Mawr; Mrs. Niblo to join her husband at his post in Springfield, Mass., and Mrs. Baldwin and her son back to their home in Harrisburg.

Miss Helen M. Riordan, of 401 Sixth street southeast, and Miss Dorothea A. Cook, of 18 Fifth street southeast, sail Saturday on the S. S. Mauretania for a three months' European tour.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. McEvan and their children, who have come from their home in Forest Park, Ill., on a trip in the East, are at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Mrs. Robert H. Timmons and her daughter, Miss Betty Timmons, of Atlanta, Ga., spent the week-end in Washington at the Mayflower and are leaving tonight for New York. They are sailing for Europe at noon tomorrow aboard the S. S. Republic. Miss Timmons has just completed her freshman year at the University of Kansas.

Smith—Evans Nuptials Held Here Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Evans announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary Rebecca Evans, to Mr. Louis Ethelbert Smith, son of Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Smith, of this city, on Saturday, June 21, at Epiphany Chapel, the Rev. Francis Yarnall officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew A. D. Rahn, accompanied by their son, A. A. D. Rahn, jr., of Minneapolis, are guests at the Powhatan.

Mr. Allan Hoover, who has been at the White House for several days, left town yesterday for New England. Mr. and Mrs. Ward Banister, of Colorado, and their son, Mr. Wayne Banister, guests at the White House over Sunday, also left yesterday.

Mrs. Chindblom and Father To Sail for Sweden.

Bound for Sweden to attend a music festival early next month, Mrs. Chindblom, wife of Representative Carl D. Chindblom, of Illinois, will sail on Saturday for Europe. She will be accompanied by her father, Mr. Hjalmar Nilssen, of St. Paul, who is a native of Sweden. They will go direct to Stockholm, where the music festival is to be held in connection with the Swedish national exposition.

From Stockholm Mrs. Chindblom and Mr. Nilssen will go to Oberammergau for the Passion Play, and later to Beyreuth for the Wagner music festival. They will return to this country in the autumn.

Mrs. Chindblom is an accomplished and cultivated musician, a pianist of distinguished ability.

Representative Chindblom and his daughter, Miss Ruth Chindblom, will spend the summer in Illinois, leaving Washington when Congress adjourns.

Miss Deneen Is Hostess To Bridal Party.

Miss Bina Day Deneen, who will be one of the bridesmaids at the marriage of Miss Marjorie Mondell and Mr. Alfons Beaumont Landa on Thursday, gave a supper party last night for the bridal party. The company went afterward to Glen Echo for a frolic in amusing contrast to the more formal festivities for the young couple which have preceded it. In the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Condon entertained informally at tea for Miss Mondell and Mr. Landa. Mr. Condon is one of the ushers.

Mr. Oliver Walker has been added to the group of Mr. Landa's ushers, replacing Mr. Jay Douglass whose business engagements will prevent his coming from New York to Washington for the wedding. Mr. Douglass is the son of Mrs. David Hunt Blair, of Washington.

Mr. Landa has leased the apartment in Connecticut avenue, which he owns and has occupied for some time, to Mr. Fulton Lewis, jr., whose marriage to Miss Alice Huston will be solemnized on Saturday, and Mr. Lewis and his bride will make their home there. The two couples are close friends and each has shared in much of the entertaining for the other.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Parsons Erwin and their children, Eileen and Hope Erwin, left yesterday for their summer home at Mackinac Island, Mich.

Mrs. Erwin's mother, Mrs. Delos Blodgett, and Mrs. Charles G. Matthews, will go to Mackinac in a fortnight. They have as their guest another sister, Mrs. Edward Porcher, of Cocoa, Fla., who will go later to her summer home at Harbor Springs, Mich.

Mrs. McCormick-Goodhart, of Langley Park, Md., will entertain 200 soldiers from Walter Reed on Thursday afternoon from 3 to 7 o'clock at her country place on Riggs Road.

Mrs. Harry Wardman and Miss Helen Wardman spent the week-end at the Cavalier Hotel, Virginia Beach, Va. Mr. H. Spottswood White and Mr. Bishop Hill were also at the Cavalier over Sunday.

Dr. and Mrs. Rinehart Leave City for Summer.

Dr. and Mrs. Stanley Rinehart will leave Washington today on their new cruiser for Dartmouth, Mass., where they have taken a house for the summer.

Mme. Dominicio de Gama, widow of a former Brazilian Ambassador to the United States and later to Great Britain, will sail for Europe this week aboard the Majestic. She is now in New York at the Savoy-Plaza.

A very pretty wedding took place yesterday morning in old St. Anne's Church in Annapolis, when Miss Clotild Rodes Waddell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gordon Waddell, of Charlottesville, Va., became the bride of Dr. Robert Battaile Hiden.

The bride wore a dress of pink lace, with a pink hat to match, and carried a bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley. She was given in marriage by her father, and only the immediate members of the families were present.

After a cruise in Northern waters, Dr. and Mrs. Hiden will be at home after August 1 in Stockbridge, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Eliphalet Fraser Andrews entertained at early breakfast at their country home in Fairfax County, Va., on Sunday morning, in honor of Capt. and Mrs. D. F. A. de Otte, uncle and aunt of Mrs. Andrews, and their daughter Ruth, with Commander and Mrs. George McCall Courts, relatives of Mr. Andrwes, as other honor guests.

Mrs. Andrews is instituting a series of informal breakfasts in the cool of the morning at the pleasant old home near the Capital. Among the guests of this first occasion were Gen. and Mrs. Hugh Matthews, Dr. and Mrs. Ryan Devereux, Mr. and Mrs. Fulton Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Hunt Roberts, Miss Alice Huston and her fiance, Fulton Lewis, jr., whose marriage takes place this week; Mr. Millard Lewis, a recent graduate of West Point; Mr. and Mrs. William N. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Robinson, of Alexandria; Capt. and Mrs. James Notstein, Miss Nancy Liason, Mr. Gardner Lloyd Boothe, of Alexandria, and Gardner Lloyd Boothe, jr.

Mr. Dempsey to Be Guest Of Honor at Dinner.

The Great Lakes-Hudson Waterways Association will give a dinner on Friday evening in honor of Representative S. Wallace Dempsey in Albany, N. Y. Mr. Dempsey was one of the workers in Congress for an all-American canal through New York State as the seaway for Great Lakes shipping. Mr. Dempsey is chairman of the House rivers and harbors committee.

Mrs. Loomis In Near East Relief Work

Aunt of Mr. Stimson Is Rendering Aid to Russian Exiles.

Mrs. Henry P. Loomis, of New York, who was a visitor in Washington last winter, is now making a tour of Europe, visiting places where Russian exiles are congregated. Mrs. Loomis is president of the American Society for Relief of Russian Exiles, which in co-operation with the Near East Relief, has done remarkable work for rehabilitation of Russian refugees in Bulgaria and which is now inaugurating similar work in Jugoslavia. She is an aunt of Mr. Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of State, and a cousin of Mr. John Dyneley Prince, United States Minister to Jugoslavia.

When Mrs. Loomis was last in Washington, Secretary and Mrs. Stimson were attending the Naval Conference in London, and the visitor was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Maxim Karolik. Mr. Karolik, a Russian by birth although now an American citizen, has always been enthusiatically interested in the movement to help Russians, beggared by the revolution to find themselves. An opera singer, who had won fame in his own country in the old days, he made his Washington debut at a concert given for the group of which Mrs. Loomis is the head and sponsored by Mrs. George T. Marye, wife of a former U. S. Ambassador to Russia. Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie, whose late husband was the first diplomatic representative of the United States at Ankara, new capital of Turkey and many others. This summer Mr. Karolik is in the Balkans doing his bit to help with the work among refugees.

In Sofia, Bulgaria, the American Society for Relief of Russian Exiles maintains a workshop, where worn clothing from America, sent out by the Near East Relief, is sorted, mended, cleaned and offered for sale to refugees at very low cost. There is, however, a certain profit and this goes to upkeep of a Russian orphanage for 30 children, a home for aged invalids in Shipka and the Russian Hospital in Sofia, with a certain percentage for Bulgarian charities. Moreover, the workshop gives permanent employment to some 40 Russian refugees, so the organization works for good in two ways.

Mrs. Prince is aiding with the work of establishing similar centers in Belgrade. So pleas for discarded garments, linens, hats, shoes, &c., are being sent out. Here again work is to be in cooperation with the Near East Relief.

Rear Admiral Wilson And Wife in Europe.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Henry B. Wilson, who are traveling in Europe, recently passed some time at Baden-Baden. Admiral and Mrs. Wilson are the parents of Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, wife of the Secretary of War.

Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey G. Weaver, of Front Royal, Va., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Evelyn Hanson Weaver, to Lieut. Joseph Malcom Carson, U. S. N., son of Mr. and Mrs Joseph L. Carson, of Woodstock, Va. The wedding will take place in the early autumn.

Representative and Mrs. Frank N. Murphy are passing their honeymoon at the Thousand Island House, Alexandria Bay, N. Y.

Mrs. C. A. F. Flagler has returned from Virginia Beach and will leave early this week for Concord, Mass., to spend the month of July. She will return to her home at 2811 Connecticut avenue in August.

Representative Chester C. Bolton, of Ohio, will be a guest at the Mayflower until the adjournment of Congress. Mrs. Bolton has already closed their house on Wyoming avenue and returned to Cleveland.

Moore-Dienelt Wedding Held in Alexandria.

The marriage of Miss Marian Taylor Dienelt, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. Albert Dienelt, and Mr. Kenneth C. Moore, took place at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride, in Rosemont avenue, Alexandria, Va., the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Dr. D. L. Snyder, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, in the presence of a small company of relatives and friends.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of chanel green lace, fashioned with spiral peplum effect, large crin hat and lace mitts to match. Her flowers were butterfly roses and gypsyphelia.

Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Doris Celeste Dienelt, whose frock was a pale pink net fashioned with a high waist line and long, full-tucked skirt, large crin hat and lace mitts to match. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of pink briarcliffe roses and delphinium.

Mr. J. Earle Ross, of Alexandria, was the bridegroom's best man. The wedding march was played by Mrs. D. C. Book.

Pickford-Hill Engagement Is Announced

An engagement of interest to Washington is that of Miss Lucy Winslow Hill, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George Jackson Hill, of Boston, to Dr. Edward Morse Pickford, son of Dr. and Mrs. Edward Ferguson Pickford, of Washington.

The engagement was announced at a tea given by Dr. and Mrs. Hill aboard their yacht, Freeluja, at the Harvard-Yale boat races at New London. Miss Hill attended Miss Porter's School at Farmington, Conn., and spent a year at school abroad. She is an ardent horsewoman and has exhibited her mounts at numerous shows.

Dr. Pickford was graduated from Johns Hopkins University in 1921, from the medical school of the same university in 1925, and from Washington University in St. Louis in 1927. He is a member of the Phi Gamma Delta Fraternity, Pithotemy Club, Racquet Club and the Washington Golf and Country Club.

The wedding will take place on August 9, at Gull Rock, the summer home of Dr. and Mrs. Hill at South Orleans, Mass.

George Van H. Moseley Marries Daughter of James Barber.

The marriage of Brig. Gen. George Van Horn Moseley, of the United States Army, stationed at Washington, to Mrs. Florence Barber DuBois, of Englewood, N. J., took place at 8:30 o'clock last night at the Savoy-Plaza Hotel, New York City, in the apartments of the bride's mother, Mrs. James Barber. Because of Mrs. Barber's illness only members of the family and a few intimate friends were present.

The ceremony was performed by Maj. William L. Fisher, chaplain in the United States Army, of Washington. The bride, who wore a gown of shell pink lace with slippers to match, was given away by her brother, Edward J. Barber. She had no attendants. George Armsby, of New York, was best man.

Gen. Moseley is executive to the Assistant Secretary of War. He went to France with the First Division and was with Gen. Pershing throughout the war, accompanying him on his tour of the United States after peace was declared. He was Gen. Dawes' assistant in organization of the Bureau of the Budget. Last spring he was awarded a second distinguished service medal for conspicuous service during the Mexican revolution. Only one other officer of the Army has won this distinction.

Mrs. DuBois is the daughter of the late James Barber, founder and former president of the Barber Steamship lines. She was divorced from Henry DuBois in May, 1929, in Paris, France. Gen. Moseley and his first wife were divorced in Illinois, Sept. 5, 1924. He was born in Evanston, Ill., the son of George D. and Alice Willett Moseley. He is 55 years old and his bride is 36.

Gen. and Mrs. Moseley will make their home at 2604 Thirty-first street northwest.

Miss Phillips Hostess At Swimming Party.

Miss Jean Phillips, daughter of G. Z. Phillips, 6409 Florida street, Chevy Chase, Md., was hostess yesterday afternoon at a swimming party held at the Manor Club, near Norbeck, Md.

Among Miss Phillips' guests who enjoyed the afternoon of swimming in the club's pool were the Misses Betty Barry, Helen Smith, Mary Garrett, Virginia Fenwick, Helen Kenissen, Caroline Rose and Alice Fleury, all of Chevy Chase, Md.

DEAREST GENEVIEVE: The hot weather you have longed for is with us in earnest and you may wear your coolest summer gowns with great joy and pleasure. How is your sunburn? Have you acquired the shade of tan you like, or are you still in the painful stages of burning? Glad to say, I can report all finished with that and turning a nice swarthy bronze. If you call me today, I will tell you something wonderful to do to keep your skin from blistering when you go in the water.

Pasternak Prices in Misses' Department

—are outstanding at normal figures. Just now there are special prices, and many a vacation wardrobe will be completed because of this. Dresses of all materials and for all occasions are included in the assortments found in the Misses' Department. Imagine buying printed silks, chiffons, crepes and swanky cottons at these prices: $10.75, $12.50, $15.

In this department hats have been marked down to $5 and $10. In the lot I found any number of bakus in pretty colors, linens and shantungs, and rough straws.

A special group of coats has been marked to $25. They have been much higher priced. You will not find all sizes in these, but an excellent assortment.

Go in to Pasternak's, 1219 Connecticut avenue, this morning without fail.

Have You Ever Been to Alaska?

—What, you mean to say you have never taken that divine sea trip from Seattle to Seward? People who live on the Pacific Coast and in Western States run up to Alaska in the summer the way you would take a boat for Boston.

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad has arranged such a wonderful trip from Washington to Alaska at a minimum cost and maximum enjoyment. You leave Saturday, August 23, returning September 22. The trip includes Jasper National Park, the Canadian Rockies, the Canadian Pacific Steamship Co., Vancouver to Seattle via Victoria (which is more English than England), the Alaska Steamship Co., Seattle to Seward via the Inside Passage, Gulf of Alaska and Prince William Sound. If it is your first trip West you will be thrilled with the gorgeous trains and boats, the majestic scenery, wonderful hotels.

Go into the B. & O. offices at Fifteenth and H and talk to Miss Elizabeth M. Haney about it. She is special passenger representative.

Fine Weather For Weddings

—if you like them hot. Incidentally have you ever known a June with so many prominent girls and boys stepping up to the altar? And what a time they are having in the prenuptial gayeties!

Some of the prettiest girls who have married during the month are shown in photographs, exhibited this week in the windows of Underwood & Underwood. A large picture of a "magazine cover bride" adorns the wall of the window, and smaller pictures of complete wedding parties are displayed below. Each group seems more attractive than the other. Photographs of complete parties are always prized possessions because in after years they will all have a chance to say, "Oh lookit, how funny we looked with our hair that way," or "What odd trousers the men wore!" Seriously speaking, such pictures will be highly prized possessions in years to come.

Underwood & Underwood have a distinct flare for making charming wedding pictures. Just now, more pictures are made in outdoor settings than in any other way, and with garden backgrounds they are especially delightful. Either studio pictures or garden pictures receive equal attention. Do give yourself the pleasure of stopping by Underwood's window for a look at these lovely pictures of brides and bridal parties.

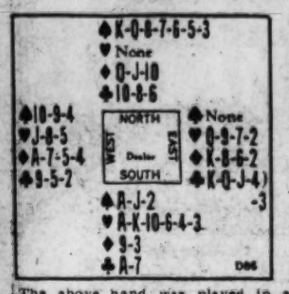
WORK ON BRIDGE

COULD YOU HAVE DONE BETTER?



The above hand was played in a game of Auction Bridge. South bid one Heart, West passed, North bid one Spade and that, being followed by three passes, became the contract.

Had the hand been played at Contract Bridge there would have been far more thrill in the bidding. South would have started with two Hearts. His hand can be counted as worth seven tricks, four of which are high-card tricks; so it is one trick better than the minimum required for a two-bid. North would have bid three Spades. Of course, two would have been sufficient to overcall South, but North would desire to show strength in the suit he was naming and to hear further from South. The Spade bid would suit South so admirably that he would feel justified in bidding five. Whether North should risk the small slam is a very doubtful question. As a matter of fact, it would hardly be sound for him to do so as South may have two losers in one or the other of the minors and that may be the suit led. (It will be noted that if the adversaries open Diamonds, the slam would be saved.)

In the Auction Bridge play East led the King of Clubs. Dummy won with the Ace, and Declarer anxious to draw the adverse Spades, expecting to do so in two rounds and then to make up dummy's Hearts, led a trump and found it necessary to lead three rounds in order to exhaust the adversaries. After the third trump, which was won in dummy, the Ace and King of Hearts were led, closed hand discarding two Clubs, and then closed hand had to take one Diamond and lose two, so the Declarer made five-odd.

Could you have done better?

The Correct Play.

Winning the first trick in dummy and needing four discards from the closed hand in order to get a slam, Declarer's best play would be a small Heart from dummy. Closed hand, after ruffing, would lead a high trump and then a second trump, putting dummy in to lead another small Heart, again ruffed in closed hand. A third round of trumps won in dummy would exhaust the adverse trumps, and then closed hand could obtain four discards, insuring a small slam provided the adverse Hearts were normally distributed—i. e., 4-3. In the absence of such distribution closed hand would obtain two Club discards and consequently would lose two Diamonds, making five-odd.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

(Bureau of Home Economics.)

After cleaning, a machine-made pile rug sometimes loses its shape, or wrinkles and curls up because the sizing on the back has worn off.

Resizing will pay for itself in the durability of the rug as well as making it look much better and can be done at home or by a carpet dealer. The rug should be stretched tight and true and tacked at frequent intervals face down on a floor or some other flat surface where it can remain undisturbed. It should be sprinkled generously with a solution made by soaking and dissolving ¼ pound of flake glue in ½ gallon of water in a double boiler or container surrounded by hot water. The rug should be allowed to dry for at least 24 hours. If it is light weight care should be taken not to put on so much glue that it penetrates to the right side.

Jane Enterprets the Mode

Hemstitching makes the line of this black marocain frock and the white marocain cape. The black crepe coat has ermine bands. (Courtesy of Jenny, Paris.)

Paris, June 23.

"IS THERE a struggle for supremacy between plain and printed stuffs?" 'Twas asked of Mme. Jenny.

"Yes. For while delicate chic frocks of plain material call for a greater amount of technical skill and have a slightly more artistocratic look, the printed chiffons are gracious and flattering and are greatly beloved."

You know, we've thought that ourselves. You probably know that I have never greatly favored printed materials, at least for myself. The greatest reason has been because they so often merely cover a multitude of dressmaker's sins, and more or less get away with it excepting with very discriminating people—and how many people are that. These days, however, as I have told you before, the really big and important ceuturiers are taking care to change that, and it is quite obvious that a printed frock is no longer considered even wearable, let alone smart, unless it is very well made, and has its quota of the dressmaker's as well as the fabric creator's art.

And do you know something? I'm about to break out in a couple of prints my own self. Oh, it will be a very discreet print, I can tell you that, one of those vague willowy-wispy ones so that I won't look like a nondescript queen on a chessboard, if you see what I mean—and it will be awfully well fitted and carefully made, just as though it weren't a print at all. And far from being more informal in my accessories, I will be if anything more careful and more formal, with the idea of the print itself being quite informal enough to suit me.

If we had a contest and the winner would be named Miss Weekend for the cleverest idea for weekend fashion, we think we'd be elected. Sounds conceited, but listen—an adorable blouse to wear with the tailleur traveling to and from the place of sojourn, and a matching skirt to the blouse that makes it a one-piece silk frock while you're there. Could anything be more useful than that, except possibly the stamped, self-addressed envelope you send to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for her leaflet illustrated to show you just how to make several blouses and a skirt? You can't lose, no matter how you look at it.

For Him.

About shirts—the dress shirt opening at the back instead of in front is more practical, as alas, all too often the latter returns from the laundry with amalgamated buttonholes, and a wrinkledy-crinkledy face.

And pearls are said to be ever so much more fashionable than the fancy shirt button in the shirt-front buttonhole.

Is it because Mme Jenny, though no longer young, is so chic and youthful herself that all of her garments have that youthful flare? "Micheline," for instance, in black crepe marocain, the dress that I have sketched for you today, shows you what I mean. See the dainty handwork, and then the white capelet—and wouldn't you wear the smart Jenny coat in black with its touches of ermine with it? We would.

Now, to remind you again that the weekly Dare fashion letter always appears in The Sunday Washington Post.

Au revoir!

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me how to rid a perfectly healthy fern of worms. They have infested the soil. I have tried placing the pot in the cold, soapy water, but the result is that the worms come to the surface of the soil, but do not die. A. S.

Pour some limewater over the soil. Use about a pint or a pint and a half. This will not cause the worms to die, but they will come to the surface, where they can be collected and killed. You may have to make three applications before all the worms are destroyed.

Please tell me how to care for an Easter lily after it has finished blooming so that it will bloom at Easter of next year. All I have done so far is to remove the wilted blossoms. ANXIOUS.

After an Easter lily has been forced in a greenhouse it is of no further use as a house plant. The best thing to do is to plant it in your garden, where it will flower most beautifully in midsummer. As the flowers fade remove them, but continue to water the plant until the bulb has ripened naturally. When all the leaves have turned yellow and become dry, cease watering the plant, remove dead tops and set the pot aside for a month. At the end of that time remove the bulb and plant it in a sunny place in the border. This year it will probably not bloom until quite late.

Please tell me how to care for a cyclamen which has not bloomed for a number of weeks. I am still watering it, though the leaves are curled and dry. J. N. F.

Many growers discard their cyclamen bulbs, preferring to purchase new plants each year. However, with care, the bulbs can be coaxed to bloom most beautifully the second season. As your bulb is evidently resting, set the pot aside until late August, then bring it to the light, remove the dead tops and renew one-third of the soil in the pot with rich loam and leafmold or bonemeal and begin to water it regularly. It will soon show signs of growth.

I am inclosing two leaves from my holly fern. Please tell me whether the spots on the back of the leaves are insects. If so, how do I proceed to rid the plant of these pests? MRS. G.

The brown spots which occur at regular intervals on the back of the fronds you sent me are seed cases. Do not attempt to disturb them.

Please tell me when to plant tulip bulbs which have finished blooming in my garden. AN AMATEUR GARDENER.

Continue to water the bulbs until the foliage is yellow, then remove them from the soil and store them in paper bags until the middle of October, when you may plant them in some sunny place in your garden.

Please tell me where I can obtain "hen and chickens," as my grandmother used to call them. I have just started a garden, following the rules you have laid down from time to time. MRS. O. W.

You should be able to obtain this delightful little plant from any grower, especially any one making a specialty of growing rock garden plants. If you care to write again, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, I shall be glad to send you the names of a number of growers listing house leeks (supervivums).

What Today Means to You

"CANCER."

IF June 24th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to noon, from 4 p. m. to 5:30 p. m., and from 10:30 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 9 a. m. to 10:15 a. m., and 3 p. m., to 3:45 p. m.

Unsettling influences are augured for this date, which will cause useless worry and vague fears, especially in regard to business, work and finances. A lighter and happier atmosphere will cap the last hours of the day, and the morning's sobriety will turn into evening hilarity.

Children born on this June 24th will shoulder responsibilities beyond their years, and will seem to rush into maturity. They will be prim and sedate; devoted to their work and studies, and not given to play and frolic. They will be lacking in a sense of humor.

Your great interest in humanity is the outstanding feature about you. People quickly sense that you are understanding, and your generosity is not mere talk or never-developing intentions. You keenly feel that you are your brother's keeper, and your conscience and sympathies will not allow you to turn a deaf ear or a blind eye toward those whom you can help. Your influence is often exerted, where it is felt, but not known. You do not brag about your kind deeds, you are not looking for publicity.

You are not a very discriminating judge of character, and you are often sadly let down. On the other hand your faith and trust have many times been the making of a weak or discouraged soul. You are too much of a dreamer, and have too many hobbies to make an outstanding success of a career or business. Your tastes, however, are simple, and you will always be content with your lot. You are a rather disorderly worker, but you are always busy. You try to do too many things, to do any of them efficiently. It is very difficult for you to ever say "no" to any request, and you are kept on a run trying to fulfil your promises. You are sometimes late in doing so, but you never completely fail.

You crave companionship, and you always want a crowd around you. Your home may be a peaceful one, but it will never be a quiet one. You are not a great reader, but you are both a good talker and listener.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"JUST WEAK."

DEAR Miss McDonald: I have been thinking for sometime of asking you to help me. I am at a loss to understand one I thought was as near perfect as human beings could be. I had been going with him for several years. He seemed all devotion to me, taking me to the theater, movies, dinners; also sending me flowers and telling me to find an appropriate house where we could live after marriage. But he lived out of town.

When he was in the city he called every other evening. When out of the city he wrote me every day with special delivery or telegrams on Sundays and holidays, always telling of his devotion.

For several weeks I did not get a letter and I wrote to him asking why I received no answer. He wrote telling me he had been very ill in a hospital and he was preparing to come to me immediately. Then after a couple of days I received a letter stating he was too ill to receive, read or answer letters and signed by his wife. I wrote to him telling him of the letter I had received and asking if he was a married man.

I received a short note from him opening with "My dearest and only" and telling me how loyal I had been and how much he valued my acquaintance, but he neither denied his marriage or neither did he affirm it, signing it "Ever your faithful friend." Let me know just what you think of him and what would you think if you were in my stead. SARA.

What would you think if I were in your stead? I would think I had escaped a vast amount of misery. Which would you rather be, you, or the wife? He addresses you after his marriage and calls you his "dearest and only!" In your place I should feel much as the man did who drove his car from under a bridge here yesterday just as the bridge collapsed into the road!

You see there are men of just every conceivable kind in the world, very few all bad, and none all good. Yours was one of those who would simply love to do right, but seem unable to accomplish that feat. And my dear child however much we may sympathize with that type of man we all must admit that they can cause an unconscionable amount of trouble. So at best he was no acquisition, and at worst he may have been involved in complications that would have entered him in still another class, and not a higher one.

Just accept the fact that he was not all those things you believed him to be, and that as a fact he was at best just weak and then forget him. Certainly that is what I should do in your stead and that is what you wanted to know, was it not?

Prices realized on Swift & Co. sales of carcass beef in Washington, D. C., for week ending Saturday, June 21, 1930, on shipments sold out ranged from 14.00 cents to 21.50 cents per pound and averaged 17.94 cents per pound.—Adv.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

With NELSON B. BELL

THERE are so many points of absorbing appeal and outstanding merit in the Paramount production of "With Byrd at the South Pole," now playing the Columbia, that columns might be written about it exclusively for days to come.

Sabbath's review only scratched the surface of all the things that might have been said concerning it, so it may not be inadmissible to recapitulate now a few things that were omitted then.

It seems to me notable that in this day of talking and singing pictures, "With Byrd at the South Pole" should create the profound impression it must on any intelligent spectator through use of a synchronized musical score, a few sound effects and the old-time printed subtitle. Not until the last of the footage, during Byrd's flight over the South Pole, does Floyd Gibbons's voice crash through in a running account of the flight, much in the McNamee manner.

It is surprising, too, that with no more perfect facilities than they had at hand, Cameramen Van der Veer and Rucker should have turned in such an extraordinarily fine photographic job.

Not until Little America is completed is it brought home to the onlooker what an astounding amount of hard work must have been done, or with what painstaking completeness the Antarctic expedition had been equipped. Never in the history of exploration, I believe, have the adventurous members of any similar party been so nearly luxurious in their hardships!

Radio, phonographs, airplanes, heating plants, lighting plants, libraries—everything but open plumbing.

The most pathetic bit in the picture, to me, is the death of Spy, the heroic lead dog that could not be induced to abandon his sledge—that is, if he did die. This is one of the theatrical touches that might well have been planned purely for effect. The fatal shot is merely heard—not seen.

To offset this tragic episode, however, is the one in which the newborn puppies are exposed to a frozen and snowy world for the first time, still too young to walk or bother much about the time of day. Their mother lifts them back to warmth and security like so many rag dolls! But this could go on for days. . . .

Speaking of Sabbath's review, because Admiral Byrd's introductory speech was recorded after the completion of the expedition and the safe return of all members of the party in good health, although it is delivered from the screen before the beginning of the action of the picture, I wrote, "The picture is begun by what is, in fact, a brief epilogue."

So the omniscient and eagle-eyed proofreader, who rewrites all my copy for me, "corrected" it to "prologue"—which was a very great help!

There is a persistent rumor afloat—and anything ought to be able to float in atmosphere as heavy as we've been having lately—to the effect that the Rialto Theater is to reopen briefly for a run of "All Quiet on the Western Front" and then go right back to sleep again.

Precisely when is not intimated, and, anyhow I don't believe it.

There is another one, even more persistent, that the refrigeration plant at the RKO-Keith Theater will be completed and freezing your ears off by the first of July.

It semes to me that one of the fastest coming young men in pictures is Frank Albertson, appearing in the role of Will Rogers' son in "So This Is London," a part comparable to that assumed by Owen Davis, jr., in the gum-chewer's first all-talkie, "They Had to See Paris."

Albertson, a native of Fergus Falls, Minn., began his motion picture work in a film laboratory, became an extra, played a bit in "Hell's Angels" and finally was put under contract by Fox Films. He had a small part with Richard Barthelmess in "Son of the Gods," but was cast to much better advantage in both "Salute," with George O'Brien, and "Men Without Women," that tense drama of the U. S. submarine sunk in the China Sea.

The lad has something.

There has come to this desk a pert photograph personally autographed by that contagious wisp of Mexican pepper, Armida, appearing as star of Gus Edwards' miniature revue at the Earle, of which acknowledgement is hereby gratefully made.

I take it that this is to serve in lieu of the luncheon to which I was not bid, a glimpse at the old silhouette probably having given the impression that this department had better go on a diet! And it probably had.

Why not name him "Wee" Lindbergh?

Wife Claims Mate Beat Her; Swoons

F. J. Hulbert Surrenders in Court and Files $300 Bond.

Accompanied by his wife, Bessie Hulbert, Francis J. Hulbert appeared in Police Court yesterday and watched calmly while his wife swore to a warrant charging him with assault.

Voluntarily surrendering, the man then appeared before Judge John P. McMahon and, pleading not guilty, demanded a trial by jury. Bond of $300 was set. The Hulberts live on H street northwest, near Nineteenth street, and the wife alleged that he had beaten her.

During the proceedings in connection with the swearing out of the warrant and the arraignment the woman swooned several times.

CONOCO MARCHES ON TO NEW VICTORIES!

FIRST REGULAR STOCK OIL TO PLACE IN INDIANAPOLIS 500 MILE RACE MAY 30, 1930 SUPERVISED BY CONTEST BOARD A. A. A.
PROVED ON PIKE'S PEAK AGAINST 3 NATIONALLY KNOWN OILS SUPERVISED BY CONTEST BOARD A. A. A.
CONOCO'S ORIGINAL CHALLENGE TO THE OIL WORLD NOV. 14, 1929 ANNOUNCEMENT OF NEW GERM-PROCESSED MOTOR OIL

CONOCO'S recent victories with the celebrated new Germ-Processed oil have all been sensational in their theory-blasting results. . . . And what is even more important, every fact about these victories has been verified and attested to by that great impartial body, the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association.

So, when you read that Germ-Processed oil is the first really stock oil to "place" in the Indianapolis Speedway Race . . . when you learn the remarkably good condition of this oil after that motor-punishing grind . . . when you are advised that you can buy this same oil at your own near-by CONOCO Station, you know it's true! The AAA Contest Board says so!

You remember, too, how the Pike's Peak Tests disclosed such startling facts about CONOCO'S superiority as to literally upset many preconceived ideas about motor lubrication. Germ-Processed excelled three nationally known oils in the Pike's Peak Test on many vital points, particularly reducing motor wear 76.4% over the average of the three other oils! After the Pike's Peak Tests, the AAA Contest Board issued their official Test Certificate No. 2268 verifying every result which we made public.

CONTEST BOARD AAA CERTIFIED TEST

In both the Pike's Peak Tests and the Indianapolis Speedway Races, observers of the AAA Contest Board checked the absolute honesty of CONOCO'S claims. Every statement regarding either of these events is therefore guaranteed by impartial authority.

CONOCO'S chief competition at Indianapolis was specially blended castor oils unsuited for every-day driving . . . oils made for racing motors. While the Indianapolis achievement was made with regular "stock" CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil, the kind you buy at the sign of the CONOCO Red Triangle.

So CONOCO is marching on to new victories. A march which began November 14, 1929, when the now famous CONOCO challenge was issued coincident with the announcement of the new Germ-Processed oil as "the first really new oil of the century". . . . This claim was based on the utilization of the CONOCO-owned Germ Process patents, which endow this new oil with that sensational metal-penetrating safety factor, which has since been termed: "Penetrative Lubricity".

Only CONOCO has the Germ Process . . . only CONOCO has Penetrative Lubricity . . . only CONOCO has proved to you, by certified tests like these, that this is the best oil for you to use. Drive in at the sign of the Red Triangle and ask for:

The Original "It" Girl

THE GIRL IN THE AIR

BY JULIE ANNE MOORE

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS CHAPTERS.

Janet Decker, eighteen, with closely cropped head of burnt gold and pair of very large and quizzical eyes. The flying secretary for

Richard C. Tolbert, president of the Great Eastern Air Transportation Co. and father of Dick Tolbert, an attractive young man who is an official for the Great Eastern and who has confessed his love for Janet and whom Janet is beginning to think she loves. He, however is engaged to Helen Morgan, a society girl, who has just sailed for Europe.

Hugh Temple, an official and pilot for Great Eastern, and the man who hired Janet. He is strangely missing, along with a huge shipment of money which he, with Tolbert, sr., and Janet were transporting to a New York bank. He had been left in charge of the money and the plane and suddenly disappeared, along with the cash and the ship.

Henry Frenda, a clerk in the office of Great Eastern, and a friend of Janet's.

Belter, office manager for Great Eastern.

Miss Sears, Dick Tolbert's secretary.

Upon Janet's return from the adventurous trip to New York, Fred Turner comes to call and brings forth an engagement ring which he has bought for Janet. Janet tells him she can not wear it because she isn't sure she loves him, and promises a definite answer soon. When they return from a walk, they find Dick Tolbert smilingly waiting for Janet at her house.

Now, go on with the story:

CHAPTER X

Dick Tolbert was ease itself. If he was conscious of Janet's intense feeling toward him since the Morgan affair on the hotel mezzanine, he gave no sign of it.

"I'm awfully sorry I had to break into your evening like this, Janet," he told her earnestly. "Unfortunately, Dad had a call about an hour ago that makes it necessary for him to go back to New York tonight. I told him I'd have you there before ten, if you were home."

"Hmm!" said Janet uncertainly; "their's not to question why; their's but——." It suddenly occurred to her that Dick and Fred had not met. "I'm sorry," she said quickly; "Mr. Turner, Mr. Tolbert."

The two men shook hands and smiled at each other pleasantly; almost too pleasantly, Janet thought. "It's a pleasure, I'm sure," Dick said smoothly.

"Same here," Fred replied.

Silence, long and awkward.

"Well, Fred," Janet said with a little shrug; "duty calls. I haven't unpacked my suitcase, so there's little to be done. I'll be ready in about two minutes—Mr. Tolbert," she told Dick stiffly.

Fred backed off toward the door. "Guess I'll be running along, Jan. Glad I met you, Mr. Tolbert."

Janet wanted to go to the steps with him, to say good night; but something held her back. "Good luck, Fred!" she called after him as he stepped out on the porch. "I'll give you a call when I get home again."

Mr. Decker came into the room rubbing his glasses with a fresh handkerchief.

"Have you met my father, Mr. Tolbert?" Janet asked Dick.

Mr. Decker shoved his handkerchief into a back pocket and adjusted his glasses. "I'm mighty glad to know you Mr. Tolbert. Jan's been telling us how nice you've been to her since she went out to the airport."

Dick shook hands cordially, but his eyes were watching Janet's flushed cheeks. "We haven't had an opportunity to be very nice to her, Mr. Decker," he declared. "Lots of excitement, you know; and your daughter's been in the midst of it."

Mr. Decker was plainly puzzled. "Excitement?" he asked. "Jan hasn't said anything about any excitement. Nothing serious, I hope."

"No, Dad," Janet intervened. "Just the usual excitement you find around an airport. . . . Where's mother and Margaret?"

"I met your mother and sister," Dick informed her. "They entertained me until just a moment before you came in. They had a little excitement all their own, didn't they, Mr. Decker?"

"That's right," Mr. Decker agreed, laughing. "Mother's hot-water tank sprang a leak and I had to call for help. Tried to flood the whole kitchen. Margaret solved the problem with soap until I could get my soldering outfit. But it's all right now."

Janet watched Dick's expression as he listened to her father and wondered what he was thinking about her, her home, and her family. It was quite likely that he had never been into a home as modest as this before. By all reports his father's Middlebury mansion was one of the wonders of the Naugatuck Valley. Had his own father ever mended a leaky tank? Had he in all his life known what it was to be called into the small domestic affairs of the house?

Probably not, Janet thought, for she had heard that Mr. Tolbert had inherited a large fortune from Dick's grandfather. And in due course of time a still larger fortune would be handed down to Dick. The Decker home and its occupants were foreign to his experience and it was not unreasonable for Janet to suspect that he was amused by it all.

And then she asked herself why it mattered. Dick Tolbert were merely the boss' son, come to take her to her work. Nothing more.

Whether he was laughing up his sleeve or really enjoying this contact with a less pretentious world was of no consequence.

Janet excused herself and went to tell Margaret and her mother good-by. When she came back Mr. Decker had managed to start a friendly argument with Dick on the virtues of the airplane in warfare, and was driving home each point by pounding his fist on the arm of his chair.

"You're unquestionably right in one respect, Mr. Decker," Dick declared gravely at the first opportunity; "but I'm inclined to think you're wrong when you say that the next war will be fought entirely in the air. The airplane will carry its share of the burden, but after all"——

"Meanwhile," Janet interrupted, "we'd better be getting out to the airport or Mr. Tolbert will start a war on the ground."

In the commodious limousine, Janet slid far over into a corner and tried to steel herself against the inevitable. Somehow Dick's courteous, respectful attitude toward her father had taken the edge off her antagonism. He had seemed really to enjoy the comradely tilt with Mr. Decker, and there had been no small hint of insincerity in his conversation or manner.

Dick, finding himself deserted on his side of the seat, shifted over until his sleeve barely touched Janet's arm. "You're a lucky girl, Janet," he said presently. Your dad is a good sort."

"The best there is," she declared loyally." And to thwart any design he may have had to introduce the subject that she knew was coming, she asked: "You said Mr. Tolbert had a call that made it necessary for him to go to New York tonight. Anything unusual?"

"Rather," he told her. "The detectives have found Susie, the amphibian. Dug her out of an old barn about half a mile from the Curtiss Field."

Janet turned to him eagerly. "And Hugh?" she demanded. "They didn't find Mr. Temple?"

No. Not a sign of him. Nor the bag, of course. Funny thing about the plane, Janet," he told her. "It was put away as carefully as if it had been stored by our own mechanics. Her wings had been taken off to get her in the barn, but they were laid alongside the fuselage and not a tear in them. Strange business, when you stop to ask yourself how a band of highwaymen would probably do a job like that."

Janet missed the point. "But who else but a band of highwaymen could have done it?" she asked, puzzled.

"Lord knows, Janet. Dad talked to the detectives for half an hour and I guess they've got grounds for their theory. They don't think it was robbery."

Light was seeping into Janet's innocent little head. "Oh, no!" she cried softly. "They couldn't mean that. It had to be robbery. You know——." She suddenly grew silent.

"Don't think I'm accusing Hugh, Janet," he said after a time. "You know how I feel toward him, and even if I knew he had—had gone away with the money, I think I'd still stand by him. But it's a devilishly strange case, Janet. Hugh's one and only love was that clumsy amphibian they've found in the barn. He looked after it like a mother looks after her child. And there they found it, tucked away more carefully than any one could well expect of highwaymen."

"I don't care what you or any one else says, Dick," she declared, passionately, "Hugh Temple didn't take that money. It may be hard to explain any other way, but there's another solution just the same. One of these days Hugh will show up and make fools of all of you. Unless," she added hesitantly, "they—did away with him."

Reynold's bridge was barely visible as the car turned on to the Greystone road. One small, yellow light threw its tiny rays from a second-story window of the house on the right.

"We've got to come to it sooner or later, Janet," she heard Dick saying quietly, "and there's nothing gained by putting it off."

Janet said sharply: "I don't know what you're talking about."

"I hope you won't make it any harder for me than it is," he said, presently. "In the first place, Helen means absolutely nothing to you. I know that. And with Helen eliminated it means that your resentment is directed at me, and me alone. Goodness knows, you've reason enough to despise me. Helen set out to be insulting and she was determined to hurt you. I saw that the moment I introduced you, but——"

"But you let her go ahead and have her way without so much as asking her to be civil," Janet snapped angrily. "Of course, she doesn't mean anything to me, and nothing she said or could say would make any difference to me. Helen Morgan didn't insult me; she merely tried. It was you who stooped to insult."

"That's what I am coming to, Janet," he said earnestly. "Helen didn't enter. You were hurt because I didn't interfere and try to bring Helen to her senses. And yet," he added defensively, "if you could have known how I ached for you, how I wanted to pick you up and walk away from there without a word, you would understand how I had to fight to control myself."

Janet said coldly: "You'd have done me a favor if you had slapped my face and thrown me over the railing into the lobby. Anything, absolutely anything but what you did."

"But here's the point you fail to appreciate, because you don't know Helen as I do. She saw when we walked up to them that you were altogether too pretty and charming to be trusted with me and she determined to wound you, to say something or do something that would have its effect on me. It never occurred to her that you would have spirit enough to resent it."

"She thought, I suppose," Janet said with venomous sweetness, "that I'd express regret that I hadn't gotten the job as her maid."

"Whatever she thought," Dick went on, "nothing under heaven could have altered her plan, and knowing her as I do, the very worst thing that could have happened would have been a protest from me. No one likes to make a scene, Janet—at least no one with any decency—but it wasn't just a scene I was afraid of. Helen Morgan is positively dangerous when she's angry. She's a placid enough individual to look at, Janet, but she's brutal. I've seen her do things that you wouldn't believe if I told you."

The low border lights of the airport ran along the edge of the field a few feet to the left of the road. At regular intervals the beacon swept over them. Three little lights slipped easily through the night above the hangars, and the purr of an engine came to them through the opening in the window.

Suddenly Janet turned to Dick and put her hand on his arm. "All right, Dick," she said courageously; "I'm licked. I believe you and I'm mighty sorry it happened."

A plane was warming up at the starting line. Crimson tongues of flame darted from its exhaust. A group of men stood a little distance away talking. Janet thought she recognized Henry Frenda and Belter, the office manager. Henry's home was but a few minutes' walk from the airport, and his presence on the field at such an hour was not surprising. Why Belter was there she could not imagine. Unless Tolbert had sent for him

Janet realized that she had been an easy victim to Dick's frank appeal to her sense of fairness. But even now she was afraid she had not met him half way.

"Dick," she said quietly, as they walked toward the administration building, "I've probably given you the idea that I don't think much of Helen Morgan. She's a woman in love, Dick, and she's not afraid to fight. I'm not used to her sort of battle, but I admire her for her spirit just the same. I'm telling you this," she added, "because I want you and me to be friends, and we can't be, Dick, if you think I'm hating the woman you love."

One foot on the step before the door, Dick halted abruptly. He put a hand on Janet's shoulder and pulled her around gently until she was looking directly into his eyes. "Janet," he said, and his voice was low and cold and positive, "I don't love Helen Morgan."

"Dick!"

"I know I shouldn't say it, Janet, but it's the truth. I thought I did until the day before yesterday. Now I know better. I love you, Janet. I——."

"You mustn't say that!" Janet protested. "It isn't fair or right or——."

Dick said firmly: "Fair or unfair, right or wrong, I do love you, darling . . . love you with all my heart and soul . . . love you as I will never love another woman as long as I live . . ."

"But you can't: You simply can't," Janet cried out helplessly. "You're engaged and I——."

The door behind Dick opened and Tolbert sr., stepped out. "Well," he said slowly, the word implying much. "One moment I find the lovely heroine fleeing from the handsome hero. Another, I discover them in secret session. While I walk the floor and tear my hair for fear they will not arrive in time to carry on with the action. There's intrigue here, my children, or I miss my guess."

He closed the door behind him and motioned for them to follow him to the waiting plane.

Winning The Race with Time

IN these headlong days of ours we are forever racing with time and the speed of the telephone is helping us win the race.

More and more, business people are getting the telephone habit. A Sales Manager recently placed thirty calls to ten out-of-town places. He made twenty-five sales which resulted in two thousand dollars worth of business---all without leaving his desk. The calls amounted to $12.90. It would have taken a salesman two weeks with all the expense of traveling to visit those dealers individually.

We have a booklet "The Star of The Sales Force" which shows how large business houses successfully use telephone service to reduce costs, increase sales and enlarge profits. Our business office will be glad to mail you a copy.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

HOW LONG TO LIVE?

The bulletin of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. is responsible for a table of life expectancies of people at different ages. Using such a table any person can tell how much longer the average person of his age can expect to live. The table supplies life expectancies for the years 1928, 1927, and 1926, based on the total population in the entire registration area in 1920. It applied to all sections of the country and to all persons, regardless of sex and race.

The Glover tables, issued by the census office several years ago, covering only the New England States and a few near by, were based on the 1910 census and grouped the population by sex and race.

In 1920 a baby at birth could expect to live about 58 years, 2 months and 5 days. The babies one year of age had a life expectancy of 60 years, 6 months, and 6 days. Those two years of age, 60 years, 2 months, and 1 day. Three years of age, 59 years and 6 months. Four years, 58 years, 8 months, and 16 days. Five years, 57 years, 10 months, and 11 days. Six years, 57 years and 14 days. Seven years, 56 years, 2 months, and 2 days. Twelve years of age, 51 years, 7 months, and 17 days. Seventeen years, 47 years, 2 months, and 8 days. Twenty-two years of age, 43 years and 4 days. Twenty-seven years of age, 38 years, 10 months, and 20 days. Thirty-two years of age, 34 years, 8 months, and 26 days. Thirty-seven years of age, 30 years, 8 months, and 1 day. Forty-two years of age, 26 years, 8 months, and 1 day. Forty-seven years of age, 22 years, 11 months, and 15 days. Fifty-two years of age, 19 years, 3 months, and 25 days. Sixty-two years of age, 12 years, 9 months, and 25 days. Sixty-seven years of age, 10 years and 2 days. Seventy-two years, 7 years, 9 months, and 25 days. Seventy-seven years of age, 5 years, 11 months, and 16 days. Eighty-two years of age, 4 years, 5 months, and 8 days. Eighty-seven years of age, 3 years, 4 months, 1 day. Ninety-two years of age, 2 years and 6 months. One hundred and two years of age, 1 year and 8 months.

The average person 33 years of age has lived up half his life. Every one will understand that each living person can not expect to live as long as these averages indicate, nor that he can plan his life on that basis. It does mean that insurance companies and business enterprises can plan on that as the average for all persons in his group. By adding the expectancy to the age we get the expected average age at death of the group. For instance, the average age at death of men 62 years old in 1928 will be 74 years 9 months and 25 days.

SHOULD INVESTIGATE WATER.

E. L. writes: Every summer we go to a beautiful resort at which there are about 50 or 60 people.

Each year for five years there has been an epidemic of running of the bowels, vomiting, and pain in the stomach. The symptoms last five or six days. Could it be the water?

Shall I take my 3-year-old child there next summer?

What can we do to prevent the trouble?

REPLY.

Your story indicates that the trouble is with the water. It should be investigated by the local and State health departments. The proprietors owe that much to their patrons. Unless something is done, the patrons should go elsewhere.

NATS DEFEAT INDIANS 9-5, 3-2 TO GAIN SECOND PLACE; CARNERA WINNER ON GODFREY'S FOUL IN 5TH ROUND

Primo Wins Round 3; Disregards Earlier Fouls.

By EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sport Writer).

BAKER BOWL, Philadelphia, June 23 (A.P.).—In keeping with the finest traditions of modern heavyweight battle, Primo Carnera, the mighty Muscle Merchant of Venice, overcame the brawn of Giant Godfrey tonight—on a foul.

Ballyhooed far and wide as the test that was to prove Carnera a genuine, ripsnorting warrior and not just a 6 feet 7 inch 262-pound circus mammoth with an inspired flare for showmanship, the battle managed to prove exactly nothing. It ended in the fifth round with the man who was behind on points on the floor—just as the ill-fated Sharkey-Schmeling heavyweight title wound up in the Yankee Stadium June 12.

It furnished 36,000 of the ever-faithful with another picture of extreme agony, this time the biggest in point of size that they had ever seen, but, after all, it was the same old picture. Carnera, taking up most of the floor space, writhed like a feather-weight after a swinging left hook thudded low in his groin. He squirmed and contorted and ended up limp and unconscious, to be dragged unceremoniously by the head and heels to his corner.

Godfrey Wanders Around.

Godfrey, a huge smiling Negro, of some fighting ability, wandered around in the same perplexed fashion as at the close of so many recent "big battles." Dr. J. Webb Vaughn, physician of the Pennsylvania Athletic State Commission, examined the vast Venetian in the ring and found that "he wats fould, badly hurt and unable to continue."

Referee Tom Riley, who handled the struggle in the rain the night Gene Tunney striped the heavyweight title robes from Jack Dempsey here in 1926, said the blow was "a deliberate foul."

As for the fight itself, there was much action, but little of a decisive nature through the first four rounds and the 1 minute 13 seconds the fifth lasted. On the Associated Press scorecard, Godfrey had a margin in the first, second, and a slight edge in the fourth session, with Carnera the better man in the third. There were no knockdowns, although Carnera was staggered in the first round.

Sinister Rumblings In Crowd.

There were sinister rumblings in the crowd that paid about $160,000 to see the clash of the two biggest men ever to face each other in a prize ring. Although Godfrey entered the fray as an 8 to 5 favorite, according to ringside gossip there were many predictions from those who seemed to know that the bout would end between the fourth and sixth rounds, some one seemed to have done some marvelous guessing.

The opening round chased all thought of fake from the mind of the skeptical. Concentration on the body of Carnera with a left hook that the big gondola could not block, Godfrey slammed his man around the ring, tore at his ribs and shot over hard rights to Primo's head at will. The Negro giant, facing the only man who ever out-sized him, tucked his head down on Carnera's chest and pounded him across the ring.

He caught Primo on the ropes, shook him badly with three left hooks to the chin and the ring, especially reinforced with steel beams to support that quarter ton of fighting men, trembled as Carnera jumped away from danger. Godfrey followed, whaled Primo a couple of rights to the chin and had the Venetian slowly sinking into a ballet dancer's split at the end of the round.

Italian Recuperates Fast.

Although the danger signals were flying high for the giant, he recuperated fast between rounds and came out for the second session, boxing coolly and well for such a mammoth man. "Big Gange" rushed his man again, smiling as he came in, but could not land with the same effectiveness as in the first. Primo took a more modified lacing at close quarters, stopped a few more rights with his chin, but all in all did much better.

Godfrey tired in the third and Carnera slung him around in the clinches at will, drilled several short

2d Sharkey-Schmeling Bout Looms as Buelow Quits as Co-Manager

NEW YORK, June 23 (A.P.).—Negotiations for a return heavyweight title match between Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey were advanced today when Arthur Buelow, the German's disputed manager, reached an agreement through the Madison Square Garden Corporation for the disposal of his 20 per cent share in Schmeling's earnings.

Some technicalities remain to be ironed out, but papers separating Schmeling and Buelow will be signed tomorrow, Frank J. Bruen, general manager of the Garden, announced. Bruen added he expected contracts for the return fight, in September at the Yankee Stadium, to be signed before the end of this week.

Under the agreement it is understood Buelow will receive approximately $50,000, which will be paid by Jack Sharkey out of the latter's 12½ per cent "cut" in the gate receipts. Sharkey has stood by his offer to take the small end of the purse and meet all financial obligations in order to insure a return bout this year. He told Bruen he would be willing to fight for nothing, if necessary.

McWeeny Defies Reds On Release to Minors

Cincinnati, Ohio, June 23 (A.P.).—Douglas McWeeny, pitcher, obtained by the Reds in a trade for Adolf Luque, today was released to the Columbus American Association Club. The hurler balked at the transfer and said he will quit baseball before going to the Senators. President Sidney Weil gave him permission to negotiate with other major league clubs, all of which whived on him.

Gridiron Golfers Led by Markham

In the tournament of the Gridiron Club, played yesterday on the course of the Columbia Country Club, Edgar Markham won the low gross prize with a card of 44-47—91. There was a double tie for the low net prize, six silver cocktail cups donated by H. L. Rust, between H. T. Morsell and Robert L. Norton, each with identical scores of 97—24—73, and this tie will be played off in the near future.

In match play against par, there was a quadruple tie between Thomas W. Brahaney, George R. Holmes, Edgar Markham and Charles Michelson, each being 10 down to par. Henry L. West won the Kicker's Handicap, drawing the lucky number 77, his score being 95—18—77, while the guest prize, offered by William C. went to Powell Browning, with low net of 72.

Mrs. H. Brand, Jr., Wins Women's Medal Play

Mrs. Harrison Brand, jr., of the Chevy Chase Club, yesterday won the low net prize, a handsome statuette of a golf girl donated by Mrs. Strauss, in the eighteen-hole medal play handicap tournament of theWomen's District Golf Association played on the course of the Woodmont Club. Mrs. Brand had a fine score of 90 and with a handicap of 8 had a net of 82. Her card was only three strokes higher than the 44—43—87 turned in by J. Marvin Haynes, Columbia, which won the low gross prize. The second low net was won by Mrs. J. F. Dowdall, 97—13—84, while Mrs. J. R. DeFarges, 100—14—86, was third. Second low gross prize was won by Miss Winifred Faunce, Manor, with 46—43—89. Prizes were also awarded to other low net winners as follows:

Mrs. Gilbert Hahn, 105, 18—87; Mrs. John Shulman, 101, 14—87; Mrs. H. B. Hird, 99, 11—88; Mrs. A. S. Gardiner, 107, 18—89; Mrs. Jerome Meyer, 105, 16—89; Mrs. Frank Tomlinson, 98, 9—89; Mrs. J. T. Powell, 106, 18—90; Miss Emelyn Lacey, 106, 18—90; Mrs. J. F. Gross, 101, 11—90; Mrs. J. W. Harvey, jr., 105, 14—91; Mrs. J. O. Rhyne, 106, 14—92; Miss Sue E. Gantt, 109, 16—93; Miss Dorothy Hunter, 95, 2—93; Mrs. Grace Bruines, 103, 9—94.

EUGENE C. GOTT—PRESIDENT

Virginia Shots Plan Title Tourney

Five State Trophies Are to Be Competed For.

RICHMOND, Va., June 23 (A.P.).—Five State trophies will be at stake during the thirty-first annual tournament of the Virginia Trapshooters Association, to be held at Richmond under the auspices of the Richmond Gun Club on July 4 and 5.

More than 100 amateurs are expected to train their sights on the clay pigeons in seeking awards emblematic of the State championships at single targets, double targets, handicap targets, the all-round State championship and the five-man team race of Virginia. A thousand dollars in cash and trophies will be given.

Tournament Not Limited To Virginians.

Amateur shooters from States other than Virginia will be welcomed to the tournament, but will not be eligible for the State contests, although they will not be barred from other trophy competition, M. D. Hart, president of the association, said today. Other officers are Louis Rueger, vice president, and A. M. Pullen, secretary-treasurer, both of Richmond.

The tournament has been certified by John Brandt, of Vandalia, Ohio, manager of the Amateur Trapshooting Association, whose rules will govern. Scores of 16-yard single targets, on doubles and on handicap targets will be included in official records.

The annual meeting of the Virginia Trapshooters Association will be held at the Hotel Rueger at 8 p. m. on July 4. The shooting grounds of the Richmond Gun Club, near the Country Club of Virginia, will be used.

The two-day program, announced today by President Hart, is as follows:

Friday, July 4, events 1 and 2, beginning at 9 a. m.—Fifty single targets, 16-yard rise, 25 targets each event (five-man team race); entrance, targets and A. T. A. fee, $2.75; Lewis class system, four classes, three moneys each ten entries, $2; optional sweeps, $2 each event, 40—30—20—10, $4.

Distance Handicap Carries State Title.

Events 3, 4, 5, 6—A. T. A. distance handicap State championship, 16 to 23 yards; A. T. A. and club trophy to winner and club trophy to runner-up. One hundred targets, four events, entrance targets and trophies, $5; optional sweeps on 100 targets, $1 each event, $4. Eight additional trophies will be awarded as yardage trophies in events 3, 4, 5 and 6 to the high guns at 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22 and 23 yards. Yardage trophies are open to all amateurs.

Events 7 and 8—A. T. A. doubles State championship. A. T. A. and club trophy to winner and club trophy to runner-up; two events, 10 and 15 pair. Entrance, targets and trophies, $2.50; sweeps on 25 pair, high guns, one money each five entries, $2.

Saturday, July 5, events beginning at 9 a. m.—Events 1 to 8: A. T. A. State championship at single targets. A. T. A. and club trophy to winner, club trophy to runner-up. Five class trophies—A, B, C, D, E—three trophies each class. Two hundred single targets, eight events, 25 targets each; entrance, targets and A. T. A. fee, $7.50.

Optional entry fees—Classification system for trophies, $5; Lewis class system, four classes, three moneys each ten entries, $2; $2 sweeps each event, divided 40—30—20—10, $16; total optional entry fees, $23; total entry, $30.50.

A. T. A. Trophy to Winner In All-Round Event.

In the contest for all-round State championships, the A. T. A. trophy will be awarded to the shooter having the highest total score on the 200 championship targets, the double targets and the handicap targets.

For the five-man team race of Virginia, any gun club in the State affiliated with the State association may enter as many teams as it wishes. A leg on the State association cup will be awarded the winning team and trophies will be given each man on the first and second teams.

A classification committee will be selected whose duty it will be to place all contestants in their proper class. Contestants will be classified according to their A. T. A. record and known ability.

The classes will be as follows: A, 93 per cent and over, 23 yards; B, 90 to 92 per cent, inclusive, 21 yards; C, 87 to 89 per cent, inclusive, 19 yards; D, 84 to 86 per cent, inclusive, 17 yards; E, below 84 per cent, 16 yards.

JONES WITH BRITISH CUP

Bobby Jones won the British open golf championship and shattered a 40-year-old record at Hoylake, England, June 20, leaving very little else for himself to do by way of shattering precedents in the world of golf. This very excellent radio photo, telegraphed from England, shows Bobby with the championship cup, immediately after the match. Jones' score was 291, two up on two other Americans, Leo Diegel and MacDonald Smith, who tied for second place with a 293.

IN THE WAKE OF THE GAME

MANUSH tried to get Hodapp's drive down by his shoetops in the Tribe's first, but the ball got by him and went for a triple, driving two runs over.

Miller opened the game for Washington by walking Myer on four successive wide ones.

When Manush fanned in the opener, it was the first time he had gone down in his manner since shifting from a St. Louis to a Washington uniform.

Crowder was on the job in the Indians' second, hustling back toward the middle sack, to take Harris' poor return peg and to nail Hodapp, who was trying to follow Miller home on Morgan's double. Morgan thought this was the third out and sauntered off the bag, but managed to get back just a flicker ahead of Spencer's throw there.

Porter raced over toward the right-field foul line to rob Harris of a hit and the Nats of another run in the first.

The fans gave Umpire Ormsby the raspberry when he called Myer out at first in round 5 after the Nat second baseman apparently had beaten out a high bounder to Burnett. This cost the Johnsons a run which would have tied the score. For West followed

Cumberland Golf Prize To Martin D. Tenny, Jr.

Cumberland, Md., June 23.—Martin D. Tenny, jr., graduate of Allegany High School, after battling four years, finally won the spring golf championship of the Cumberland Country Club yesterday by defeating Dr. Karl P. Heintz before a large gallery in the finals of the first flight, 5 up and 3 to play. The victory gave young Tenny his first leg on the Hitchins Bowl, which has been in competition for four years. Arthur B. Gibson had two legs on the trophy, whfle Dr. Heintz won it once. The prize must be won three times before it becomes one's permanent possession. By his victory the youthful golfer won the right to represent the Cumberland Country Club in the State Amateur Golf Championship Tournament at the Baltimore Country Club course at Five Farms June 25-28.

New England Loop Disbands for Season

Lynn, Mass., June 23 (A.P.).—The New England Baseball League stood discontinued today for the remainder of the season, with the poor drawing power of the four teams blamed for suspension of play.

The Nashua, N. H., and Lewiston, Me., clubs withdrew a few weks ago, leaving only four clubs, Lynn, Salem, Manchester, N. H., and Portland, Me. The discontinuance was announced by President Claude Davidson after a directors' meeting here last night.

Some of the clubs have played to crowds of less than 50 persons, day after day this season.

WINS TWO NET TITLES.

Charlotte, N. C., June 23 (A.P.).—Wilmer Hines, of Columbia, S. C., winner of the singles championship in the mid-Atlantic tennis tournament today, claimed the doubles title also.

Paired with Judge Beaver, of Atlanta, Hines took the finals doubles match from Jimmy and Al Halverstadt, Atlanta brothers, 2—6, 6—4, 6—3.

MIDGETS TO DRILL.

Georgetown Midgets are scheduled to drill today at 1 o'clock on No. 4 diamond. Manager Trundle requests all players to report.

Reveille Boy to Race In Rich Arlington Cup

Chicago, June 23 (A.P.).—Reveille Boy has been entered in the $30,000 added Arlington Cup race, a gallop over a mile and a quarter, at the Arlington Park racing strip, July 12.

Although Owner John Best neglected to name his surprising 3-year-old for the $80,000 Arlington classic, he hurriedly named him for the cup race right after he captured the American Derby. The cup classic is for 3-year-olds and over.

Bay League Feature To St. Georges Nine

Special to The Washington Post.

Newark, Del., June 23.—The Newark Club, of the Chesapeake Bay League, administered a stinging 6-to-1 defeat to Kennedyville, one of the topnotchers, by knocking the offerings of Loller, one of the league's most experienced pitchers, all over the lot. Whiteman, hurling for the winners, kept the visitors' hits well scattered. He was backed up by superb fielding.

Special to The Washington Post.

Middletown, Del., June 23.—In the hardest-fought baseball game this season played in the Chesapeake Bay League, St. Georges took fourteen innings to nose out a 4 to 3 victory over Middletown. Rawley, hurling for the locals, and J. McCarthy, visiting moundsman, staged a thrilling pitchers' duel after the local finger was responsible for two runs scored in the first inning on wild pitches. The winning tally was marked up when Boulden hit safely, stole second and scored as J. McCarthy hit safely to second and Reynolds, catching for Middletown, dropped the ball on the throw home.

Special to The Washington Post.

Galena, Md., June 23.—The home team defeated Cecilton by a 5-to-3 score with Clen Daniel and F. Bristow running neck and neck for batting honors in a Chesapeake Bay League game today. The Galena and Cecilton swatters each accounted for three hits and superior batting ability shown by the locals was responsible for the victory. Bristow, who hurled for Cecilton, allowed eleven hits and E. Coleman, for Galena, was touched for seven.

15,000 WATCH MARBERRY WIN DUEL AFTER TIMELY HITTING GIVES CROWDER FIRST GAME

Hadley Faces Tribe in 3d Game; Harris Proves Threat.

CAPT. JOE JUDGE expects to be back in the Washington line-up shortly. The veteran, who has been nursing a charley horse since June 9, is fast getting back to form, and just as soon as he convinces Manager Walter Johnson that his leg is normal he will ge the assignment, the Nat leader stated last night.

"If Shires was not playing so well, I might force Joe back in the game," said Johnson, "but with Art fielding well and hitting hard and timely there's no need of taking any chances of Judge going back too soon and again injuring himself.

Judge Still Regular, Says Johnson.

"Judge's injury is improving daily, and just as soon as he shows me that it is absolutely O. K., back he'll go in the line-up; for, despite several stories I have read to the contrary, Judge is still our first-string first baseman. There's no question in my mind but that Joe is Art's superior when he is right, and I'm keeping him out so that he'll soon be right."

Judge himself says that he will be ready shortly. He has just begun to give his injured leg a few tests and is greatly pleased with the results; but after working out before yesterday's double-header, he stated that the leg felt tired and that he thought two or three days more of only light work would be necessary before he started hitting on all cylinders.

The Nationals hope to make it three in a row when they meet the Indians again this afternoon. Irving Hadley will draw the pitching assignment for the home gang with Clinton Brown, a rookie who has won 7 of 12 starts this season, likely to do the allen flinging. Oddly enough, Brown has not worked against the Nationals this season, although he has toiled against practically every other club in the league.

Harris Shows That Barnes Won't Be Missed.

Outfielder Dave Harris showed yesterday that "Red" Barnes, for whom he was traded, never will be missed. While Harris is slow afield, he certainly can wield that willow and is a threat every time he goes to the swinging block.

Pitcher Ed Wineapple, southpaw collegian whom the Nats had on option first at Chattanooga and later at New Haven, has been given his unconditional release. It is understood that he has hooked up with the Harrisburg Club of the New York-Pennsylvania League.

One of the most promising of the several rookies getting trials with the Nationals is Joe Smith, a 17-year-old right-handed pitcher, who has been playing amateur ball in his home at Uniontown. Last year, he was the star hurler of the Uniontown Team in the American Legion series, which went to the semifinals.

Despite his youth and inexperience, he has made quite an impression on Manager Walter Johnson. He is stockily built, being about 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighing 183 pounds. The youngster has been asked to stick around awhile so that a better line may be gotten on his ability.

Sam Rice probably will be out of action for at least two more days because his bruised knee, hit in Sunday's game, stiffened up Sunday night. Meanwhile, Dave Harris will perform in the right-field pasture.

Nats' Texas Delegation At Capitol Today.

Admiral Richard Byrd, back from the underside of the world, had his official reception at the Capitol last week and Arthur Shires, back from the South Side of Chicago, will have his reception at the Capitol today. Along with Lloyd Brown, Fred Marberry and Samuel West, who like Shires are Texans, Shires will arrive at the Capitol at noon, where the quartet of Griffmen from the Lone Star State will be the guests of the Texas delegation in Congress.

Cameras will click on the steps of the Capitol as the four Washington ball players arrive. At the luncheon, Shires will be asked to make a few remarks. There will be no other oratory, the Texas statesmen having agreed to yield all the time to the picturesque Washington first baseman.

In order to make it strictly nonpartisan, the Texas delegation, most of whom are Democrats, have invited

Shires' Brilliant Play Nips Indian Rally in 9th Inning.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

HITTING the ball hard and timely behind good pitching, the Nationals yesterday delighted approximately 15,000 fans by twice downing the Cleveland Indians, the victories, coupled with the Yankees getting no better than an even break in their twin bill with the Browns, allowing the Johnsons to advance to second place in the league standing. They still trail the leading Mackmen by 2½ games, however, for the world's champs also won twice yesterday. The scores were 9 to 5 and 3 to 2.

"General" Al Crowder drew the pitching assignment against Southpaw Walter Miller in the opening encounter and got off from the barrier badly, spotting the Indians three runs in the first. Then his mates came to his rescue with the stick, pounding Miller off the peak in the third in favor of Belve (String) Bean and the "General" settled down and granted no more liberties with his slants until the ninth, when an error gave the Tribe a run which did it no good.

Marberry Wins Duel From Hudlin.

Fred Marberry and Willis Hudlin staged a pretty mound duel in the nightcap, which saw the Nats forge into an early 3-run lead only to receive the scare of their lives when Marberry faltered in the eighth long enough to grant two runs. The tying marker was on third and the winning one on first when Manush saved the day by a great shoe-string catch of Morgan's liner to end the round.

Again in the ninth was Marberry in trouble, but this time Shires came to his rescue, twice making brilliant plays after Averill had singled with one dead.

There were several Washington heroes, but the largest palm probably should be awarded to Dave Harris, who filled in at right field for the injured Sam Rice. This newcomer was credited with a single, double and sacrifice in the first game, being responsible for four runs besides scor-

THIRD CAVALRY FOUR DOWNS ARTILLERY IN CIRCUIT

Gunners Drop 10-6 Score in Baltimore

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 23.—Third Cavalry, winner of the Argentine and War Department Polo Cups, scored its first intracircuit victory by defeating the Sixteenth Field Artillery, 10 to 6, today at Stevenson. These fours are members of the Southern half of the Southeastern Circuit and both come from Fort Myer, Va. Third Cavalry had a two-goal handicap, which was not required to bring victory.

This match between these fours from the same Government reservation bristled with action from start to finish and probably was the hardest fought in the history of the sport at the home of the Maryland Polo Club. They rode courageously, their shooting was flashy, they were well mounted, their mallet work showed deftness and force, and their long runs thrilled.

For the first four chukkers they were evenly matched so far as the scoring was concerned, barring the two goals handicap in favor of the Third Cavalry. Each scored in the opening period, neither in the second, the Sixteenth in the third, while the Cavalry again was held scoreless.

Cavalry Tie Score In 4th Chukker.

After the intermission, Third Cavalry counted twice in the fourth chukker to once for the Sixteenth Field, making the earned goals 3-all. Third Cavalry broke loose in the fifth period and made three tallies. It added two more in the sixth chukker, but Sixteenth staged a spurt of its own to add three more markers. Sixteenth Field's last two goals were made in the final two minutes of play, and their execution was fast and furious.

First Place Is Held By Henry Park Netmen

Henry Park maintained its lead in the Public Parks Tennis League race last week, but Potomac, by defeating Rock Creek, six matches to two, drew up close in second place ahead of Monument, which had pressed the leader the week previous.

Following are the Potomac-Rock Creek scores and the league standings:

SINGLES.

Trigg (P) defeated Phillips, 6—2, 6—1; Herman (P) defeated Haney, 6—3, 6—1; Dr. Weiss (R. C.) defeated Hill, 6—4, 6—3; Goldsmith (P) defeated Newby, 6—4, 6—2; Robinson (R. C.) defeated Rathgeber, 6—3, 6—2.

DOUBLES.

O'Neill and Fowler (P) won by default; Herman and Trigg (P) defeated Robinson and Phillips, 6—3, 6—3; Goldsmith and Hill defeated Dr. Weiss and Newby, 6—1, 6—2.

Two major league ball players made five hits in one game yesterday. Al Simmons connected for two home runs, a double and two singles in as many times at bat against the Browns, while Hack Wilson got two singles, a double, triple and home run against the Phillies.

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S Patent Office.)

—Washington Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

AN ALLOWANCE race for 3-year-olds at a mile features the card at Washington Park. The field includes horses eligible for the forthcoming Latonia Derby, at which point racing begins Saturday. TANNERY, second choice in the Kentucky Derby May 17, in which he ran a very ordinary race, but later redeemed himself somewhat by beating Ned O, Gallant Knight and others in Chicago, TANNERY is much the best in the race today. At the distance, HIGH FOOT will be the contender. While he is a genuine flash, he can go a mile and be second. SIDNEY GRANT probably is the third horse in preference to DARK ENTRY, which was heralded as a speed horse earlier in the spring, but never has run to expectations. CULLODEN will have to improve greatly to be a factor.

FIRST RACE—MARY'S TOY, a recent winner, should repeat. MAKE HASTE, probably the class, seems to run in and out and will have to improve a great deal to figure dangerously, but is selected for place. TOP KICK, on Maryland form, has a chance for part of the purse. JESSIE CAREY and THE OKAH are others having an outside chance.

SECOND RACE—Maiden 2-year-old fillies go in the second event. SISTER MARY has been coming close, and figures best of the field. F. M. Grabner's entry of OUR PET and CHICAGO GIRL should be the contenders, with OUR PET the better of the pair. ZALIA should be well up with this bunch. The Greentree Stable has a promising entry in SPRING CLEANING.

THIRD RACE—ZIDA is picked to beat HONEY LOCUST. PORTMANTEAU is dangerous, but seems to want a heavy track. MISS ALABAMA showed great improvement last out, and she may get in the money. The race undoubtedly will be dominated by the first two mentioned.

FOURTH RACE, like the second, is for 2-year-old fillies, this being an allowance affair, and not claiming. IN BETWEEN stands out in the race. She will have J. N. Camden's BAGIEL as a contender, but should have little difficulty in doing so, conceding only six pounds. IN BETWEEN has about the best form of any of the fillies of her age racing in the West. ISSAQUENA should get third money. CONFLI has a chance, and won last week.

SIXTH RACE—FAVORITE II will have CHATTER BLACK to beat. Both have won brackets recently. If the track were muddy CHATTER BACK would have the advantage. MOSCOW should figure close up in the race, and is the best horse for third money.

SEVENTH RACE is for platers at a mile and a furlong. FRIEDJOF NANSEN is the most consistent of the lot, always running about the same kind of a race, whether winning or losing. This is an easier spot than the old campaigner usually finds. MASTER ACE looks next best. MISS MARYLAND is regarded as the show monye winner.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MUSKODAY, $121.28, $19.76, $10.88; PORTCODINE, $3.90, $3.22; DEWET, $11.36.

MUSKODAY began fast and kept in closest pursuit of PORTCODINE, forced the pace to stretch turn, and, when straightened out around the final turn, closed fast to gradually wear down and outfinish PORTCODINE. Latter, away well, took strong command to midway of stretch before tiring and, in the final drive, failed to last under pressure. DEWET began slowly, but quickly forcing his way into contention, raced to third position, kept it safe, but was unable to improve it. ARUNDEL met severe interference reaching far turn, was shut off and badly knocked back. BOB'S PLAY closed some ground.

THIRD RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:23. Off at 3:26. Winner, Harned Brothers' b. h. (5), by Thunder Storm—Brynwood. Trained by M. R. Harned. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $200; third, $100. Time, 0:23 4-5, 0:47 2-5, 1:13, 1:38 4-5, 1:52 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TYPHOON, $17.72, $8.66, $5.14; HARAMZADA, $6.40, $4.04; DUNMORE, $6.00.

TYPHOON, racing vastly improved and hard urged throughout, opened up a long lead, seemed to be tiring at stretch turn, but drew out again and won easily. HARAMZADA, lay slowly, worked his way into contention and made a game bid in stretch, but could not get to the leader while holding DUNMORE safe. DUNMORE was taken back off the pace and only responded fairly well when called upon in the final furlong. ORMONBIRD was a keen factor for the first mile, being close up on the outside, but tired in the stretch.

FOURTH RACE—One mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:58. Off at 3:59. Winner, Miss Blanche Watson's blk. c., by Star Master—Frostwick. Trained by J. H. Miller. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $200; third, $100. Time, 0:23, 0:46 4-5, 1:13 2-5, 1:40 2-5, 1:44 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HERNAN CORTES, $17.80, $6.74, $4.86; TENNESSEEAN, $4.56, $3.90; MR. DE LUXE, $14.94.

HERNAN CORTES worked way up on outside and, advancing on stretch turn, wore down MR. DE LUXE, went into the lead and drew clear, but was tiring and just outlasted TENNESSEEAN. Latter raced forwardly on the inside, met much interference and was badly shut off approaching the stretch turn, but came again strongly on the outside in the stretch and was wearing down winner at the end. MR. DE LUXE showed most speed to stretch turn, tired and weakened when winner challenged, but held on well in the drive.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,700. The Hubbard Handicap. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:28½. Off at 3:29. Winner, W. C. and E. W. Reichert's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BROWN WISDOM, $3.68, $3.54, out; PAUL BUNYAN, $7.22, out; GOLDEN PRINCE, out.

BROWN WISDOM, carrying his impost well, set his own pace, raced T. S. JORDAN into submission first half mile, then drew out strongly in the stretch and, despite taking wide course in final furlong, kept PAUL BUNYAN safe. Latter was outrun to stretch, then closed a big gap on the outside and finished fast and was wearing down the winner at the end. GOLDEN PRINCE showed a good effort, but was never able to seriously threaten the leaders. MARTIE FLYNN was kept close up to the pace from the start and tired suddenly in the final sixteenth. T. S. JORDAN, slow to find his stride, made a strong rush reaching the far turn, challenged BROWN WISDOM, but soon quit. PAUL BUNYAN was sent on to finish out one mile in 1:38 3-5.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:58. Off at 4:58. Winner, E. R. Moss' b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—APT, $14.26, $6.90, $6.52; GEORGE WEBRE, $5.86, $4.26; RIPPIELD, $9.40.

APT, away slowly and far out of it for the first six furlongs, closed a wide gap in the final quarter and, wearing down the leaders, won in a hard drive. GEORGE WEBRE, away well, raced RIPPIELD into submission in the stretch run, but could not match strides with the winner. RIPPIELD passed BETTY ANN in furlong pole, but tired in the stretch. TELA, off slowly and far back, closed a big gap, got into contention, but tired in final issue.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-quarter miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:30. Off at 5:30½. Winner, Oakland Farm's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—OUR PAL, $30.58, $11.30, $6.80; MARGATE, $6.34, $4.08; ONUP, $3.74.

OUR PAL, never far off the pace and saving ground on inside throughout, came again strongly in the final quarter and, getting through to the leaders, gamely wore down and outlasted MARGATE. MARGATE had good speed under restraint, assumed command reaching the stretch turn and continued well in the drive, but could not withstand winner. ONUP was well back of the leaders to the stretch turn, then closed a gap on outside and finished strongly. RALPH HARTENSTEIN closed a gap to get into contention, then faltered in the drive.

AMERICANS WIN IN 8 OF 9 MATCHES AT WIMBLEDON

Allison Beats Australian In Upset

Mrs. Moody Makes Her Tournament Debut Today.

By FRANK H. KING.

WIMBLEDON, England, June 23 (A.P.).—A spectacular triumph by Wilmer Allison, of the American Davis Cup Team, gave staid old Wimbledon its initial thrill as the British tennis championships got under way today.

The Fort Worth, Tex., youth, who with John Van Ryn, won Wimbledon's doubles title last year, upset Edgar F. Noon, champion of Australia, a seeded player, in straight sets, 6—1, 6—3, 6—3, to open the annual international pageant of tennis and fashion with a sensational form reversal. Hans Timmer, veteran Dutch Davis Cup star, just missed giving the crowd an even more surprising upset when he bowed in five strenuous sets to the defending singles champion, Henri Cochet, of France, 6—4, 9—11, 4—6, 6—4, 6—2.

Only One of Nine U. S. Players Beaten.

Of the nine Americans who stepped on Wimbledon's courts today only one, Eugene McCauliff, of New York, former Fordham University star, was beaten. McCauliff was eliminated by H. K. Lester, of the English Midlands, an old Cambridge Blue and former member of the British Davis Cup Team, 6—2, 7—5, 0—6, 6—4.

Big Bill Tilden, Berkeley Bell, of Austin, Tex.; Johnny Doeg, of Santa Monica, Calif.; Gregory Mangin, of Newark; George Lott, of Chicago; John Van Ryn, of East Orange, N. J., and E. O. Matner, American student at Oxford, all passed their first tests successfully.

Without taking off his sweater, Tilden frolicked through a straight set victory over A. A. Fyzee, of India, 6—1, 6—0, 6—2, and the interest Wimbledon has evinced in the tall Philadelphia's 1930 campaign was confirmed by the packed galleries around the No. 1 court during the American champion's appearance.

Doeg Eliminates Front Rank Player.

Johnny Doeg put out a front-rank English player in the person of Nigel Sharpe, 6—3, 6—1, 4—6, 4—6, 6—1, after letting the Briton draw level at two sets all. The ease with which Doeg won the deciding set left no doubt as to the American's superiority.

Van Ryn disposed of W. A. H. Duff, of Canada, 6—0, 6—1, 7—5; Lott conquered Soni, of India, 6—1, 6—1, 6—3; Mangin eliminated Yoshiro Ohta, of Japan, 4—6, 6—2, 6—1, 6—2; Bell defeated A. W. Vinall, of England, 5—7, 6—4, 6—3, 6—1, and Mather disposed of J. F. Frowen, of England, 6—4, 8—6, 7—5.

Allison's triumph over Moon, the farm boy champion of Australia, came as a stunning upset to the spectators who had expected great things from the Queensland youth. Moon, who is nearly twice the size of the nimble Texan, played many brilliant shots, particularly his forehand drives, but he could not cope with Allison's sustained crisp volleying and lightning leg work from the net to the baseline.

Cochet Steps Out When Necessary.

Timmer played great tennis against Cochet, but the little Frenchman applied pressure when in danger and Timmer could not find the strokes that would have won for him a sensational victory. The Frenchman took the first set, but Timmer took the second, a long-drawn-out affair, 11—9, and then amazed the crowd by winning the third at 6—4. Here Cochet rallied in customary style, drew level at two sets all and won the deciding set without particular trouble.

The 60 singles matches played today reduced the field in the men's singles to 64. Play today was under difficult weather conditions. Throughout the afternoon a vigorous wind swirled and eddied around Wimbledon's lawns and rain began just as the last match was concluded.

Later Helen Wills Moody practiced with Jean Borotra. Tomorrow she will be the leading lady on the center court against Fraulein Krahwinkel, of Germany.

Capital City Legaue Player Lists to Close on Monday

Legion Officials Rule on Protests; Montgomery Teams Meet; Senior and Insect Protests to Be Heard Soon.

CAPITAL CITY LEAGUE and American Legion officials began last night to thrash out protests and disputes arising from last Sunday's games and team managers of the Capital City League began their last-minute rush to sign players before the eligibility lists close next Monday night.

Along with the announcement last night by Wessal Stewart, former athletic officer for the District Department, American Legion, that the game of June 8 between the Sergt. Jasper and George Washington teams will stand as played, came the announcement from E. B. Lyons, present athletic officer, that the Victory Post team had protested Sunday's game which Spengler Post won from Victory Post.

The George Washington team protested the game of June 8, claiming that the contest did not go the regulation nine innings. Sergt. Jasper led at the end of eight innings, 3 to 1. In a signed statement, Mr. Stewart declared that he could not allow the protest on the grounds stated by Manager Lawrence of George Washington Post.

Victory Post Protests Game.

H. E. Whitely, athletic officer of Victory Post, filed the protest for the Victory team, claiming that Umpire Tommy David misinterpreted the rules during the course of game on several occasions and thereby aided Spengler in scoring a 3 to 1 decision. Mr. Lyons last night announced that a meeting will be held Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Sports Department of The Washington Post, at which time Manager Hare, of Spengler Post, and Manager Kleindienst, of Victory Post, will be given an opportunity to offer testimony before him.

Announcement was also made last night that a meeting of the managers of teams engaged in the Montgomery County section unlimited series of the Capital City League will be held in the sports department of The Post Wednesday night at 8 o'clock. An effort will be made by several team leaders to extend the date for signing additional players from June 15 to June 30. The umpire situation will also be discussed.

Curtins Claiming Victory.

An effort to determine the outcome of the Pierce Athletic Club-Curtin's All-Star game of last Sunday will be made this week. The Pierce Athletic Club management maintains that the game ended in a tie, 6 to 6. The Curtins claim a victory by a 6-to-5 score. Scorers of the two teams have been requested to place in the hands of the league secretary their score books.

A protest filed by the National Capital Insects, claiming that several Sterling players are over age, will be reviewed as soon as the protesting team submits its evidence. The National Capitals have until Friday midnight to collect evidence to support their charges.

No players may be added to the rosters of teams in the District Unlimited, Senior, Junior, Midget, Insect and Peewee classes after next Monday at midnight. Managers are busy making last-minute changes in an effort to bolster their clubs for the second half of the respective title races.

COLLEGE NET MATCHES TO MITCHELL

G. U. Player Rallies Twice in Intercollegiates.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 23.—Dennnison L. (Dooly) Mitchell, Georgetown University's hope to be crowned intercollegiate tennis champion for 1930, made an auspicious start here today in the opening play of the title tourney at the courts of the Merion Cricket Club near here. Mitchell won two matches and advanced to the third round. In a first round match he turned back J. F. Beckmen, of the College of Charleston, in a gruelling three-set match, 5—7, 6—4, 6—4.

Then after an hour's rest he stepped back on to the court and engaged in another set engagement before he emerged victorious over Jack Delara, of the University of Southern California. Both victories were of the sensational variety and truly were among the high lights of the opening day's play in which approximately 50 first round and 30 second round matches were staged.

In defeating Beckmen, he battled uphill all the way. Defeated, 7—5, in the third, he called upon effective lob to win the next two by the same score, 6—4. Delara, bronzed by the California sun and seemingly full of strength and vigor, pushed Mitchell to the limit in the second round match and only the more experienced play of the Washington representative enabled him to emerge triumphant.

Yeomans Defeated In First Round.

Clyde D. Yoemans, the other Georgetown representative, pased out of the picture early, being defeated in the early first round matches. Stanley Almquest, all the the way from Eugene, Oreg., a standard bearer of Oregon University, turned the trick in straight sets, 6—4, 6—3.

Julius Seligson, of Lehigh, seeded No. 1 and winer of the singles title two years ago, entered the fourth round today as a result of second and third round victories, after drawing a first round bye. Seligson met Eugene Hogenauer, of Haverford, in a second round tussle and won, 6—1, 6—0. In a third match he eliminated Thomas Mount, of Columbia, 6—0, 6—1.

CARNERA WINNER ON GODFREY'S FOUL

overhand rights to Godfrey's head and had the puffy Negro panting and bleeding from his lips at the end of the round.

The fourth round presaged the end. Godfrey obviously was weakening and his punches no longer drilled into Carnera's wide-open body. He tapped the ribs in close, missed at long range and looked more and more like a lumbering stevedore dropped into a new and puzzling situation. He managed to outrough Carnera, however, struck what clean blows there were and took one warning for hitting low.

Godfrey Slowed To Walk.

The fifth had scarcely started before Godfrey, now slowed to a walk, stepped across the ring with a left hook that everyone within 20 feet of the ring knew was going to land low. It thudded home for all to see and Primo capsized like a blimp struck amidships by lightning. As the pain grew worse he rolled and struggled and finally collapsed utterly on his back. There were several minutes delay while the referee called a physician but no count was started over the fallen gladiator.

Frank Wiener, chairman of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission said the purses of the fighters would be withheld pending an investigation. In the crowd that jammed the ball yard were Gene Tunney and Max Schmeling, past and present heavyweight champions, the latter winner of that honor on a foul by Jack Sharkey.

Tunney, sitting back of the press seats, was loath to express an opinion.

"I didn't see the blow that was judged low," he said. "I do believe though, that Carnera is a good ring prospect."

YANKS SPLIT PAIR WITH BROWNS

Take Opener, 15 to 0, But Bow, 10 to 6, in Nightcap.

NEW YORK, June 23 (A.P.):—The Yankees lost ground in the American League pennant race today as they divided a doubleheader with the St. Louis Browns, winning the first, 15 to 0, but losing the second, 10 to 6.

The division dropped the Yanks to third place, as the Nationals won two games from the Indians.

The Yankees piled up a big lead in the first four innings of the opening game, and, coupled with four-hit pitching by Henry Johnson, coasted to victory. Babe Ruth led the attack with his twenty-fourth home run of the season.

Collins Is Effective in Nightcap.

Rip Collins, although wild, held the New Yorkers in the pinches, while the Browns were getting away to an early lead on Gomez. Lou Gehrig helped the Yankees cause with his nineteenth homer, while Harry Rice and Melillo also connected for four bases.

Record of 12 Hits in Row For Robins as Bucs Bow

National League Leaders Take Fourth Straight, 19 to 6; Two Homers by Herman, One by Gilbert in Batting Streak.

FORBES FIELD, Pittsburgh, Pa., June 23 (A.P.).—The Brooklyn Robins set a new record for consecutive hitting here this afternoon as they mangled the Pittsburgh pitcher to win their fourth consecutive victory by a score of 19 to 6.

With two out in the sixth inning Frederick's single started a rare burst of hitting. Each of the next eleven Brooklyn players to step up to the plate came through with a base hit, including a home run hit inside the park by Walter Gilbert and two tremendous home runs into the right-field stands by Herman.

Herman's Second Homer 12th Hit in Row.

The sixth inning ended when Lopez attempted to score on the tenth successive hit and was thrown out at the plate. Gilbert's double and Herman's seventeenth home run of the season extended the streak to an even dozen in the seventh inning.

In all, the Robins made 28 hits off the combined deliveries of Heinie Meine and Leon Chagnon. Jim Elliott, the Brooklyn pitcher, was never in serious trouble.

AFTERNOON RALLY PUSHES STOCKS UP

Late Recovery More Than Cancels Many Earlier 1930 Minimums.

UTILITIES LEAD ADVANCE

New York, June 23 (A.P.).—After making new lows in the forenoon, prices of stocks and the leading speculative commodities rallied in the afternoon markets today. Wall street, however, was not inclined to celebrate the upturn prematurely, for it recalled that recent interruptions in the long downward trend had been both technical and brief.

Stocks more than regained their early losses, which had been made on two distinct selling movements, the second more vigorous than the first. In the grain market, July wheat closed only an eighth of a cent lower against the morning's break of nearly 3 cents to 80½, the lowest since 1914. Other months made small net advances. The early losses in cotton ranged from about $1.50 to nearly $2 a bale, but these were substantially reduced and the market closed 60 cents to $1.10 lower. Corn was steadier, finishing a cent to a cent and a half higher.

Execution of the large week-end accumulation of selling orders, including weak-end margin holdings, broke stocks at the opening, which saw blocks of 10,000 to 40,000 shares. Bears hastened to follow up the decline, working actively in United States Steel, American Telephone, American Can, General Electric and others, in the hope of bringing them to or through the resistance levels of last November.

Enough support was forthcoming to start a rally that eliminated the 2 and 3 point losses of the first half hour, but the upturn only encouraged further and more strenuous operations for the decline, with the result that shortly before noon the leaders had gone below the earlier lows.

United States Steel at 152½.

U. S. Steel was swept down to 152½, or 2½ points above the November 13 low. American Can dropped to 100½ and American Telephone to 260¼. Prices remained at the bottom only a short time, however, and on the first appearance of resistance the bears were satisfied to cover. The ensuing advance carried well through the remainder of the session, although final prices were somewhat below the highs. The composite of 90 shares advanced 3.3 points. Net gains in the more active issues ranged from 1 to 6 points.

In the absence of favorable business news, observers of the financial situation are displaying considerable interest in the market's performance at such low levels as it attained this morning. A break through the 1929 lows, it is pointed out, would doubtless have an important psychological effect and would not only encourage the bear faction to braver efforts, but might be expected to bring out further important liquidation, such as was forthcoming last week. Today's rally was seen as an indication that the panic levels would not be punctured without a hard struggle, despite the repeated assertions that the large banking interests are now making no concerted efforts to support prices.

Coincident with the extreme weakness of grain, Chairman Legge of the Federal Farm Board said in Washington that the Farmers' National Grain Corporation expected to take approximately $300,000,000 bushels of the 1930-31 wheat crop. He added that spring wheat growers had followed the board's program of acreage reduction, although the response of the winter crop farmers could not be determined inasmuch as their grain was in the ground before the program was announced.

The board, Mr. Legge stated, had about $50,000,000 in wheat, but was making no effort to sell its 1929 holdings. He estimated the cotton carry-over at 4,000,000 bales, which he regarded as not excessive.

Business Opinions Vary.

Expressions of opinion on the industrial outlook were somewhat at variance. One organization said its expectation of an early and substantial recovery had not changed, while another held that business was not yet "out of the woods."

The day's net gains were largest in the utility stocks. American Telephone was up 5½, Consolidated Gas 7⅛, Electric Power & Light 6¾, North American 3¼ and Public Service of New Jersey 4⅞. Peoples Gas closed 11 points lower against an earlier decline of 30.

In the industrial group, American Can netted 5⅛ higher, Bethlehem Steel 2¼, U. S. Steel 1¼, Westinghouse Electric 3⅛, Radio 1⅝, General Electric 1¾, International Harvester 3½, Johns Manville 1¼, Standard Oil of New Jersey 2⅜, Houston Oil 5 and Eastman Kodak 4½. J. I. Case was up 14 points. New York Central, after making the new low of 155, closed at 158½, a gain of 3¼. Southern Railway at 100 was ⅞ higher.

Foreign exchanges were firm. The Spanish peseta rallied several points.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, June 23 (A.P.).—Cotton prices declined 31 to 38 points during the first half of the session here today under general selling which carried the July price down to 13.25, or within 5 points of the low of the season, made on Wednesday of last week, and new October to 12.64, compared with the season low price of 12.59.

During the afternoon, however, the market recovered part of its losses, July advancing to 13.48 and closing at 13.40 at a net decline of 20 points, while new October advanced to 12.90 and closed at 12.85, a decline of 12 points. The general market closed steady at net losses of 12 to 22 points.

The opening was easy at declines of 21 to 30 points under quite general selling, which was evidently inspired by weakness in the Liverpool and Alexandria markets and by a generally favorable view of weather conditions throughout the cotton belt over Sunday. The decline was further extended partly in sympathy with the early weakness in many of the outside markets, particularly in stocks and grain and owing to continued unfavorable trade reports.

Offers tapered off during the afternoon and when the stock and grain markets rallied there was an active demand from shorts and trade interests which gave the market a steadier tone. The old October contract sold down to 12.93 rallied to 13.17 and closed at 13.12, and new December, after declining to 12.83, advanced to 13.08 and closed at 12.99.

Part of the day's buying was attributed to spinners in the way of fixing prices, while otherwise a good deal of the buying appeared to come from shorts. Crop accounts in the main were favorable, but while the higher temperatures were expected to encourage more active growth, there were some complaints of lack of moisture in portions of the central belt which attracted a good deal of attention during the late trading.

Liverpool cables said that prices had been affected by continental selling and local liquidation on favorable weather and weakness in the Alexandria market, and that Manchester was unsettled with cloth and yarn business restricted. Exports today, 7,787, making 6,602,454 so far this season. Port receipts, 7,896. U. S. port stocks, 1,704,109.

UNCERTAIN COURSE RULES BOND SALES

Gains in Best-Grade Issues Nearly Offset Slight Losses Elsewhere.

CONVERTIBLE LIST DIPS

New York, June 23 (A.P.).—Bond prices followed an irregular course today. The list moved uncertainly throughout the day, and seemed to be disturbed by the share market. Sales totaled $9,252,000, more than $2,000,000 under last Friday.

An easier tone prevailed at the close, although the losses were of no great proportions and almost offset by the gains in the better grade bonds. Convertibles were subject to alternate rallies and declines, with closing prices fractionally lower.

A feature of the trading was the heavy turnover in United States Governments, both Liberty and Treasury issues showing a reactionary trend. The sharpest drop was in Liberty 4th 4¼s, which yielded ¼ of a point.

The number of railroad bonds that advanced was smaller than usual, and the tone of the group lacked the recent firmness. Chicago & Northwestern 5s gained 1¼ points. Small advances were made by Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s, Great Northern 7s, several Pennsylvania issues, and Union Pacific 4s prime rail issues for the most party steady, with secondary liens easier.

Losses among convertibles averaged about ¼ of a point. St. Paul 5s were very active and lost 1⅜ points. Chicago & Northwestern 4¼s, a convertible issue, gained ¼. International Telephone 4½s lost ¼ to establish a new year's low at 108¾.

The depression in the sugar industry was reflected in the sharp reaction among the bonds of sugar companies which continued today. Manati Sugar 7½s yielded 9 points to establish a new year's low. Cuba Cane Products 6s lost ½ to sink to the year's low level, and Vertientes 7s and Cuban Dominican 7½s sagged. Oil bonds were active and irregular. Shell Union Oil 5s lost more than a point. Transcontinental Oil 6½s equalled the year's high.

Foreign bonds were irregular. German 5½s were extensively accumulated at the offering price of 90 with a few selling ¼ above. Principal European governments ruled steady.

DONAHOE TO DIRECT BANKERS' MEETING

Former Washingtonian and Clevelander Will Aid in 1930 Convention.

7,000 TO ATTEND EVENT

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

F. W. Donahoe, former Washingtonian, now located in Cleveland, has, with D. S. Hunter, been honored by engagement as director of the fifty-sixth annual convention of the American Bankers Association, to be held in the latter city September 29 to October 3.

They will coordinate the work of the various committees which are making elaborate plans to entertain the 7,000 bankers from all parts of the United Staets who expect to attend the convention. J. R. Kraus, vice chairman of the Union Trust Co., of Cleveland, is general chairman of the committee on preparations.

Mr. Donahoe went to Cleveland recently from this city, where he spent a number of years in charge of work for numerous trade associations and industrial groups. Both Mr. Donahoe and Mr. Hunter have had considerable experience in directing and arranging details of important conventions.

Has Wide Experience.

Mr. Hunter has been in trade association and convention work, with headquarters in Cleveland, for seventeen years. He has had wide experience in planning and organizing.

T. Hunton Leith, assistant cashier, Security Savings & Commercial Bank and executive councilman of the American Institute of Banking, has been appointed editor of The Bulletin, monthly publication of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, succeeding Aubrey O. Dooley, assistant trust officer, Federal-American National Bank, who has just been elected chairman of the institute's national publicity committee.

Mr. Leith was business manager of "Dollars and Sense," quarterly publication of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, in 1920. He served the chapter as secretary in 1921 and 1922, became its second vice president in 1924, first vice president in 1925 and president in 1926.

Krafft in Old Point Comfort.

Harold D. Krafft, general agent in Washington for the State Mutual Life Assurance Co., of Worcester, Mass., left yesterday for Old Point Comfort, Va., to attend the annual general agents' conference and convention of that company.

J. A. Marr, associate general agent, and H. Gordon Edmonds left for the convention last evening. Mr. Marr has recently been elected to the executive committee of the State Mutual Field Club, an office he has won through consistent large production over a period of years. A number of the leading producers of the State Mutual from all parts of the country have visited Washington during the past few days.

Stacy M. Reed, treasurer of the C. A. Snow Co. and of the Argonne Co., has been elected a director in the Security Savings & Commercial Bank, according to announcement of Vice President Francis G. Addison, jr., of that institution yesterday.

Mr. Reed has been with the Snow Co. since 1916 and is a graduate of the National University Law School, having the degree of LL. D. He is also a member of the District of Columbia bar, Stansbury Masonic Lodge, an associate member of the bar association, a member of Delta Theta Phi Legal Fraternity and the Washington Board of Trade. He is a native of Fredericksburg, Va.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM.

In making inquiries address Charles W. Storm, financial department of The Washington Post, and inclose a self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.

Four Stocks.

I. L. W.—Kindly tell me what you can about the following four stocks. Do you consider them good investments: Liquid Carbonic, Lambert Co., Kennecott Copper, Anaconda Copper?

Answer—On the basis of present dividends and selling prices, these stocks yield to the investor, in the order given, 6.4 per cent, 9.6 per cent, 7.5 per cent and 14.9 per cent. In the case of Liquid Carbonic, earnings for the six months ended with March last were equal to only 85 cents a share; consequently the dividend requirement for that period was not met. Lambert Co. earned in the first quarter of 1930 an amount equivalent to $2.76 a share, as against the dividend requirement for the period of $2 a share.

For the year 1929 Kennecott earned $5.54 a share and Anaconda $8.29 a share, these earnings being in excess of the present dividend requirements of $3 a share for the former and $7 a share for the latter. Kennecott Copper, as you no doubt know, lately reduced its yearly dividend from $5 to $3 a share.

A number of other copper mining companies have also lately cut their dividends. Anaconda directors are expected to meet shortly for dividend action. In view of the present condition of the copper metal market, some doubt prevails as to what course they may pursue.

Aviation Shares.

S. F. B.—I would be much obliged if you would give me your opinion on the investment possibilities of the following aviation stocks: Aviation Corporation of Delaware, Bendix Aviation, Curtiss-Wright Corporation, North American Aviation, National Air Transport and United Aircraft.

Answer—Only one of these stocks is at present receiving dividends, Bendix Aviation, which pays $2 annually and at prevailing market prices yields to the investor approximately 6.5 per cent.

It is the only issue named, therefore, that is thus far included in the investment class. All the others are speculative, with their future investment possibilities dependent entirely upon developments in the aviation industry, particularly as applied to the several respective companies mentioned.

Western Union.

J. F. D.—I hold stock in Western Union. Have you any information as to earnings, &c., and what is the yield at current levels?

Answer—Net earnings for the second quarter are officially estimated at $1,300,000 in excess of dividends required for the three months. First quarter income, however, was considerably less than the sum required for the quarterly payment. Operating economies, however, have proved effective in the second three months, and it is estimated that profits for the first half of the year will be in excess of dividends for the period.

Business is approximately 7 per cent under last year's volume, and the stock, at this writing, is at the year's low point, making the yield about eight per cent. Earnings for 1929 equaled $15.21 per capital share, as compared with $15.11 for 1928, while interest was earned five times in both years. Cash on hand at the end of 1929 was $7,154,200. The stock may be regarded as an investment suitable for the long term.

General Baking Pfd.

R. L. R.—Please advise me when the last dividend was declared and paid on General Baking preferred?

Answer—The last dividend of $2 per share quarterly on the $8 preferred stock was paid March 31, 1930, to stockholders of record March 22, and the last quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share on the $6 preferred stock was paid April 1, 1930, to stockholders of record March 19.

Freeport Texas.

C. H. W.—I have in mind the purchase of Freeport Texas. What can you tell me about this company?

Answer—Freeport Texas, while being a sulphur producer, has been linked of late in rumors in connection with natural gas deals, but nothing official has been intimated. Sulphur production in the first quarter showed a reduction of about 10,000 tons from the previous three months. A new management was elected in April following dissatisfaction on the part of stockholders over the old one.

Earnings last year were equal to $5.60 a share, as against $4.49 in 1928, while net income for the quarter ended with February was equivalent to $1.38 a share. Freport Texas may be classed as a speculative investment in view of the $5 annual dividend, $1 of which is in the form of an extra.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, June 23 (A.P.).—Wheat prices rebounded suddenly today coincidently with rallies in quotations on securities but not until wheat had fallen into the "eighties."

For the first time in a long while the July delivery of wheat here, which represents the 1930 domestic crop now being harvested in the Southwest, went under 90 cents and sold today at as low as 89½, a bushel, whereas for 15 years past a dollar a bushel has been generally regarded as about the lowest figure at which wheat should sell.

Big arrivals of wheat at Texas, Oklahoma and southern Kansas points today received much of the blame for new low prices established today and so also did continued dearth of any adequate export demand.

Closing quotations on wheat were notably irregular, and unsettled, ranging from ½ of a cent decline to ¼ cent advance compared with Saturday's finish. Corn closed 1¾ cents up, oats ⅜ to ⅝ of a cent advanced, and provisions 5 to 85 cents down.

Helping to lift the wheat market the late dealings today were not only the upward swings of stock exchange prices but also reports in some quarters referring to likelihood of a wheat grain strike similar to the consumers' strike abroad last year. Special attention was also given to a late statement which was credited to Chairman Legge of the Federal Farm Board, and which was widely construed as tending to afford a prop for wheat values. He was quoted as saying that United States Cooperative Companies would handle as much as 300,000,000 bushels of wheat this season.

On the other hand, with auspicious harvest weather continuing, the four principal terminals in Texas, Oklahoma and southern Kansas nearest to where winter wheat is being harvested, received 1,100 cars of wheat today. Moreover, spring wheat territory both sides of the Canadian line were given the benefit of fresh rainfalls, and during much of the day buyers were relatively scarce except previous sellers who had profits that could be realized. Sharp notice at times was also being taken of assertions from trade authorities that speculative buyers had been driven from the wheat market through Government efforts to minimize speculation. Today's temporary new breaks in wheat prices carried the market to as low as 18 cents a bushel under the prices current two weeks ago. A large part of the selling was currently reported as being to stop losses on the part of some of the heaviest holders of future delivery contracts which of late have been open on the market.

Corn and oats sympathized with wheat weakness early, but afterward developed strength independently. Scantiness of receipts of corn from rural sources did a good deal to aid the late upward movement both of the corn market as of oats as well. Need of moisture in parts of the corn belt was also a source of late firmness of corn values. Earlier, however, corn, oats and rye as well as wheat, touched new price records for the season. Provisions underwent a sharp drop on account of liquidating sales and as a result of declines in the value of hogs.

ARLINGTON SCHOOLS TO OPEN THURSDAY

LUTHERANS TO GATHER

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 500. Clarendon, Va.

With an enrollment of 1,200 pupils, of which 850 are white and 350 colored, the summer schools of Arlington County will open Thursday morning for a period of eight weeks, according to an announcement made yesterday by County School Sperintendent Fletcher Kemp. The hours will be from 8 to 12 o'clock noon.

Those schools which will open are the Washington-Lee High School and the following elementary schools for white pupils: Cherrydale, Ballston, Clarendon, Woodrow Wilson, Nellie Custis and Patrick Henry. For colored pupils, Jefferson, Kemper and John Langston.

The preschool clinic which will be conducted today at the Clarendon Health Center will be the last that the county health department will conduct prior to the opening of the schools in the fall.

Tomorrow the clinic will be held at the Jefferson District Health Center and on Thursday at the Cherrydale Health Center.

These clinics will be conducted from 9 to 12 in the morning and from 1 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Dr. P. M. Chichester, county health officer, urges all parents who are contemplating sending children to the first grade in the fall to take advantage of these clinics, as all children entering school will be required to present a health card.

Dr. Chichester further announces that arrangements are being completed whereby Dr. C. R. Boyland, county school dentist, will attend the clinics today, tomorrow and Thursday and also will visit all of the summer schools. The dates for the summer school dental clinics will be announced later.

A. F. Thelander, president-elect of the Arlington Rotary Club, left yesterday for Chicago, where he will attend the International Rotary conference as the delegate from the local club.

Ballston Council, No. 36, Order of Fraternal Americans, will hold its monthly meeting tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. Officers will be elected.

Arlington County Lutherans have been invited to attend a union service of all Lutherans of the District of Columbia and adjoining territory to be held in the Luther Place Memorial Church, Washington, tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. This service is to commemorate the 400th anniversary of the Augusburg Confession, the basic doctrinal standard of the Luthern Church.

The case of O. D. Waters, charged with reckless driving, was continued until Thursday morning by Judge Harry R. Thomas in police court yesterday.

The Young People's Service League of St. George's Episcopal Church, at Clarendon, will present a play, entitled "Safety First," under the direction of Frank Davis Friday night in the Parish Hall at 8 o'clock.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union, of Waverly Hills, will meet tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. C. Rothery.

The Ashton Heights Woman's Club will hold its monthly social meeting tonight at the clubhouse at 8 o'clock. Mrs. C. B. Emery, chairman of the music committee, is in charge of the program.

The condition of Deputy Sheriff Harry L. Woodyard, of Arlington County, who underwent an operation at the Garfield Hospital, Washington, several days ago, was reported much improved last night.

Meeting last night at Clarendon, the executive board of the Arlington-Fairfax Counties' week-day Religious Education Association voted unanimously to continue the classes during the coming school year, beginning in the fall.

Charles F. Kincheloe, member of the board, stated, following the meeting, that the classes held during the past year, being the first ever held in Arlington or Fairfax Counties, were well attended and had the united support of the school boards of the two counties.

The board will, according to Mr Kincheloe, proceed to formulate its plans to arrange for the financing of the classes during the coming year.

Woman Petitions Court For Use of Maiden Name

Mrs. Virginia Gulick and her 16-year-old son, James Sprout, both of Massachusetts avenue northwest, near Fourteenth street yesterday petitioned the District Supreme Court to permit them to assume her maiden name and drop that of the husband and father.

The petitioners tell the court that the husband and father deserted them six years ago, and that in February, 1925, the woman obtained a divorce, but did not obtain permission to adopt her maiden name. The woman asserts that since her separation from her husband a year before the divorce, she has solely cared for the boy. Attorneys Thomas J. Hurney and Manghum & Manghum appear for the petitioners.

Grand Jury Will Hear Alleged Bribery Count

Charged with attempting to bribe Detective Spottswood F. Gravely, of the Third Precinct, and Policeman Irving Rosenberg, of the same precinct, William E. Dorsey, Negro, yesterday was ordered held under $500 bond for grand jury action.

The Negro was arrested Sunday night by the two policemen and was charged with possession of liquor. Both policemen declared yesterday that the man had offered them $20 to destroy the alleged evidence.

Benefit for Casualty Will Be Held Tonight

A capacity crowd is expected to participate in the Casualty Hospital benefit tour aboard the City of Washington tonight. The boat is to leave the Seventh Street Wharf at 8 o'clock.

The program of entertainment includes dancing, singing, specialty dances, atnd musical features. Dinner will be served on the ship at 6 o'clock.

Judge Scores Mate in Jail, But Denies Annulment Plea

Jurist, in Refusing Bethesda Woman's Suit, Characterizes Leavenworth Prison Inmate as "Facile Letter Writer, Deceitful Liar and Story Teller."

Although he characterized the defendant as "a facile letter writer, a passionate lover and a deceitful liar with the imagination of a good story teller—a dangerous combination," Judge Robert B. Peter in Rockville Circuit Court yesterday refused to grant an annulment of her marriage to Dorothy E. Painter, 4701 Maple avenue, Bethesda, Md.

The wife had sued for an annulment of her marriage to John T. Painter, a prisoner at the Levenworth Penitentiary, on tre grounds of fraud. She alleged that the defendant had "taken advantage of her lack of worldly knowledge" and had contracted a marriage with her to better his "social and financial status at the expense of the plaintiff." She told the court that she had met her husband while a high school student and that he had told her he was going West with his father, whom he represented to be wealthy.

Later he wrote her from Leavenworth and said that he was incarcerated for another man's crime and that he was serving the sentence to protect a friend, she alleged. With numerous letters of an endearing nature he so worked on her sympathy that she agreed to marry him. The marriage took place at Bethesda, April 16, 1929. Later the husband told his wife that his father owned large estates in Cuba and in Florida.

Painter later was rearrested on the same chrage of passing bad checks, and is at present a prisoner in the District Jail.

The judge contends, however, that the young woman was 24 years of age when she married the defendant and that she knew he was a man with a criminal record when she married him, and that therefore he could not see that the plaintiff had committed such fraud as to warrant annulment of the marriage. The judge held that the mere fact that the plaintiff had misled about his worldly goods did no' constitute fraud enough to make annulment possible. The only fraud would be that which would cover facts that would tend to shame the innocent party and the children of the union, and these facts were known to the plaintiff when she married the man, the judge held.

NATIONAL SEARCH ON FOR BAKER SUSPECT

Shelby Asks Police Over Country to Watch for Missing Veteran.

BREWSTER STILL IN JAIL

A Nation-wide search has been instituted by Inspector William S. Shelby for Herman Barrere, 37 years old, World War veteran, who is wanted for questioning in connection with the slaying of Mary Baker April 11 last.

Inspector Shelby said last night the police were "very anxious" to talk to Barrere to clear up certain information linking his name with the case. The nature of the information could not be learned from police.

"It is very important that we find Barrere," the inspector added. "I have sent descriptions of him to every large city in the country and hope that it will bring results."

Barrere has been sought since about a week after the crime. Department of Justice agents traced him to Philadelphia, but when they arrived he had vanished, they say.

The lookout for Barrere contains his snapshot and picture. It describes him as being about 37 years old, 5 feet 9 inches tall, and weighing 170 to 175 pounds. He is described as being of good physique, having black hair combed back, gray over temples and down back of the neck.

The lookout states: "Barrere is French descent, born in New Orleans, usually wears gray or blue suits. Very neat in appearance and is very fond of women. He may be employed as a painter or chauffeur."

While the hunt for Barrere was being given new impetus, Howard Brewster, Army private, who has been formally charged with the murder, was being grilled at Arlington County Jail by Commonwealth Attorney Gloth. Brewster confessed to the slaying and later recanted. Several significant statements regarding the crime were revealed in the confession and operatives are now making an exhaustive inquiry into them.

Georgia Wreck Hurts Nine; Heat Blamed

Dacula, Ga., June 23 (A.P.).—Nine persons were injured, one seriously, in the overturning of the dining car, a Pullman and a day coach of northbound Seaboard Airline passenger train No. 6 near here today.

Miss Florence Barkdale, school teacher of Chatsworth, Ga., was in a hospital at Winder, believed to be injured internally. She was taken from the wreckage unconscious.

Railroad officials said they believed the wreck was due to the buckling of rails on account of the heat.

STRICT ROADHOUSE BILL TO BE SOUGHT

Hyattsville Chamber Says Present State-Wide Act Emasculated.

NEW FIGHTS FOR ROADS

A State-wide roadhouse bill "with teeth," modeled in some part after a law in force in Montgomery County, will be sought at the next session of the Maryland State Legislature in January by the Hyattsville Chamber of Commerce, according to resolutions adopted by the organization last night at a meeting in the Municipal Building at Hyattsville.

Announcement also was made in connection with a uniform lighting plan in progress by the association that the town of Hyattsville will install a series of large lights from its overhead bridge to Bladensburg on the Baltimore boulevard.

The association likewise adopted resolutions for having introduced in the Legislature a State-wide bill prohibiting the solicitation of automobile rides.

Action for the roadhouse bill was taken after speakers contended that while the Legislature at its last session passed a bill, sponsored by the association, for stringent regulation and supervision of roadhouses, the measure had been emasculated to the extent where its force was reduced to a minimum. That bill was drawn and introduced after a wave of public indignation in the county following the famous Green Gables killing and other roadhouse affrays. The new bill, it was declared, will be very comprehensive.

C. D. Adderson, secretary, was instructed to notify the State Roads Commission that it considered as a menace the intersection of Johnson and Rhode Island avenues in Hyattsville, and asked that steps be taken to obviate the present bottle-neck corner.

William T. Jennings, chairman of a special committee on uniform lighting, announced that the town of Brentwood had voted to install 100-watt lights on Rhode Island avenue, that the town of North Brentwood would take action after its town election next month, and that Hyattsville would install 250-watt lights on Rhode Island avenue from Melrose to Johnson avenues.

Arlington Wreath Laid By Disabled Veterans

The District Department of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War yesterday afternoon sponsored the placing of a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery by Dr. W. L. Kline. Twenty-five members of the National Capital Chapter, No. 2, attended.

The committee in charge included J. A. Ashi, Ralph Werner, Michael Hanley, Charles Halpin and Amos Davis. Mrs. Ruth Montgomery and Mrs. Florence B. Hefflebower assisted, and colors were presented by Mrs. Adelaide Grant, past president of the Federal Post Auxiliary. V. F. W. A guard of honor was provided by Capt. Morris Daniel, of the Sixteenth Brigade.

Capital Youth Drowned As He Swims in Canal

Walter Dulock, colored, 20 years old, of 719 Thirty-fourth street northwest, drowned in the canal at the foot of Thirty-first street while swimming yesterday.

The youth and several companions were cavorting in the water when Dulock suddenly sank beneath the surface. His companions called to a pedestrian who notified police. The fire rescue squad and the Harbor police dragged the river four hours before the body was recovered. The body was taken to the District Morgue.

Fireman Is Overcome During Blaze in Garage

Fireman C. E. McGhee, of Number 3 Truck, was partially overcome by smoke and escaping gas while fighting a fire of unknown origin in the cellar of Hill & Tibbits automobile plant at Fourteenth street and Ohio avenue northwest, late yesterday afternoon.

He was treated by the Fire Rescue Squad, called by Capt. P. J. Sullivan, of Number 3 Truck, when he found that gas masks were necessary in order to get to the fire to extinguish it. The damage was reported to be slight Boy's Nose Hit by Bat.

The sandlotters were playing the national pastime in Third street and Missouri avenue yesterday afternoon when a fast one suddenly was hurled over the plate. The batter swung a la Babe Ruth and the bat struck Catcher Dick Newman, 13 years old, of 704 K street northeast, on the nose. He was removed to Casualty Hospital, where his injury was treated.

MARYLAND TO BUILD PRISON AT ROXBURY

SITE TO BE 747 ACRES

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., June 23.—Maryland's new correctional institution, where segregation will make possible rehabilitation of its prison population, will be located at Roxbury, 7 miles south of Hagerstown.

Col. Stuart S. Janney, chairman of the board of welfare, announced that the choice of the site was unanimous and that Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, who sat in the meeting this afternoon, had approved the selection. The institution will cost between $4,000,000 and $6,000,000.

Nine farms and parcels of land are included in the 747 acres which comprise the site, which was selected only after an exhaustive investigation by geologists and farm experts, who declared the site to be ideal for the purpose.

Model Farm and Dairy.

It is the plan of the board to convert the site into a model farm and a dairy also will be located there. This along with limestone quarries will provide employment for approximately 1,200 prisoners.

According to the statement of Col. Janney, the reason for selecting a site in the open country is because it is becoming increasingly difficult to obtain proper employment for the prisoners in productive labor.

Owing to Federal legislation with respect to prison-made goods, the last Maryland legislature appropriated money for the land and beginning the construction work. In selecting Roxbury, sufficient arable land was found, and workable deposits of limestone of suitable quality also were found to exist there. This limestone offers the greatest opportunity for employment of prisoners in productive labor for State use. The employment which will thus be possible will include the quarrying and crushing of stone for use on the roads of the State and the preparation of lime for agricultural purposes.

Prison Labor to Build.

Water probably will be purchased from Hagerstown's water system, while a sewerage disposal plant will in all probability be located on Antietam Creek, which cuts through the site for a distance of three-fourths of a mile.

The locating of the institution near Hagerstown was approved by business interests of the city, the chamber of commerce indorsing the bringing of it here.

Sites had been considered in two other counties, Frederick and Carroll, but they did not compare with the Roxbury one.

Hahaffey, McClary Get Brentwood Posts

William N. Mahaffey and John McClary are the two councilmen of Brentwood, Md., chosen in the annual election yesterday. Mr. Mahaffey, who was reelected, represents the Third Ward, and Mr. McClary the Fourth. Both men were unopposed.

When the polls closed last night the Town Council assembled and received the results from the judges of the election, Fred H. Clough and Mary E. Easterday.

Three Women Injured When Auto Overturns

Three members of a Pennsylvania motor party sustained injuries early yesterday afternoon when the automobile they were driving to this city overturned after blowing out a tire near Chantilly, Va. They were brought to Georgetown Hospital, where only one of the three remained overnight for further treatment.

$7,000 TO BE SPENT ON OFFICES FOR U. S.

Building in Alexandria Will House Postoffice and Customs Collector.

NEW EDIFICE PLANNED

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 323.

Announcement was made yesterday that the lease by the United States Government of the three-story building, known as 417-419 King street, was signed on Saturday for a period of one year with the privilege of renewal, to be used as a temporary postoffice during the razing of the present structure and erection of the new building at Prince and Washington streets. The temporary offices will be remodeled at a cost of $7,000, to be occupied as a postoffice within 30 days.

In the building in addition to the postoffice will be the office of the collector of customs, James R. Mansfield, and the Internal Revenue office, J. Sidney Wiley, both to be located on the third floor.

The Civil Service Commission will use the Naval Torpedo Station for holding examinations, and the December term of the United States Court will be held in the Corporation Court here.

Bids for the erection of the new postoffice building will be opened June 30 in Washington, and a short time after the contract for the work is awarded the razing of the present postoffice building and the two buildings purchased by the Government, on the site for the new building, will start. The present postoffice on the southwest corner of Prince and St. Asaph streets and the former home of Dr. H. A. Latane in Prince street and of the late Judge J. K. M. Norton at the southwest corner of Prince and Washington streets will be torn down to make space for the new postoffice, which will face on Washington street and be 17 feet from the building line.

The entire membership of the Chamber of Commerce has been notified to attend a meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at the George Mason Hotel to hear the report of the public relations committee on the new proposed electric franchise.

City council has authorized [illegible] bids for the franchise be submitted to that body by 3 o'clock Thursday, at which time there will be an open session of council. The franchise is for a period of 30 years from the date of the approval of the ordinance.

Mrs. Teresa E. Groves, aged 72 years, widow of T. A. Groves, died on Sunday in Washington, and the body was brought to the Cunningham funeral home, from whence the funeral will be held at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. Services will be conducted by the Rev. E. M. Delaney, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, and burial will be in the Presbyterian Cemetery. She is survived by a son, Theron Rice Groves, of this city.

Class night exercises of the George Mason High School were held in the school auditorium last night, followed by the senior prom at the Community Hall. The dance of the George Mason High School Alumni Association was held in the Elks Home last Friday night.

The Rotary Club members will meet at 2:30 o'clock today at the George Mason Hotel for registration, and to form a Rotary group to attend the baseball game at American League Park. The luncheon will be omitted, but members will register to complete the records. C. S. Taylor Burke is in charge of the trip to the game.

Owners of property in Washington street are invited to appear before the local board of assessors at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, in the city council chamber, and give their views on the tentative land values set by this board.

The funeral of Mrs. Ella Johnson, wife of William Johnson, who died on Sunday at the Alexandria Hospital, will be held at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon, from Cunningham's funeral home, 809 Cameron street, conducted by the Rev. Pierce S. Ellis, pastor of the First Baptist Church. Burial will be in Union Cemetery.

A free chest clinic will be held tomorrow afternoon from 2:30 to 5 o'clock, for white patients, and at the same hours on Thursday for colored.

Boy Swallows Dye in Play.

Eugene Columbra, 2 years old, of 1430 Almes street northeast, swallowed a quantity of dye while playing in his home yesterday afternoon. The boy was treated at Casualty Hospital.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

LUELLA was busy with pad and pencil.

"What'r'yuh doing now?" I asked, out of curiosity.

She brooked no interruption.

"I ask you: What'r'yuh doing?"

After a while, flourishing the pencil, she answered: "Taking stock."

At the time, I was starting to read the newspaper, a headline hiting me in the eye:

400 STOCKS REACH YEAR'S LOW PRICES

And here was Luella taking stock. Naturally, I grew alarmed.

"Who got you into this," I asked, "some tipster?"

"Into what?"

"Taking stock."

"My mother," she said.

* * * *

HER mother got her into the stock market. Good night! What kind of a mother is she, anyway?

"Your mother?" I breathed, with all the reverence at my command.

"Why, certainly, my mother," said Luella. "It's an old family custom."

An old family custom. I had married into a gambling outfit and didn't know it.

"How long has this been going on?" I queried.

"How long has what been going on?" snapped Luella.

"This stock business——"

"You mean taking stock?"

"Whatever you call it, yes!"

* * * *

SHE paused, pondered: "Ever since I can remember. When I was a little girl I used to help mother take stock—usually at spring cleaning time. Late this year, I should have taken stock some time ago. Why?"

All I could do was show her the paper: "You're lucky," I said, pointing to the headline. "The stocks are all down now. At least you're getting 'em cheap——"

"Getting what cheap?"

"The stocks you're taking."

Luella burst into laughter: "You misunderstand," she told me. "I'm taking stock of our household goods—the flat silver, linen, and the family jewels, before storing them——"

The laugh was on me, of course; but Luella got interested in the financial page.

"They are low, aren't they?" she remarked, reading the stock list.

Low? An ant couldn't crawl under any of 'em; especially the ones I bought.

MANY RIVALS SEEK GOFF SENATE SEAT

DEMOCRATS HAVE NEELY

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 23.—Following on the heels of the announcement Saturday of H. C. Ogden, of Wheeling, publisher of a chain of newspapers in West Virginia, that he will not seek the seat in the United States Senate which is now held by Senator Guy D. Goff, came the appearance on the political horizon of the names of prominent Republicans from almost all parts of the State who are either willing to wear the Goff toga or are being boosted for senatorial duties by admirers.

Until Saturday eyes of the Republicans of the State were focused on Mr. Ogden and it seemed to be the consensus that he could get the senatorial nomination for the asking. After considering the situation the veteran publisher decided not to throw his hat into the ring.

Senator Goff announced at Washington on April 23 that, due to a decline in health, he would not seek another term. Since then he has gone to Europe and is not expected back until early in the fall. As far as is known, he, as senior senator, has expressed no preference as to the name of his successor, except that he hopes he will be a Republican.

James Elwood Jones, multimillionaire coal operator of Pochantas County, has already started to campaign for the nomination. Former Representative E. T. England, of Charleston, announced his candidacy late Saturday; Circuit Judge Harry Shaw, of Fairmont; John M. Crawford, of Parkersburg; H. C. Greer, Morgantown publisher; former Gov. A. B. White, of Parkersburg; Judge A. G. Hughes, of Kingwood, and President John Roscoe Turner, of West Virginia University, are being urged by friends to make the race, and Representative Carl G. Bachman, of Wheeling, after a conference with Senator H. D. Hatfield, National Committeeman Walter S. Hallanan and other leaders of the party has let it be known that he does not care to leave his post in the House of Representatives.

While so many are mentioned for the G. O. P. nomination, former Senator M. M. Neely, of Fairmont, will be nominated without opposition by the Democrats.

Rockingham Court To Be Remodeled

Contracts Are Awarded for Alterations Which Will Cost $80,000.

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., June 23.—Contracts for the remodeling and fireproofing of the interior of the Rockingham County Courthouse, at a cost of approximately $80,000, were awarded today by the board of supervisors to the Harrisonburg Building & Supply Co., the Valley Plumbing & Heating Co., of Harrisonburg, and the Westbrook Elevator Co., of Danville. C. H. Hinnant, of Lynchburg, is the architect.

The circuit court room will be removed from the first to the second floor, while the auditorium on the top floor is to be removed to give way to office space and a smaller assembly room seating 500 persons. Offices will be provided for all of the county officers who now occupy rented quarters.

The noise from the street and the poor ventilation prompted the removal of the courtroom to the second floor. The Rockingham County courthouse, the most massive of any rural county in Virginia, was erected in 1899 at a cost of $100,000.

Youth, 18, Injured By Civil War Shell

Hand Amputated as Bomb, Used as Door Stop 13 Years, Explodes.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., June 23.—Russell Lybarger, 18, is in Timmons Hospital, at Bedford, where he submitted to the amputation of his left hand, shattered by the explosion of a Civil War bomb. His condition is good.

The Lybarger family resides in the country, near Bedford, and for the last 13 years had used an old army shell for a door stop. The young man was attempting to chisel dirt out of an opening of the supposed empty shell when it exploded. It proved to have been a loaded bomb, made of iron an inch thick, eight inches long and four inches in diameter. The report was heard nearly a mile away and the smoke arose above the roof of the house. The explosion tore a large hole in the ground.

It is supposed the shell was brought from Gettysburg in the '60's by a member of the family of the late Joseph W. Tomlinson, who owned the farm at that time and who had attended the Gettysburg Theological Seminary.

FIRE SQUAD SAVES LIFE OF SWIMMER

REMOVED TO HOSPITAL

Members of the District Fire Rescue Squad last night saved the life of Edward Robertson, 22 years old, of Suitland, Md. Robertson had been dragged from the waters of the Potomac at Treasure Cove, near Fort Foote, Md., in an unconscious condition and had been believed drowned.

Robertson and several companions were swimming at Treasure Cove, which is a shallow place on the river. The youth dived into the water from a rock and is believed to have struck his head on a submerged rock, stunning him. His companions pulled him from the water and carried him to the garage of J. C. Sheriff at Oxon Hill.

Members of the Oxon Hill Volunteer Fire Department were called, but that department has no rescue unit, and they called the District Rescue Squad. In the meantime, firemen gave the youth first aid. When the trained members of the Washington squad arrived they went to work with pulmotor and restoratives, and after a half hour's work brought the man to consciousness.

They placed him in the rescue wagon and took him to Providence Hospital for further treatment.

Man Jailed on Charge Of Assaulting Girl, 7

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., June 23.—Elmer Wolff, 22, of Baltimore, formerly of Eastport, near Annapolis, today was committed to jail, following a preliminary hearing before Police Justice Louis M. Hopkins, to await grand jury action on the charge of criminally assaulting a 7-year-old child last night.

Dr. Joseph C. Joice, who examined the child, said there was evidence she had been attacked. The alleged offense was committed about dusk Saturday on the campus of St. John's College. She ran screaming to her home nearby. Wolff later told police that his real name is Elmer Wolford.

President of Kiwanis Guest of Harrisonburg

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., June 23.—Every Kiwanian should be interested in his community, he should see that his community has the finest schools, finest playgrounds, the best churches and that children are raised under the best influences, Horace W. MacDavid, of Decatur, Ill., president of Kiwanis International, told an interclub meeting of Valley Kiwanians here today.

Mr. MacDavid, whose grandfather migrated from Culpeper County to the Middle West years ago, was, with Mrs. MacDavid, Miss Joane MacDavid and a niece, Miss Caroline Gilmer, a guest of the Harrisonburg Club at luncheon. They are on their way to the Atlantic City convention of Kiwanis International.

Assault Attempt Is Charged to Man

Rockville police yesterday arrested Matthew Craven, colored, 40 years old, of Poolesville, Md., on charges of having attempted to assault a white woman at Poolesville. He was placed in the county jail at Rockville.

According to information given police by Mrs. May Pearson, of Poolesville, who swore out a warrant for the Negro, she was picking raspberries early Sunday morning about 500 yards from her home when the Negro approached her and asked if her husband was home. She told him that her husband was asleep.

The man then dismounted from his horse, the woman told police, and threw her to the ground. She screamed and fought for several minutes until an automobile approached, causing the man to become frightened and flee. Craven was arrested at his home early yesterday by Corp. Roy Bodmer, of the county police. He is said to have been drinking at the time of his arrest, according to police.
